Professor Shattuck's Services to the University of Illinois

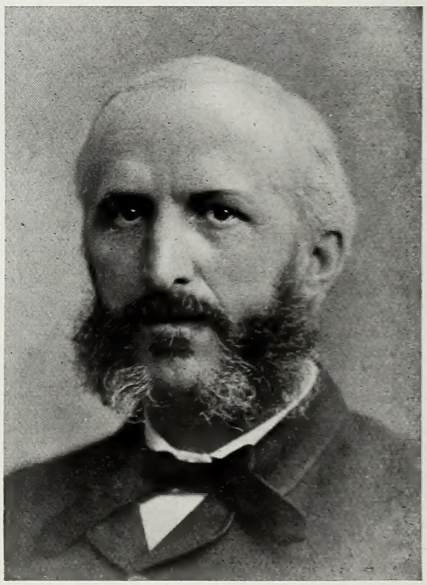

At the Age of 25

The request of the editor of the "Illio" that I write a story of Professor Samuel Walker Shattuck's life for publication in the 1914 "Illio", and that I keep that story within the limit of five hundred or six hundred words, gives rise to very mixed feelings on my part. To write what I know of my long-time friend is at any time a pleasure; to do so with a fair measure of justice to him or to myself in the narrow confines of five or six folios is an impossibility.

Born in 1841 in Groton, Massachusetts, of splendid New England stock, Professor Shattuck was the descendent of a fine line of soldiers, from his great grandfather, Job Shattuck, who served in King George's army before the Revolution, and under Washington later, to his father, Walter Shattuck, who fought against Great Britain in the war of 1812, and who was Lieutenant Colonel of the Sixth Regiment of Massachusetts Militia at the outbreak of the Rebellion. Samuel W. Shattuck, then a lad of scarcely twenty, had already been in this regiment for several years and was holding the office of Sergeant Major. Lieutenant Colonel Walter Shattuck started with his regiment for Washington, but soon was compelled to resign owing to the infirmities of age. The sword which he was no longer able to wield he gave to his son Samuel, whose use of it brought still greater honor to the family name.

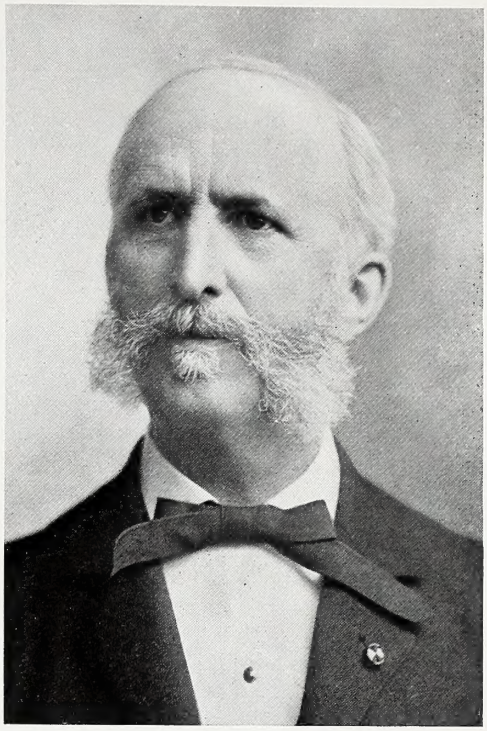

Graduating from Norwich University, in Vermont, with the degree of B. S., Samuel W. Shattuck was an instructor in mathematics in that institution at the beginning of the Rebellion. He went at once to the front and served for three months with his regiment in and about Baltimore and Washington. In the fall he returned to Norwich University to resume teaching. The expectation that the Rebellion would be quickly and easily suppressed not having been realized, Professor Shattuck, in 1863, entered the veteran army and in October became Adjutant of the Eighth Vermont Infantry, serving with his regiment, or upon special detail duty, until it was mustered out of service in June, 1865. At the close of the war he again returned to Norwich University as adjunct professor of mathematics and military tactics. In 1865-66 he was acting president, and from that time was vice-president until he gave up the position to go to the University of Illinois.

At the Age of 45

Professor Shattuck's work at the University of Illinois began in 1868, as assistant professor of mathematics and instructor in military tactics; within three years he was made full professor of mathematics, and for many years he was a sort of "Lord High Everything Else" at the University; teaching civil engineering doing the surveying for the University, even holding for six months, in 1873, the office of acting president. But essentially, and for thirty-seven years, he was the head of the Department of Mathematics, filling the position with entire acceptability through all the marvelous advances of the University during this long period. In 1873, looking after the business affairs of the University was added to his duties, and he carried that burden for many years in connection with his other position. Finally, however, the time came when he could no longer endure the strain of filling two positions, each of which was already great and steadily growing. I was at this time president of the University; and it was upon my advice that the office of comptroller was created, and I have always been glad to think that I had so much to do with presuading Professor Shattuck to accept the same. It meant more to the University to have him continue as comptroller than as professor of mathematics, and he was willing to serve his loved University where he could serve it best. His success as financier of the great institution has been as marked as was his success in the Department of Mathematics. Courageous, tenacious, consistent, with a steady hand on the wheel, he has guided University matters to a safe port through some severe squalls as well as in calmer seas. His habit of kindliness, as well as his ability to take a dilemma by the horns; his knowledge of men and of affairs, as well as of sciences and philosophies, all stood him in good stead.

At the Age of 60

Among the makers of the University of Illinois the name of Samuel Walker Shattuck deserves an honored place. For more than forty-four years he has freely given to the University his best thought, his conscientious care, his soldierly exactness, his almost unerring judgment, his love for and interest in students, and his simple faith in God. In his wise and prudent management of its business affairs, he has rendered to a great institution a splendid service, which can never be forgotten.

The Week of Interscholastic

All that the Special Interscholastic Edition of the Daily Illini dared to prophesy for the 1912 Interscholastic proved uniformly true. Never was a season more consistently successful; and every activity of the week stands out as pre-eminently memorable. The variety of events was amazing. Fairies and chimney-sweeps, shepherdesses and Cossacks, hoboes and Sophomores, band concerts and oratory, art and athletics—such was the array Olympic offered our thousand visitors. Strange if they were not impressed!

THE MAYPOLE

And a chill mist descended, and the winds blew. But the floods came not, and the girls danced on. Genuine heroines—the Queen and her subjects—and lovely.

First came on, in customary suits of solemn black, the Senior girls; who encircled the May-pole and sang, with a pardonable tremor in their voices (pardonable both because of the solemnity of that last sad hour and because of the chilliness of the blast), a series of Illinois songs. When they had finished, a group of Junior girls, with Miss Grace Bacon at the head, advanced and took into their custody the traditional Senior wand.

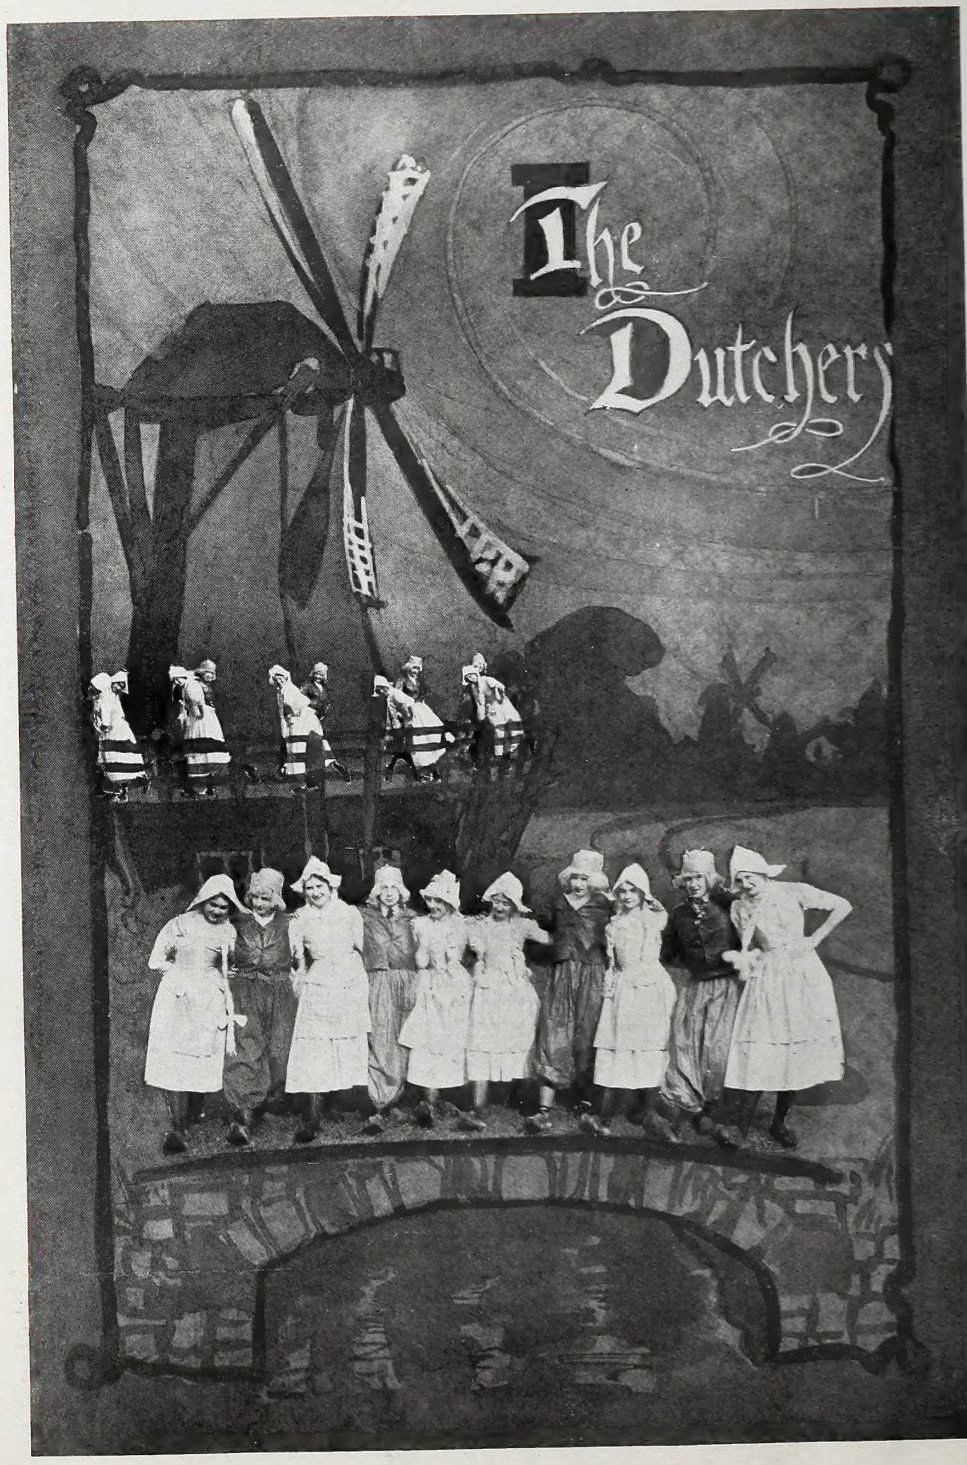

MAY QUEEN

Then began the May-Pole proper. Miss Elizabeth Baines, the May Queen, Miss Elsa Wintermere, her maid of honor, and twelve graceful attendants, approached and consummated prettily the act of coronation. The maids danced homage to their Queen, withdrew, and left her to superintend the revels from a floral throne. Charming shepherdesses gambolled on the green, and grimy chimney-sweeps tripped and swaggered to the crowd's applause; innocent children romped about a miniature May-Pole; and, turning loose their toy balloons, watched them make a pretty, gregarious ascent. The Grande May-Pole, coming next, was decidedly impressive; and "Bluff King

FESTIVE

Hal" was winning and admirable. The dances of different nations, Russian, Tyrolean, Dutch, Swedish, and Spanish, were novel and pretty as to costume as well as to execution. We who came without our wraps, had to envy those burly Russians, swathed in what looked like very warm, brown stuff.

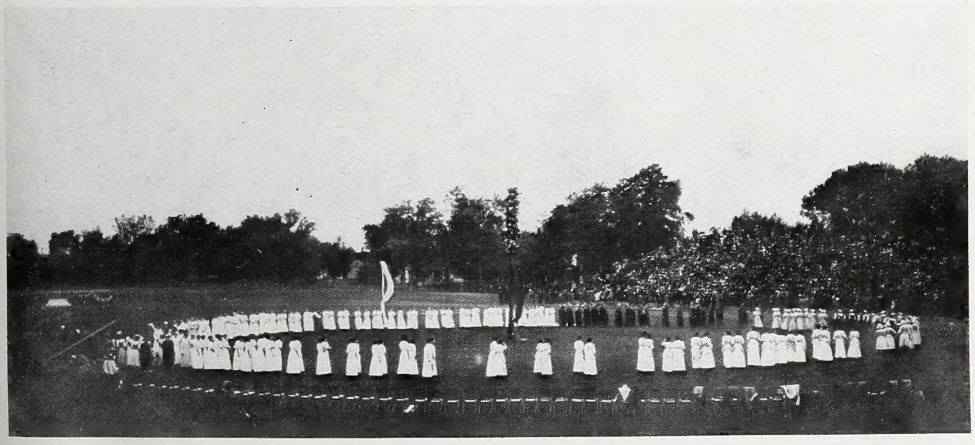

The May-Pole was eminently successful. The disorder of the weather was of no consequence to the thousands of spectators, who lingered gladly through it all. And if we did go home wetter and colder than we came, we at least went home estheticized—or something like that.

THE STUNT SHOW

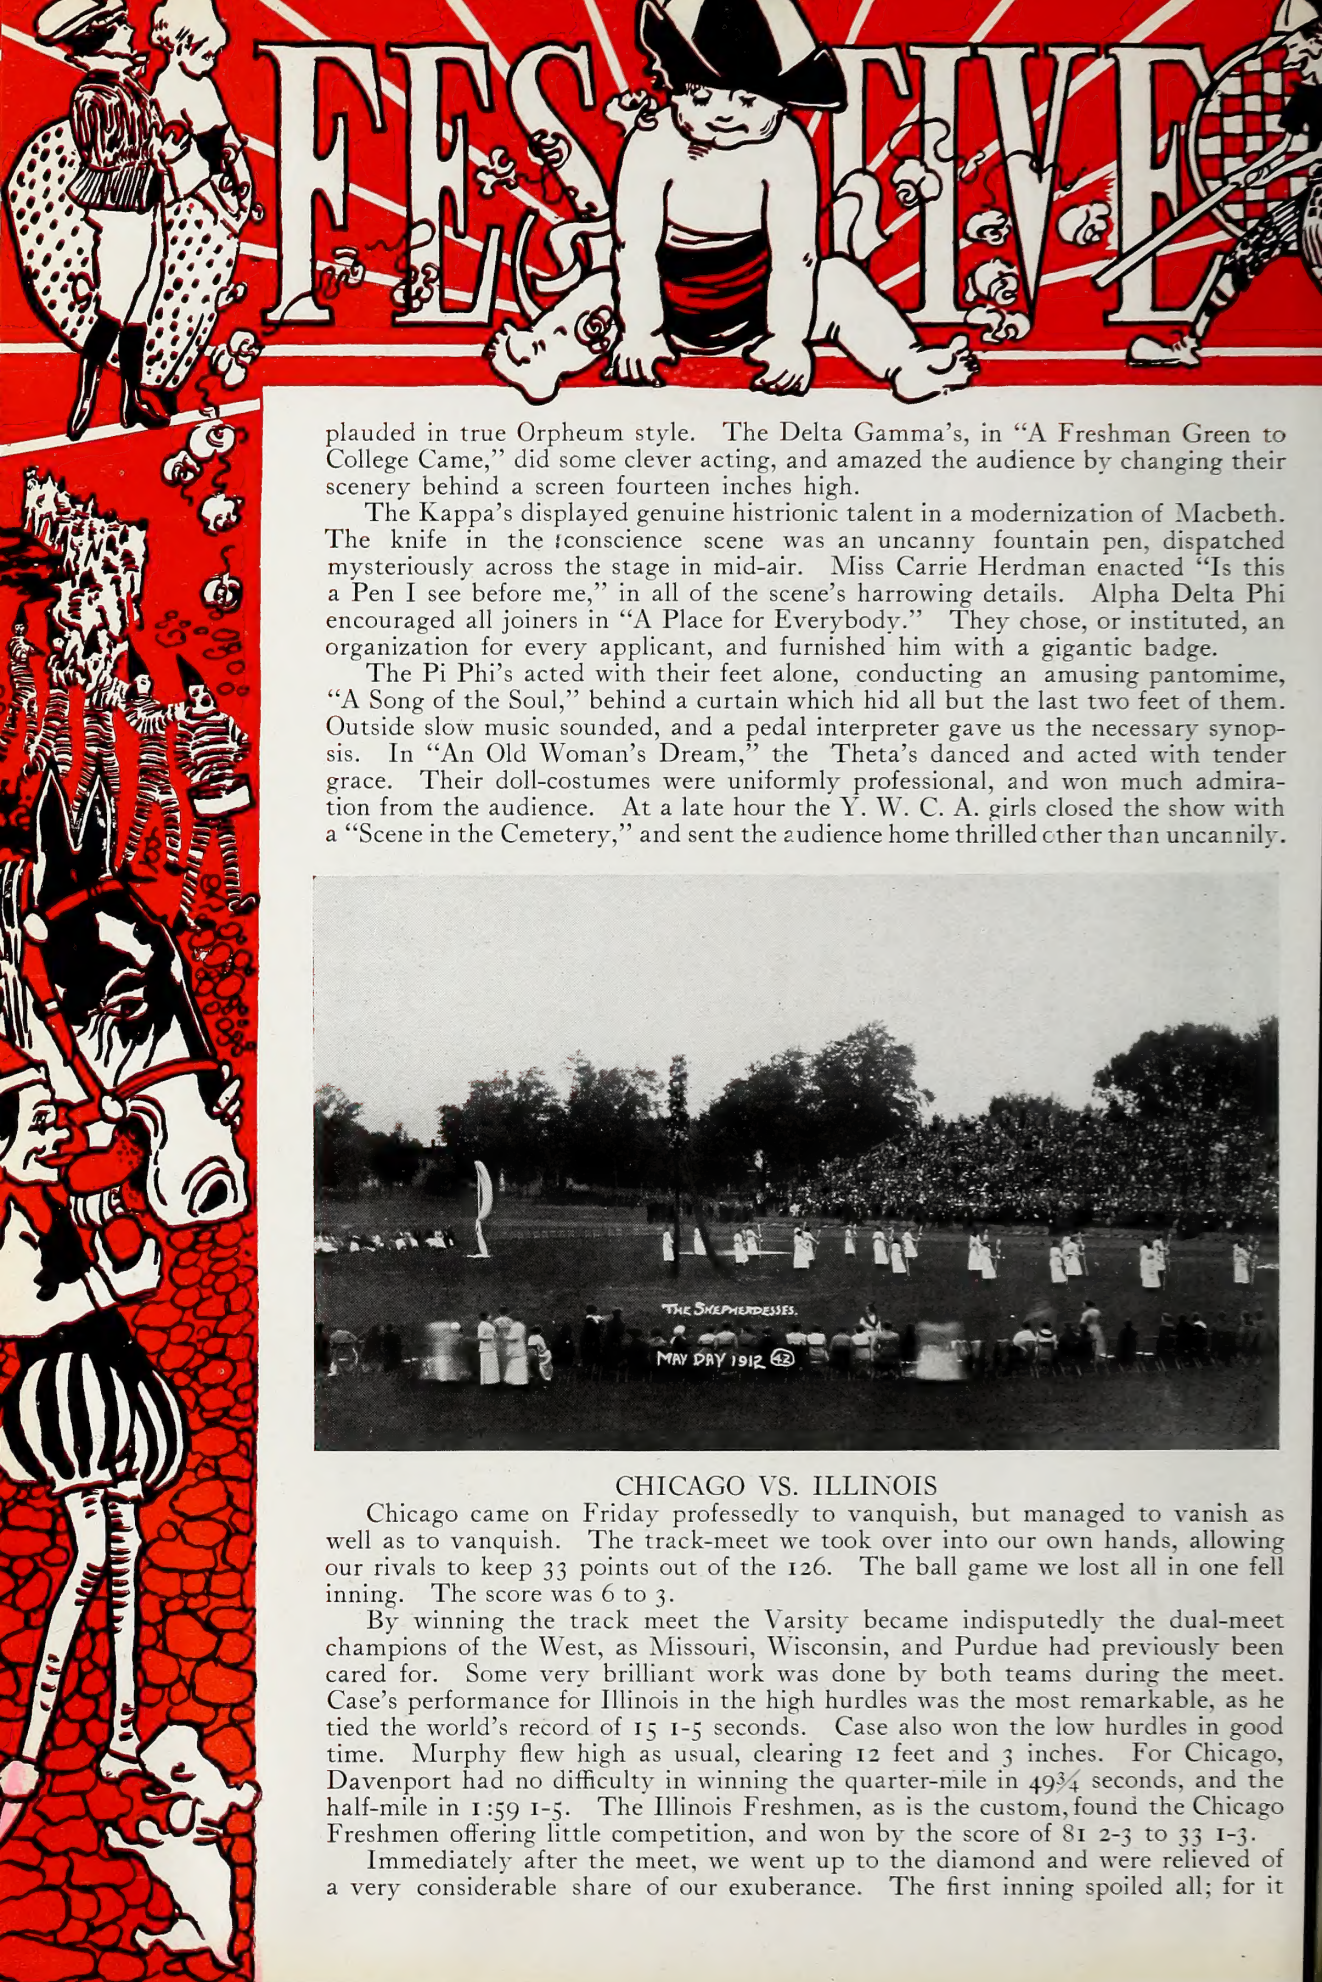

The Girl's Stunt Show was excessively popular. Morrow Hall housed the excess. Our heroines, not content with infection by the bacilli of pneumonia and masculine admiration on Illinois Field and in the Auditorium, respectively, even repeated their stunts in Morrow Hall. Both audiences, it was reported by a correspondent who was in both places at the same time, were genuinely enthusiastic, and proclaimed the Stunt Show a glittering success.

The loving cup went, by the decision of the judges, to the Athenian Literary Society, who played "A Cramming Process," while Alpha Xi Delta, in "Moonlight at Illinois," was accorded second place. The Athenians presented an original series of shadowgraphs, the scenes being visualizations of the fickle fancies rioting through the head of a petulant calculus crammer at one side of the stage. A scene on the bleachers, and a romantic sort of canoe which actually glided, were the most memorable efforts. The Alpha Xi's cleverly constructed a row of dolls across the stage. Wondrous to relate, these creations suddenly took life and danced and sang with other than mechanical sweetness; and the audience grew boisterous with appreciation when it became apparent that the heads of the dolls belonged to various members of Alpha Xi Delta, and that the feet were the hands of other Alpha Xi's clad in pumps.

The Woman's Glee Club started the entertainment, soberly though effectively, with three well sung numbers. The Alethenai, coming next, gave, in placard-morality style, a laughable "Take-Off on Summer Baseball," satirizing poignantly the current Conference wrangle. Phi Beta's, "If the Fairies Only Would," furnished some really attractive dancing. The fairies tripped about in bluish gauze, and managed to tantalize the audience by squelching the baseball boors from Chicago, wrecking the Helmet hobby-horse, and freeing a leaden senior from a burden of exam-books. "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," by the Alpha Chi's, introduced some very amusing parodies on popular songs which were heartily applauded in true Orpheum style. The Delta Gamma's, in "A Freshman Green to College Came," did some clever acting, and amazed the audience by changing their scenery behind a screen fourteen inches high.

The Kappa's displayed genuine histrionic talent in a modernization of Macbeth. The knife in the conscience scene was an uncanny fountain pen, dispatched mysteriously across the stage in mid-air. Miss Carrie Herdman enacted "Is this a Pen I see before me," in all of the scene's harrowing details. Alpha Delta Phi encouraged all joiners in "A Place for Everybody." They chose, or instituted, an organization for every applicant, and furnished him with a gigantic badge.

The Pi Phi's acted with their feet alone, conducting an amusing pantomime, "A Song of the Soul," behind a curtain which hid all but the last two feet of them. Outside slow music sounded, and a pedal interpreter gave us the necessary synopsis. In "An Old Woman's Dream," the Theta's danced and acted with tender grace. Their doll-costumes were uniformly professional, and won much admiration from the audience. At a late hour the Y. W. C. A. girls closed the show with a "Scene in the Cemetery," and sent the audience home thrilled other than uncannily.

CHICAGO VS. ILLINOIS

Chicago came on Friday professedly to vanquish, but managed to vanish as well as to vanquish. The track-meet we took over into our own hands, allowing our rivals to keep 33 points out of the 126. The ball game we lost all in one fell inning. The score was 6 to 3.

By winning the track meet the Varsity became indisputedly the dual-meet champions of the West, as Missouri, Wisconsin, and Purdue had previously been cared for. Some very brilliant work was done by both teams during the meet. Case's performance for Illinois in the high hurdles was the most remarkable, as he tied the world's record of 15 1-5 seconds. Case also won the low hurdles in good time. Murphy flew high as usual, clearing 12 feet and 3 inches. For Chicago, Davenport had no difficulty in winning the quarter-mile in 49¾ seconds, and the half-mile in 1:59 1-5. The Illinois Freshmen, as is the custom, found the Chicago Freshmen offering little competition, and won by the score of 81 2-3 to 33 1-3.

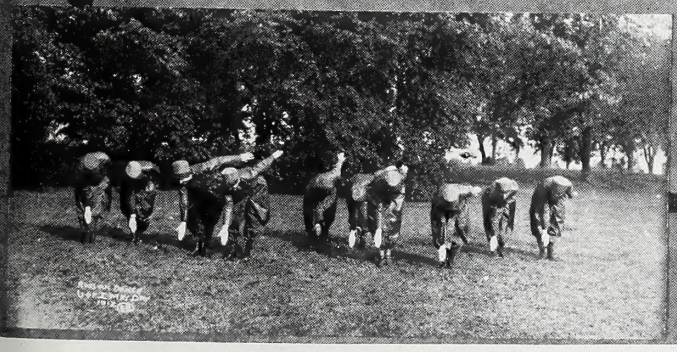

Immediately after the meet, we went up to the diamond and were relieved of a very considerable share of our exuberance. The first inning spoiled all; for it was then that Watts, a bit wild, and the fielders behind him, a bit careless, delivered up five scores to Chicago. After that the team played a remarkable game, but all their efforts could produce only three runs. The crowd, one of the largest ever at an Illinois game, lent its encouragement in vain. At any rate, the Interscholastic visitors were given an admirable exhibition of Illinois spirit and Illinois baseball skill—after the first.

THE ORATORICAL CONTEST

The Interscholastic Oratorical Contest was enlivened last year by a new feature, extempore speeches. The contestants were notified as to their subjects only an hour and a half beforehand. Paul Scott, of Alton, who spoke on "Agriculture in the Public Schools," was adjudged best. Miss Madeline Woods of Joliet, "The Red-Cross Society," was second; and Frank Bach of Rockford, "The Panama Canal," was third.

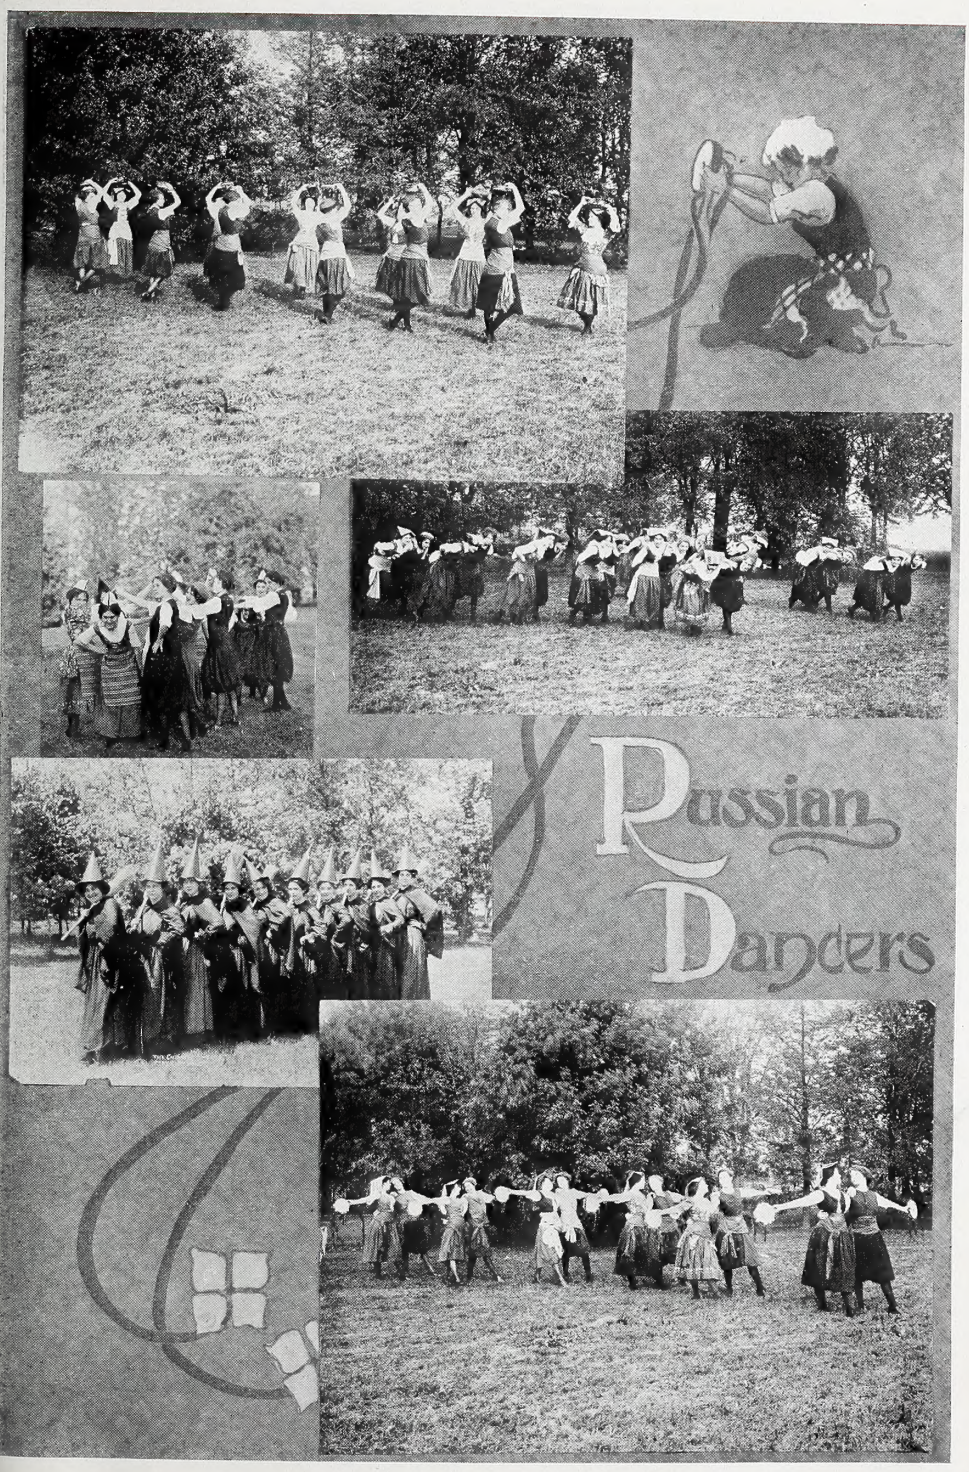

In the regular contest, in which memorized orations were given, Irving Brown of Rockford, on "Napoleon," placed first; Northcott Thomas of Danville, on "The True Patriotism of Lee," was second; John Midskiff of Biggsville, on "The Orators of the Revolution," was third; and Bruce Brady of Monmouth on "The American Ideal," was fourth.

THE INTERSCHOLASTIC TRACK MEET

Six hundred athletes from ninety high schools in this and adjoining states furnished interesting competition at the Twentieth Annual Interscholastic Meet Saturday morning. Lane Technical High School of Chicago won the banner by securing eighteen points. Oak Park, with seventeen points, came next. The remaining points were distributed among thirty-one high schools.

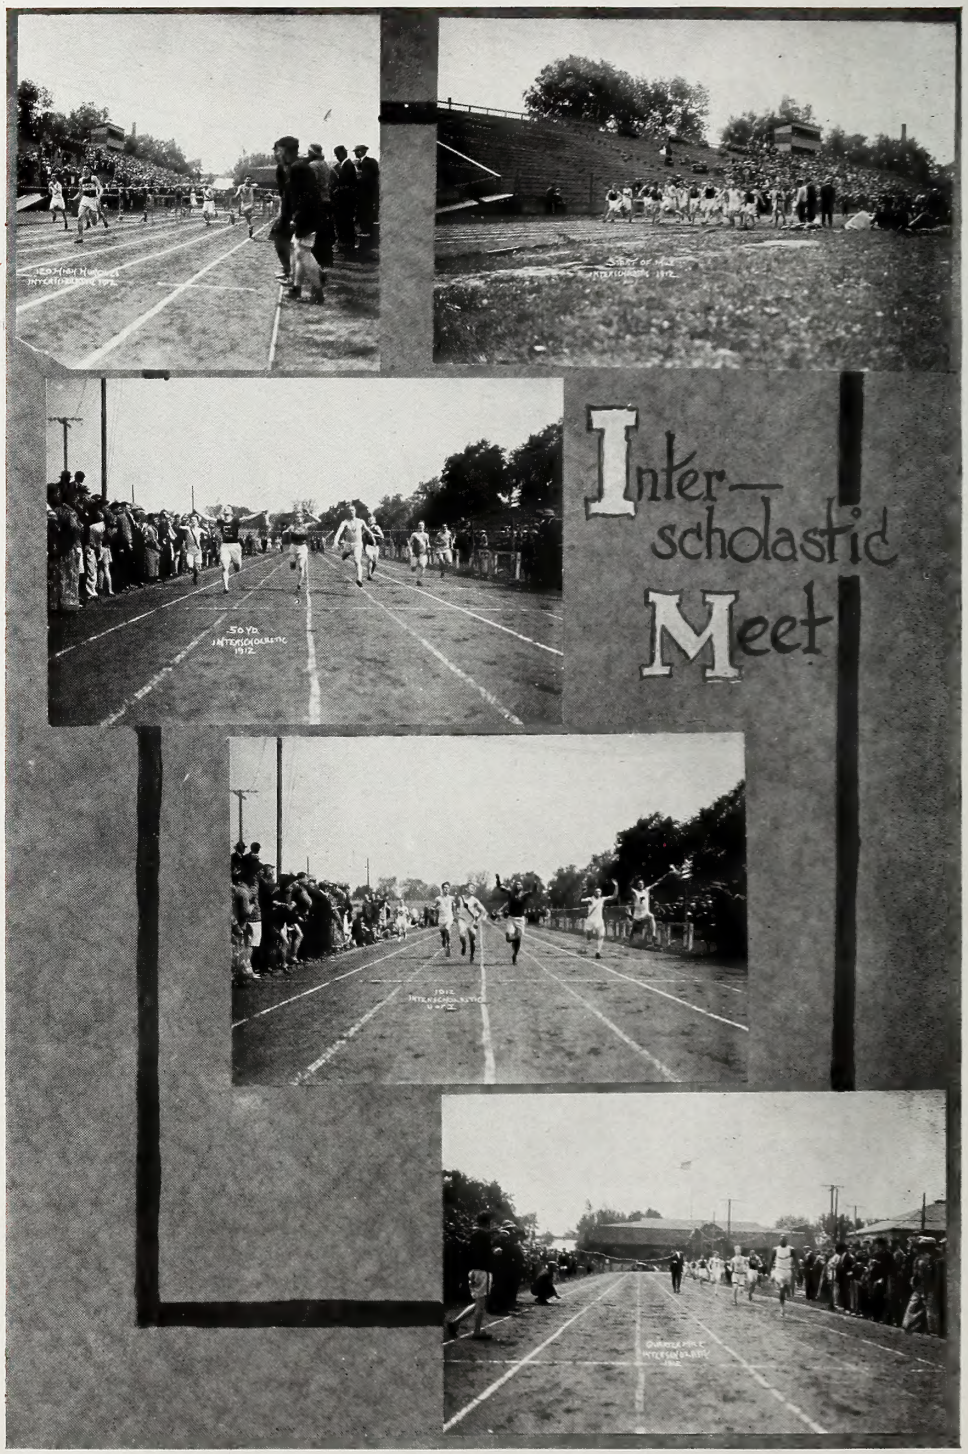

On account of the strong wind which blew all morning, no new records were made; although in two events, the high and the low hurdles, previous marks were equalled. For Lane, Pollard and Blueitt, colored men, did the most creditable work. Bachman of Englewood won thirteen points in the weights, making himself the individual star of the meet, and winning third place for his school. For Urbana, Brewer in the dashes and Mason in the distance runs secured nine points, the best showing a local team has made since 1894, when Urbana won the meet.

Hobo Band

The one bright spot in the activities of Saturday afternoon was not the game. To be sure, we beat Northwestern 14 to 6; but it was in a game memorable for fifteen errors and unsurpassable lifelessness. The bright spot, to resume, was the Hobo Band.

The Seniors for once had thrown aside all inclination toward that monster, Work, and had become active members of the leisure class. That dignity we hear so much about was absent, and its quandom bearers were deep in aboriginal and vocational experiences of a very fascinating sort. The men met in maudlin array at the Half-Way house, and marched to the sweet accompaniment of Senior lungs, Aeolian lyres, and raucous cowbells, from there to Illinois Field. Here they drew all the attention that the tremendous crowd was capable of bestowing. Their antics were laughable, and most absurd. A passion for fraternal correction seized them, and they stormed the fearing heights of the bleachers in search of seniors in plain clothes. Many they found, and as many they daubed (on the collar, the shirt-front, and the countenance) with multi-colored grease-paint. The non-participants thus having been forced into participation, and Pete, Leo G., and G. Huff having been branded ex officio, the spirited hoboes held a session of frolic on the green of the diamond until the game began. "Shorty" Webb, four feet six, and "Shorty" Waters, six feet four, made up to represent, respectfully, Herr Pfankenschmidt and Uncle Sam; R. C. McLarty, a hobo dandified; Ed Styles, a ballet dancer; C. K. White, in a track suit and a barrel; "Hod" Green and "Red" Worsham, in striped (basket)ball-and-chain convict costume; A. B. Van Deusen, a Hindu; Julius Goebel, with another trained bear; Paul Fritchey, invisible in a giant cannon firecracker—these were perhaps the most brilliant of the fools. So they romped and ranted until the umpire shouted "Play Ball!"

The Circus

Ten thousand laugh-racked people saw the seventh annual Interscholastic Circus, a three-ringed affair with thirty-two acts, forty clowns, two bands, and perfect weather. The football field was brilliantly illuminated for the occasion, and seemed proud to be the scene of one of Illinois' most characteristic and famous fetes. We wonder what the students of seven years ago, who held the circus in the "Gym", would have thought of this year's performance.

The stunts followed one another in dazzling succession, each one portraying something startling and original and, as was often the case, biting and blighting in its satire. Of the acts given by single organizations, that of Beta Theta Pi won the cup for first prize. The Beta's conducted an "Orange and Blue" dance on the middle platform, permitting monstrous violations of the anti-novelty rules in dancing. These improprieties disappeared upon the arrival of Dean Clark and Mrs. Fawcett, who, in justifiable wrath, cleared the floor entirely. But lo! when all had quieted, the Pair of Correction, seemingly with one impulse, executed a dance far more atrocious than the others. Second prize was won by Phi Kappa Psi, who enacted "A Sorority-House Robbery," a timely piece of satire on recent thefts about the University. Two burglars stealthily approached a palatial sorority-home, and we could see them appropriating a valuable collection of dish-pans and old shoes. As they were taking a rattling departure they were discovered from within and subjected by the enraged sisters to a mauling too pitiful to describe. The Cosmopolitan Club won third prize with "Prexy's Reception Abroad." "Prexy" was entertained in royal style by ambassadors from different nations.

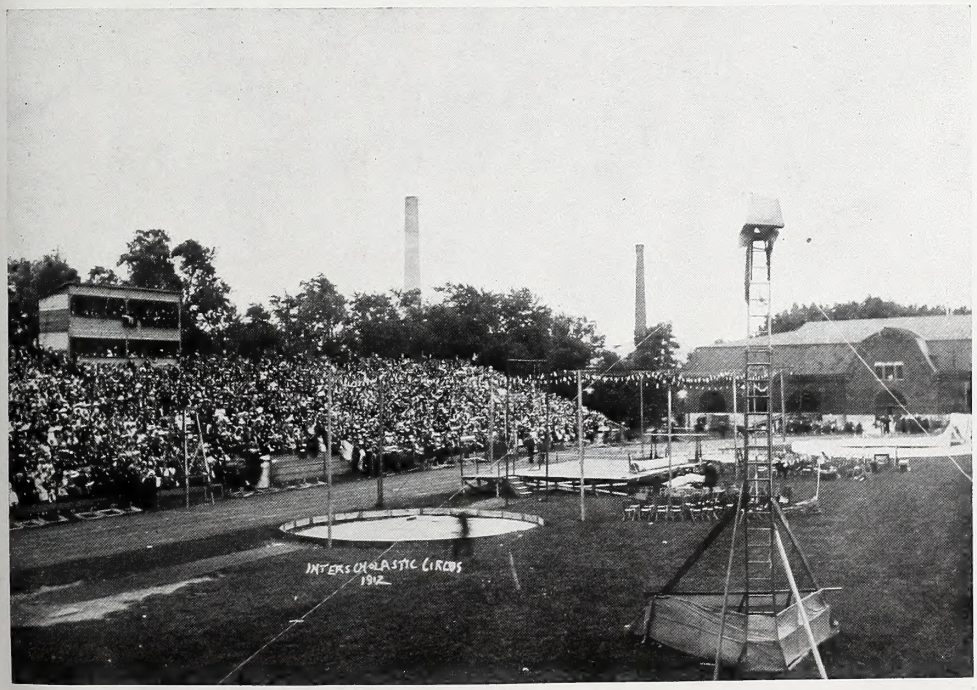

The clowns were a decidedly prominent constellation. A. L. Glick twinkled in first-magnitude fashion. M. M. Wolter, a Chief of Police, was next best, and J. H. Barnett was third. The clowns performed an amazing number of ludicrous pranks.

The prize for large organizations was awarded to Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Alpha Delta, and Delta Kappa Epsilon, whose members staged very elaborately and very creditably a Mexican bull-fight, with gory bulls, staggering horses and valiant toreadors. The gym-team performed with customary excellence; L. W. Ramsey juggled with surprising dexterity; Frank Shobe, for Alpha Sigma Phi, exhibited some of the skill in horsemanship which has won for him the championship of the Northwest; and Harry Polkowski and Max Leichsenring wrestled to a brilliant conclusion. The rest was pure fun, of a variety such as the following list will show:

"Two-minute Talk by William Jennings Bryan" (lasted two hours).
"Meeting of the Conference Board"—Sigma Nu.
"A Bum Serenade"—Alpha Tau Omega.
"Hall of Fame"—Psi Upsilon.

CHICAGO GAME

Third Annual Homecoming

The spirit of Illinois Homecoming is a blessed thing, beloved from state to state. From every quarter come alumni; young and old, stalwart and decrepit, gay and sober—on they come in joyous anticipation, while "Welcome Home, Homecomers" greets them from four thousand student throats. The spirit is blessed because it is hearty, because it is universal, because it is progressive. It spurs the students to emulation, and to earnest, productive labor; it stings the graduates with the ancient flame of student idealism, and crams their worldly heads with limitless ambitions once again.

More alumni came back this year than ever before. From the earliest classes and from the latest; a thousand or more returned to wonder, to criticise, to praise. Among the fraternities alone six hundred and fifty men came back. We wonder what impression we made upon our guests—whether we showed ourselves worthy of our position, and won their genuine respect; we hope we did. We hope that all the pains we took (with rooter hats, goat buttons, arm bands, bunting, streamers, and broadly grinning faces) to make them welcome and at ease were not in vain. As to the impression they made on us—suffice it to say that our choicest desire is to develop into the cheerful, prosperous, weighty individuals they showed themselves to be.

With the Homecoming thus established, we see an Illinois tradition well on its way to permanence. That is the best thing of all. Fifty years from now, when it has become an inevitable tendency among alumni to drift back for these few days to meet their college friends, to explore their college haunts, to marvel at the progress since their days, to give freely, as oracles do, of their ponderous advice, to wake up in the morning, perhaps, and tremble over an unprepared lesson or two, to forget not to smoke on the campus—in short, to brand themselves more indelibly with the magic word Illini; then will the spirit of Illinois Homecoming be more fully felt as blessed.

The Senior Hobo Band

Once more, O ye Seniors, ye giddy, romping Hoboes, ye frolicked with fantastic glee; once more ye dizzied us with laughter, and saved thyselves from a moping, dignified conclusion.

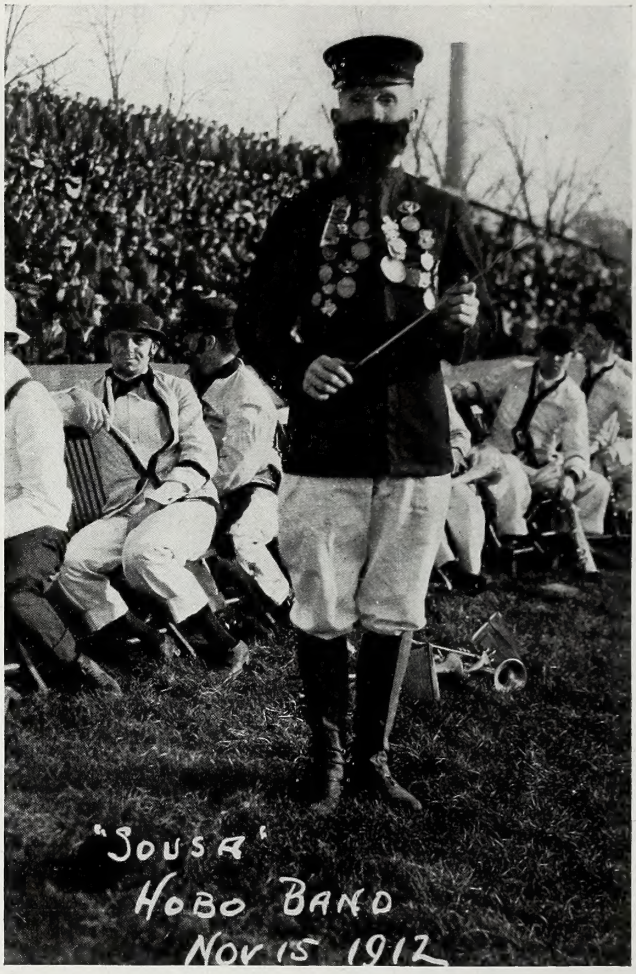

This time, as always before, a motley horde of light-footed, light-headed Seniors assembled at the Half-Way House, and marched with stunning dignity and impressiveness to Illinois Field. A crowd awaited them on the east bleachers; they quickly set to work at their gloomy task of self-amusement, and cavorted for three hours. Some who were there as spectators maintain to this day that some class football games were in progress thruout the afternoon; but the rest of us observed no such thing, and give these creatures credit only for a vivid imagination.

There were no female hoboes this time—the Council had detonated to that effect—and we missed them. Graceful or disgraceful, chivalrous or not, comical or tragical, travesty or not, we had always smiled at those feminine costumes (they had never been indelicate, thanks to student taste), and had admired the ingenuity of the costumed. But this womanlessness counted for little. The band was the largest, the funniest, and the most varied, so the older ones of us say, of all that ever sported on our green.

A German band, dressed in braided costumes of white, came first in the procession to the field. Rusty Bainum led them in a stately march about the gridiron, and finally to some seats directly in front of the bleachers. Then, while the throng of costumed nondescripts scattered to perform their divers comico-vagrant duties, Rusty rendered a succession of crushing numbers after the manners of the famous band masters of the world. As the dapper Sousa he led his pliant musicians through several swinging, vigorous pieces. As Creatore he contorted himself most creditably, flinging his suppliant arms aloft, and disarranging most amusingly his streaming, jet-black locks.

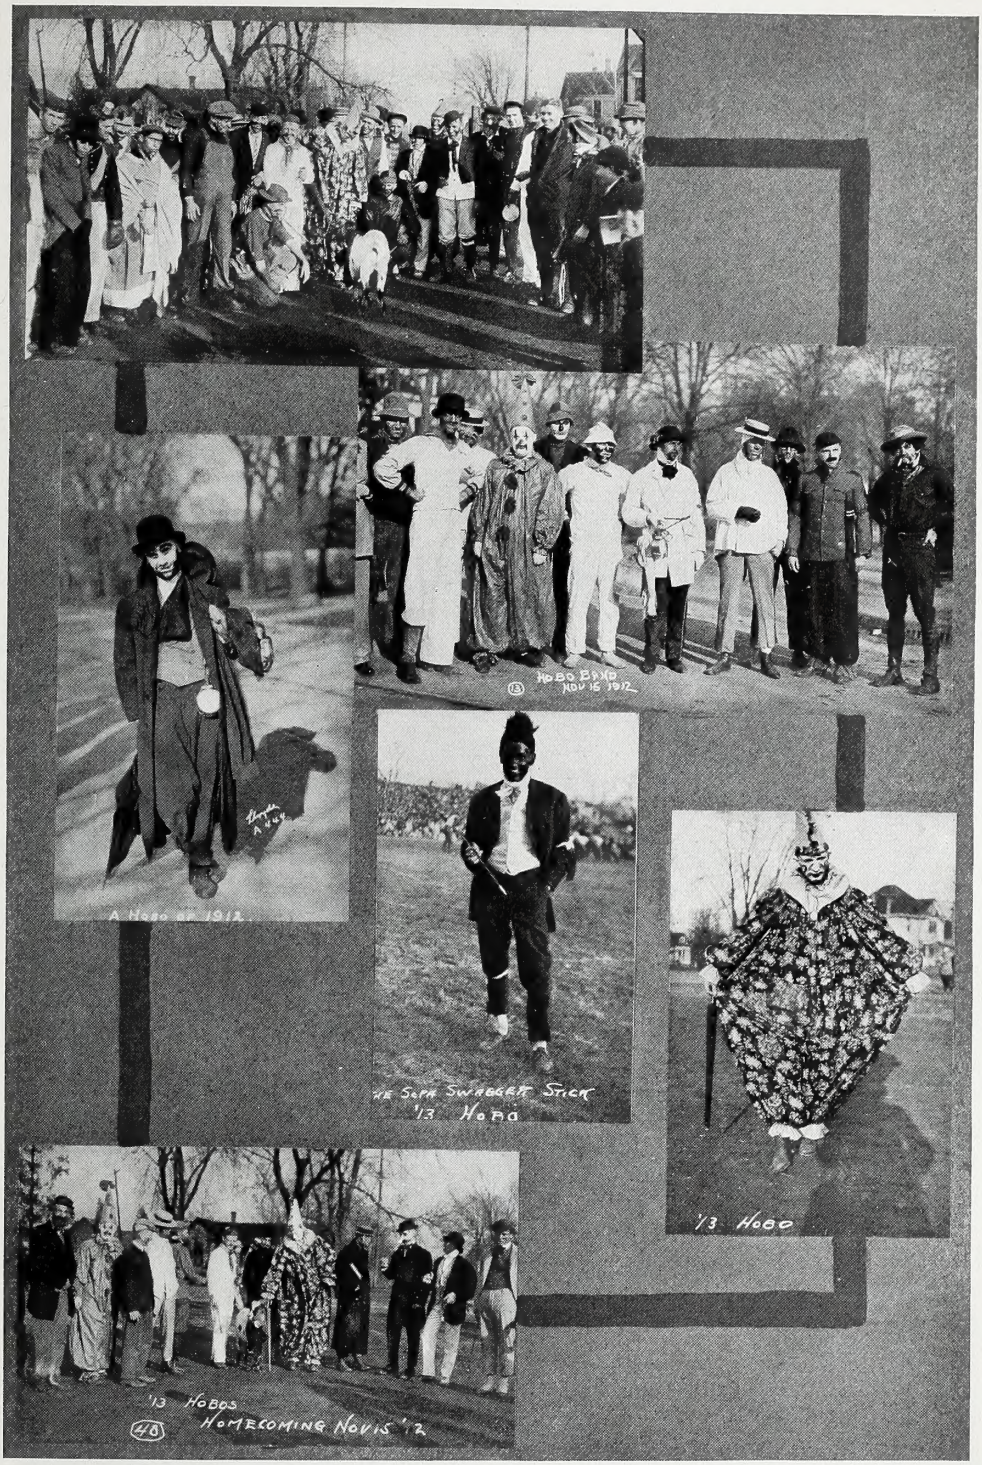

Meanwhile innumerable other feats of brawn and wit were being performed in other parts of the field. A certain vengeful number of the hoboes scaled the heights of the bleachers in search of unfaithful, uncostumed seniors, on purpose to smear their immaculate countenances with glorious grease paint. Plenty of these conventional personages were found and daubed relentlessly—all to the delight of the bloody-minded spectators.

Then there was an old-clothes man of Hebraic origin; a fully-costumed darkey waiter, dispensing delicious liquors from a tray; countless clowns and placarded unfathomables; a poor, droning blind man; a midnight reveller with the essential lamp post; a valiant huntsman; an escaped convict, No. 27395; and—not least by any means—a goat. It was a real goat, real enough to have balking and butting tendencies. Ted Fritchey had him in charge, and underwent many a harrowing experience with his haedine protégé. This goat was intended to be prophetic of a victory over Chicago on the morrow—a capture of Chicago's goat. Of the fulfillment of the prophecy, more hereafter. It is enough to say that on this afternoon our minds were all overborne with anxiety, and our hearts were all tight with goatish desire.

Pre-Contest Enthusiasm

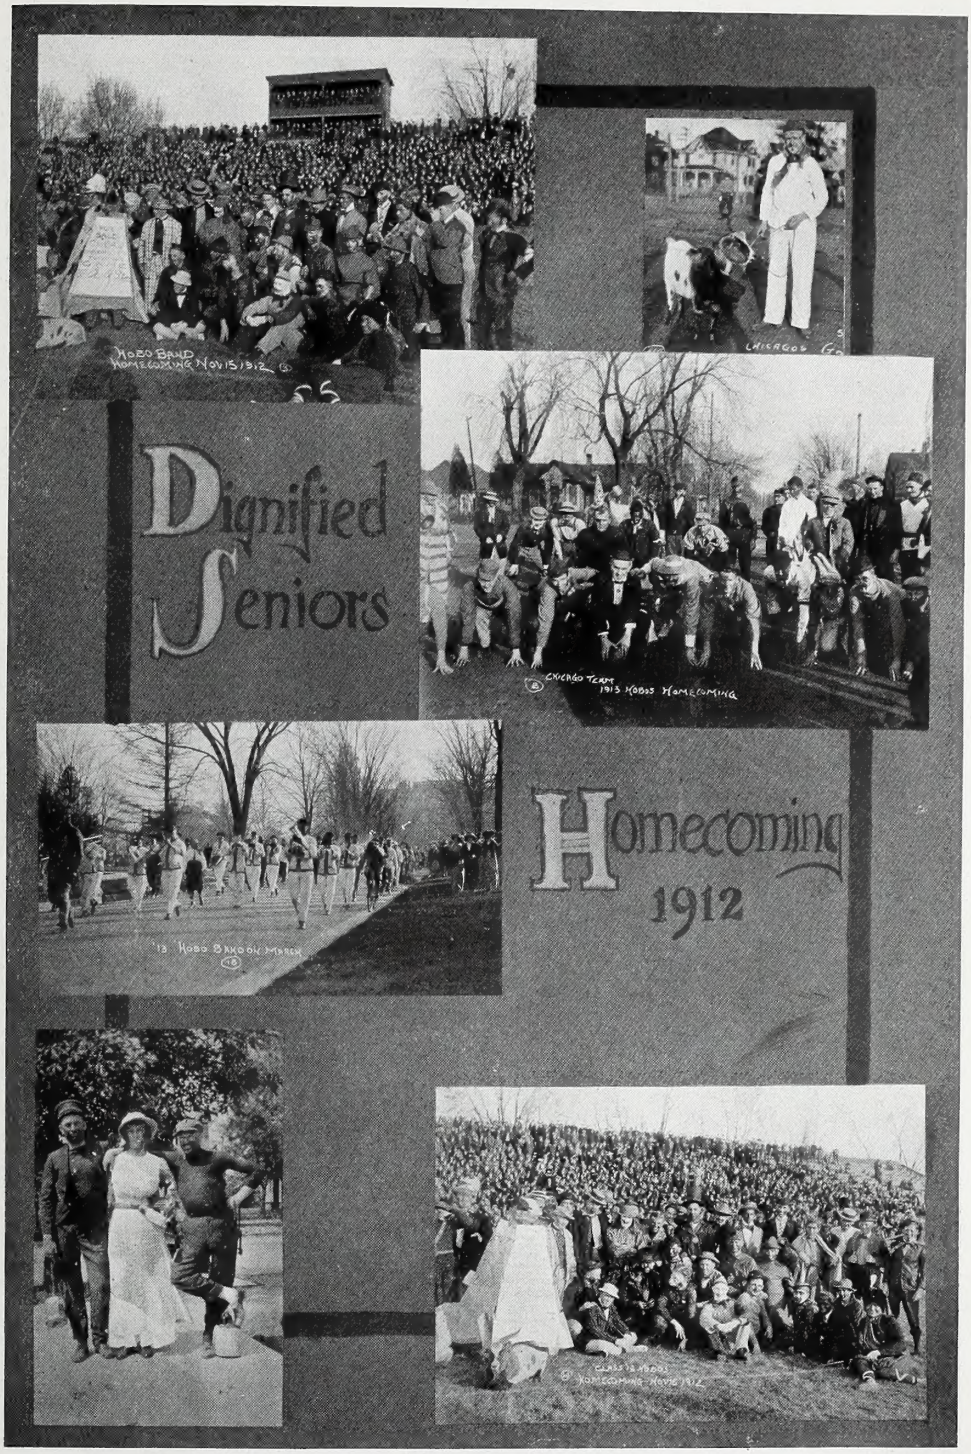

The mass meeting in the Auditorium Friday night was one of the most convincing realities on the Homecoming program. It convinced us of the actuality and the imperishability of Illinois spirit. Three thousand people packed the building; more than a thousand were turned away. The band opened the meeting with several stirring numbers, and then the all-important subject—tomorrow's game—was entered into with flaming enthusiasm. Speeches by "Cap" Woolston, coaches, grads, and students were answered by splendid cheering; encouragement simply forced itself onto the team.

The mass meeting was followed by something equally spirited. Grads and under undergrads poured into the Armory to eat and smoke and saturate themselves with the spirit of "The union of hearts, the union of hands, the union of Illinois men forever." Good feeling and hearty fellowship dominated the meeting, while speeches, songs, and stereoptican views of old teams and old University views furnished material for an absorbing program.

The Alumni Reunion

The lobby of the Y. M. C. A. was an interesting scene Saturday morning. The members of the Alumni Association met there informally and cordially, exchanging experiences, and bestowing with ready hand their mutual congratulations. The Homecoming spirit evinced itself in its most earnest form, both here and in the meeting which followed in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. Here songs were sung, short talks were given, a few tears were dropped, and the alumni were cemented into an Illini whole and forever.

The Game

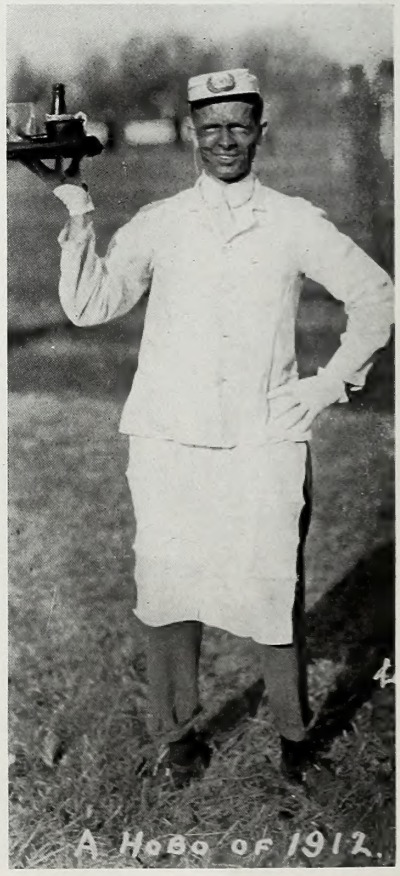

The game that afternoon will long be remembered; not for the victory, for that was Chicago's; the game was remarkable for its trappings and its suits of Illinois spirit.

Twelve thousand people thronged the bleachers, East, West and North. Twenty-four thousand lungs did hearty yeomens' service. Twelve thousand bags of confetti showered down and fluttered their chromatic encouragement to the team. Twelve thousand streamers uncurled in the breeze and knit as many rooters into a fantastic web. Thousands of rooter hats Orange-and-Blued the scene. The cheering was magnificent. The band, a hundred strong, was superb. Victory only was lacking—and after all, that was only a detail.

We Expect You Back Next Year, Homecomers.

BAND AT COMMENCEMENT

After a brief respite following exams, the military band which figured all through the week, began the Commencement week gayeties with a Concert Prom in the armory. The real exercises began on Sunday with the Baccalaureate Sermon. Here for the first time was the impressive procession of seniors in cap and gown, from the Library around picturesque old University Hall and across the campus to the Auditorium.

The Class Day exercises on Monday were bright and entertaining—the class's last frolic in clashing wit; and in the afternoon a fine Band Concert was given on the campus lawn. That night the Senior Ball was the crowning social event of the year—the beautiful decorations, the enchanting music, the pretty gowns, and the fascinating "Senior Waltz," when the class colors were used entirely in lighting.

Tuesday morning the Seniors met with the Alumni for the first time, and the afternoon and evening were taken up with the play so well presented by our dramatic club, and "Prexie's" reception.

The Senior Breakfast the last day infused the spirit of commencement into the Seniors and their friends, and after the time-honored services in the Auditorium, students, seniors, alumni, and faculty, gathered near the Library, joined in the last song before parting—our grand old "Illinois." —KATHERINE CHASE

The 1912 Pushball Contest

For many days they gathered their forces, the valorous Sophomores and the daring Freshmen. Day after day they devised new modes of attack, fresh systems of warfare, strange tricks of cunning. The courage of every man was roused to the highest point and forced to stick there by class-loyalty. Dauntlessly boasted the freshmen; more valiantly strove the Sophomores. The class of '16 exceeded the class of '15 in numbers by score after score—they knew it and were exceeding glad. Their strongest, boldest men they hid, that they might escape the insidious ingenuity of their opponents; the Freshman captain concealed himself far from the field of conflict, until the day of the terrible struggle.

The eighteenth of October dawned gloomily, grayly, rainily. By afternoon the south campus was soggy, and the sod gurgled underfoot. But the sun had driven away all but the shadows of the rain, and shone faintly upon the scene of the portentous conflict. The contending classes came onto the field in single file and ranged themselves in battle line. Their splendid uniforms gleamed magnificently in the sun; their faces glowed with determination. When the Sophomores saw the overwhelming numbers of the Freshmen, inwardly they groaned, but outwardly they sustained an air of intrepid scorn.

At the pistol shot the furious fight began. Now the superior force of the class of '16 gained an advantage, now the surpassing skill of the class of '15 regained the ground lost, and more. Up and down the field they toiled, and pushed, and groaned, and struggled. In the mud they fell, but arose to climb ever towards the ball. Now one side scored, and then the other. The men became battered, and bruised, and muddy, but their courage remained invincible. Then came the closing signal, and the contest was over. The Sophomores had won, 25 to 15! Here's to the class of '16—may they win next year! And here's to the class of '15—may their laurels never wither!

Lincoln Hall Dedication

Lincoln Hall, the new two-hundred and fifty thousand dollar building erected at the University of Illinois for the study of the humanities, was formally dedicated on February 12, 1913, the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Governor Edward F. Dunne, Bishop William F. McDowell, President E. J. James, W. C. Zimmerman, state architect, and W. L. Abbott, president of the Board of Trustees, took part in the ceremony of dedication which was held in the Auditorium.

The occasion was the signal for the gathering of scores of famous educators, editors and statesmen from all parts of the country. Morning exercises were held in Morrow Hall where Professor J. E. Woodbridge, of Columbia, Professor Bliss Perry, of Harvard, and Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, spoke before a large audience on subjects of a humanistic nature.

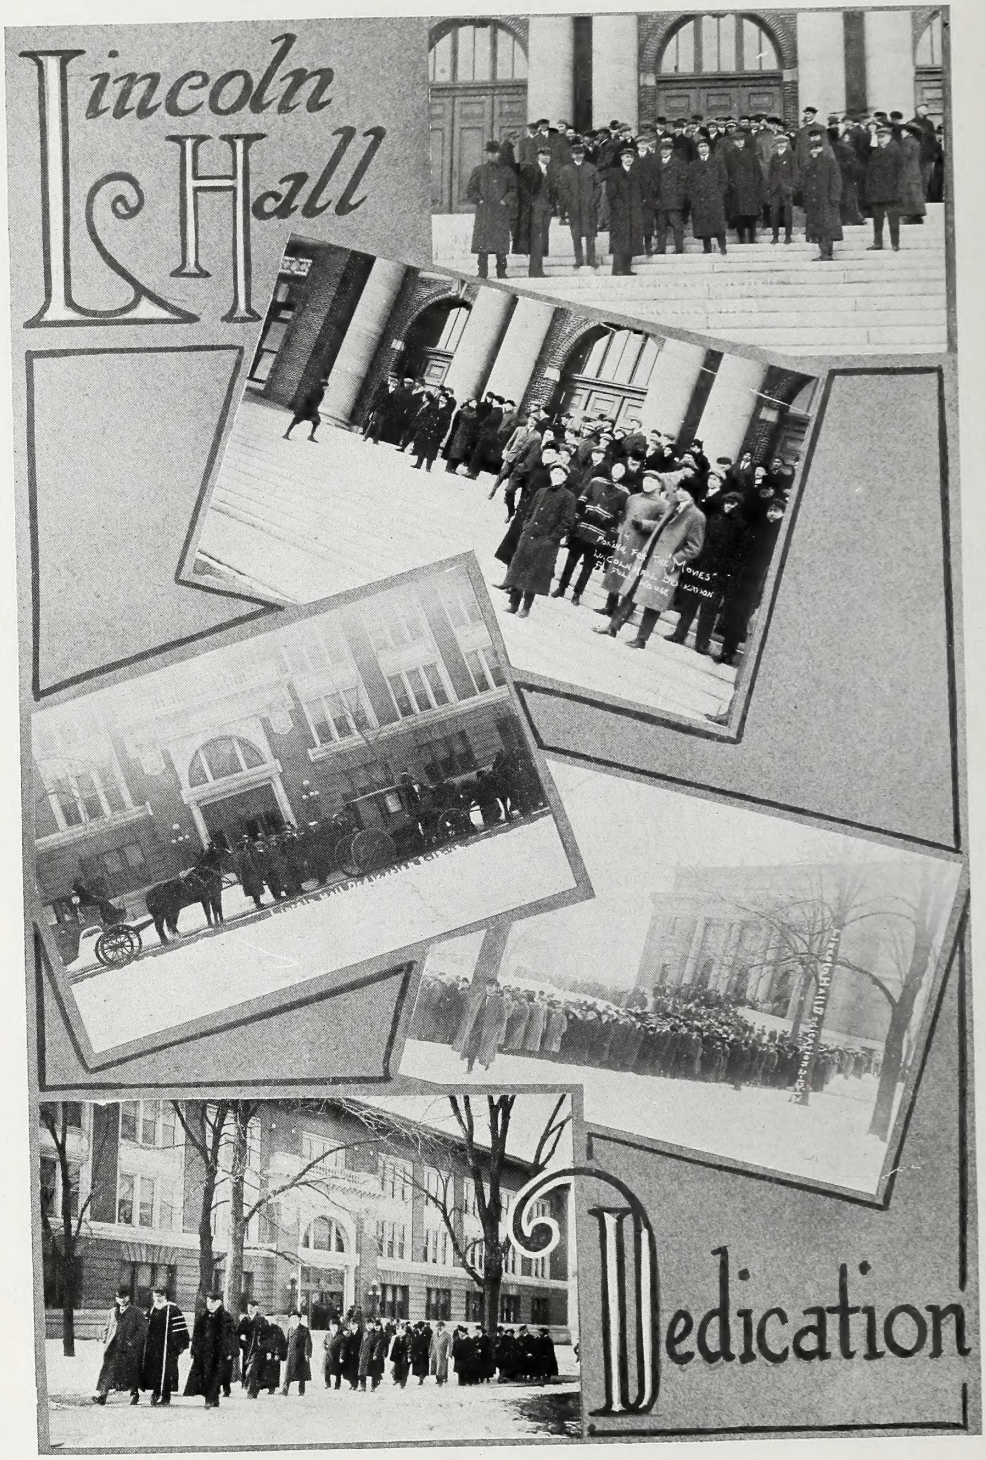

At the ceremony of dedication in the afternoon, the Reverend Hugh Black, of the Union Theological Seminary, spoke on "How Lincoln Appears to the Scotch." The University Auditorium was crowded to its full capacity and many who came late were turned away. Immediately after the exercises in the Auditorium, the meeting was adjourned to Lincoln Hall where Bishop McDowell delivered the prayer of dedication.

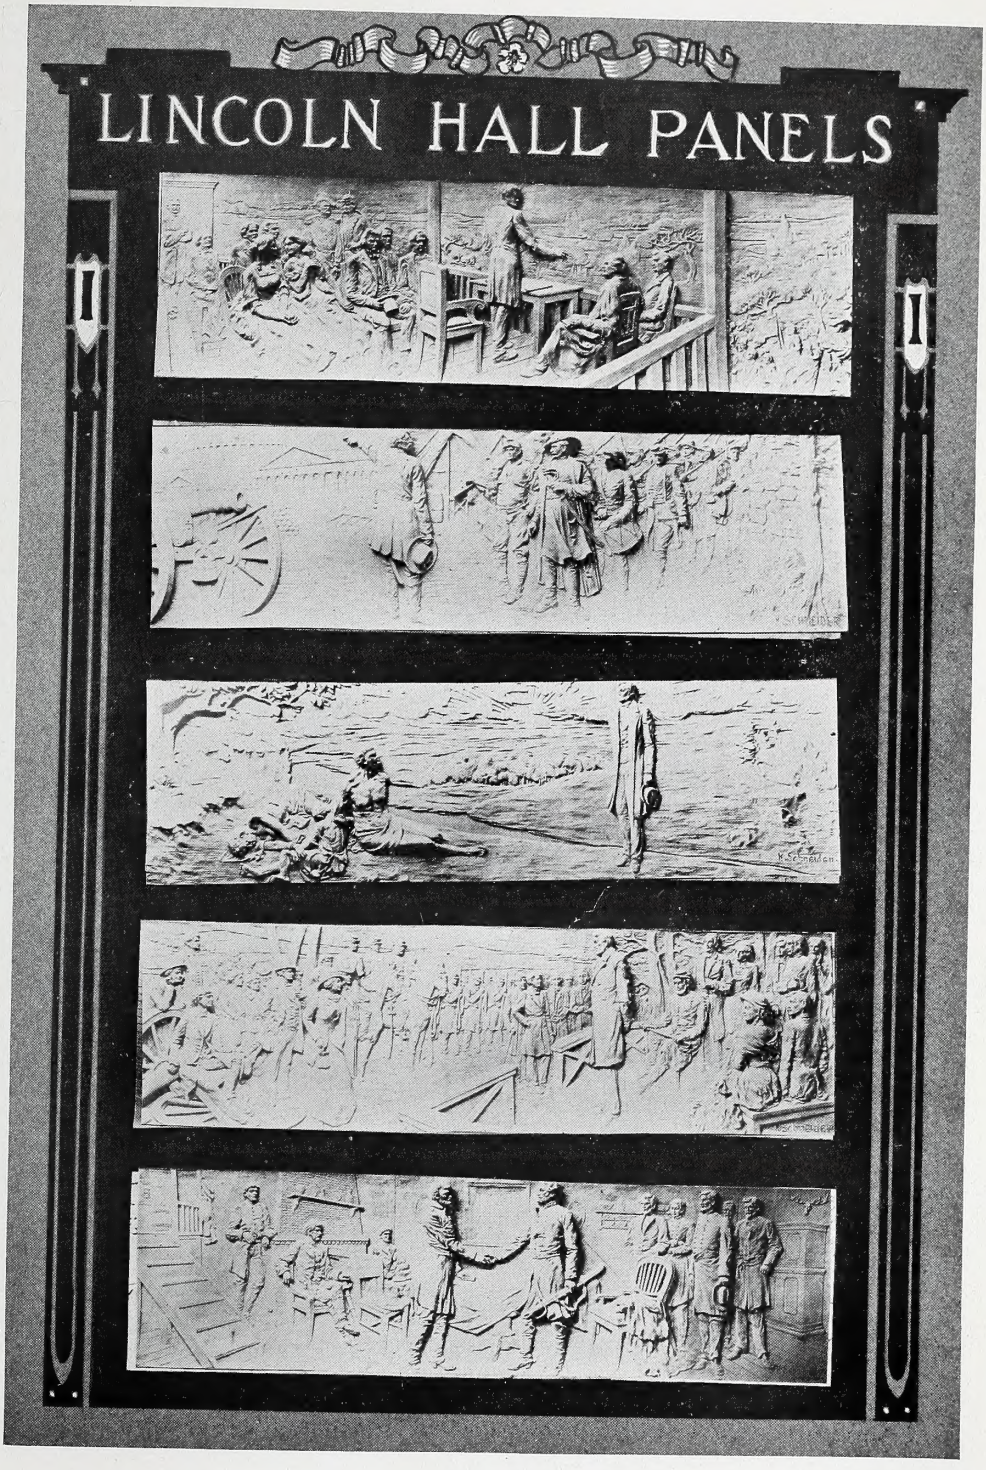

The money for the erection of the building was appropriated at the session of the Illinois legislature in 1909, the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Lincoln. Inasmuch as Lincoln's act of signing the federal Land grant act while president of the United States created state universities and in honor of the great Illinoisan, it was decided to make the building a memorial to him. This idea has been carried out in the scheme of decoration. The entrance from the east is finished entirely in marble. Just inside the doorway and sunk into the floor is a brass tablet bearing Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Encircling the building on the outside, between the second and third stories, is a series of terra cotta friezes and inscriptions indicative of the president's life and of his words of wisdom. Lincoln Hall is four stories high, two hundred and thirty feet long, with wings one hundred and twenty-seven feet in length extending backward. The building is exceptionally well designed for academic purposes. It is devoted to the study of the humanities; classical and modern languages, literature, history, philosophy, and the social sciences.

LINCOLN HALL PANELS

LINCOLN HALL PANELS

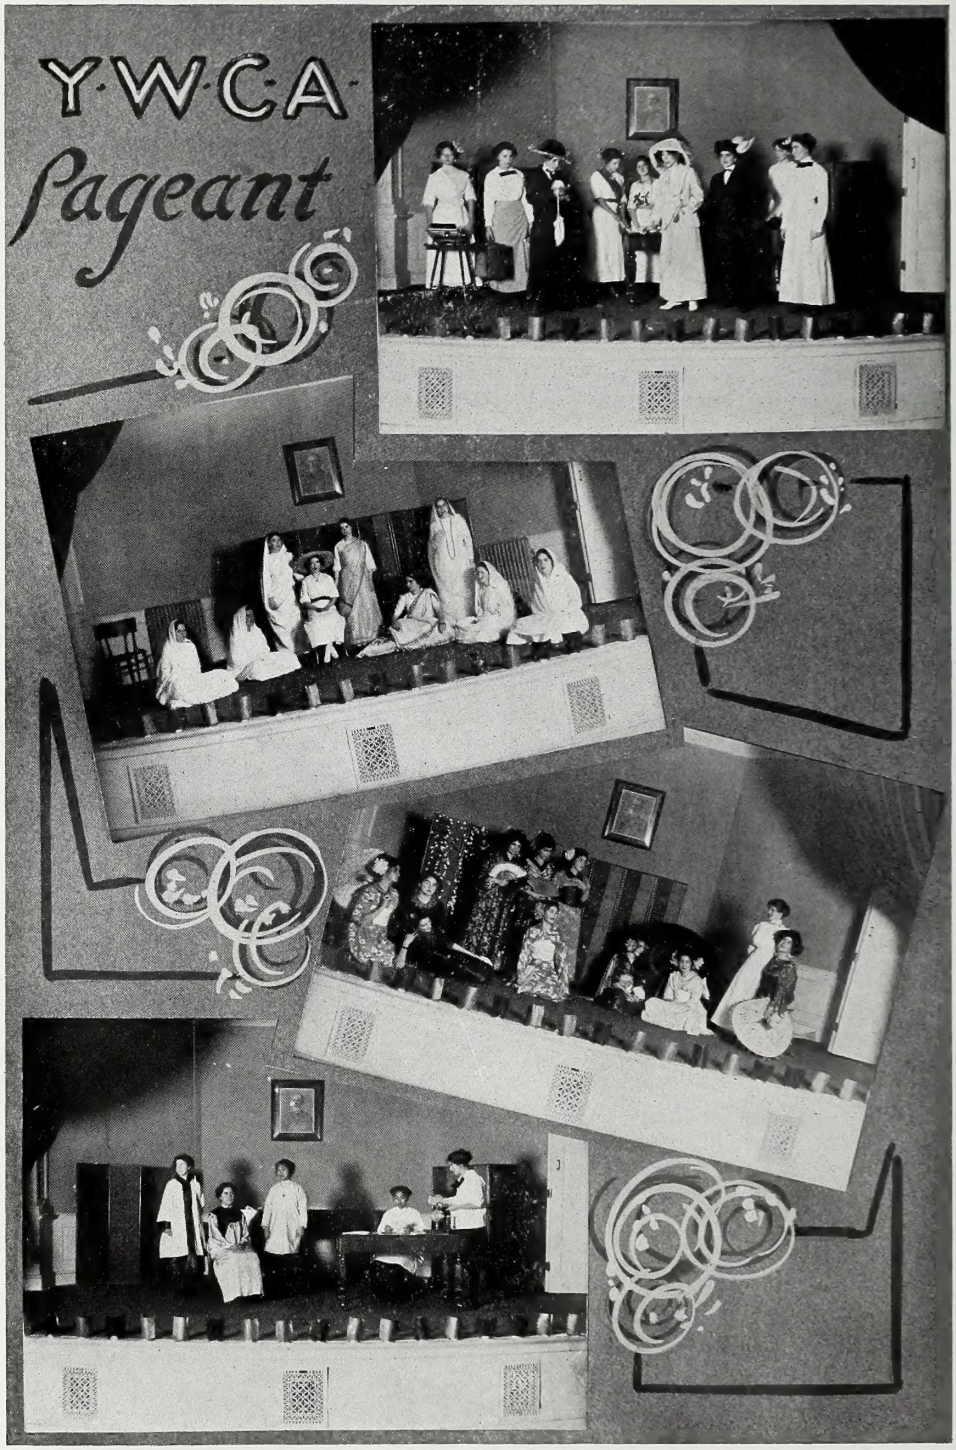

The Post Exam Jubilee, which was held at the Auditorium on the evening of February 4, 1913, is rated as the most successful and entertaining of the eleven annual jubilees that have been presented since the custom was established by P. A. Conard. Every seat in the house was occupied, and every stunt was thoroughly amusing. "Rusty" Bainum, with an orchestra of fourteen pieces, played lively popular music between the stunts. Kappa Sigma won the cup for first place with a stunt "The Follies of 1912," which fully deserved the place it gained. A student about to go home after "flunking out" the first semester dreams of his college life since his advent as the greenest of freshmen. The fellows introduce him to all the follies which he is to avoid, and to the college dignitaries. Dean Fawcett, Dean Clark, Leo G. Hanna, and Major Morse form a quartet which sings an amusing variation of "I'm the Guy." The whole presentation was witty and quick of action.

Phi Kappa Sigma was second in a portrayal of "His Parents' Visit." The student son is in the midst of all sorts of student gaieties when he receives word of his parents' intended visit. The way in which every sign of hilarity is obliterated and evidences of deep study introduced, is truly entertaining. The "Sillynoiances" of Acacia won third place. A chorus of artists, each with his drawing board and stool, gave little chalk songs on popular subjects. The stunt was airy and frivolous, but clever and diverting notwithstanding.

Zeta Psi presented "Before and After; or the Value of a College Education." The whole affair was in pantomime, portraying students in college, and afterwards in life. This was the only stunt without music. The Chi Psi's began their representation of "The Frivolous Dean" in a novel way, by creating a disturbance in the audience which many thought was real. Perhaps the Chi Psi's meant to be iconoclasts—perhaps not; at any rate, they pictured Dean Clark as none of us has imagined him. "The Camp Meeting" of Chi Beta was very humorous in its presentation. The characters were ludicrously ridiculous in their make-ups, and gained many a laugh from the spectators. The stunt of Phi Kappa Sigma consisted of songs exclusively. The Agricultural Club put on the most elaborate stunt of all in "A County Fair." All the attractions of a real county fair were present, and all the usual heterogeneous groups of country attendants.

Altogether, the jubilee was a well-worked-up affair, without drawbacks of any sort. The whole program was highly diverting and well worth seeing.

Electrical Engineering Show

Few people realize that the E. E. Show is one of the University's best advertising mediums. As a result of the present exhibition, students have received letters from friends on both coasts who have had Illinois called to their attention by the show. Aside from its value as an advertising medium, the show was a necessity, to give expression to the enthusiasm which exists among E. E. students. The exhibition was a success from all points of view. Every man who took part in it was well repaid for his time in experience and knowledge; and the 3500 visitors unanimously expressed themselves as well pleased.

There was on exhibition every piece of electrical apparatus and every electrical phenomenon which it is possible to make interesting to the public. Those in a position to judge say that it far surpassed in interest and decorative beauty anything of the kind which has been seen in the large cities. Leading manufacturers and local dealers were generous in loaning exhibits of commercial appliances, ranging from heavy motors to household and cooking utensils. This part of the show, however, while fully up to the standard of any electrical show, was of secondary interest as compared with that staged by the students themselves. Nowhere else has the public had an opportunity to see, and hear explained, the many peculiar and interesting phenomena which were on exhibition. Telephones and telegraphs, with and without wires, were in operation; the mysteries of the automatic switchboard were made simple and the work of the central girl explained. All forms of commercial electric lights were exhibited in a manner which showed their effects on colors. The Physics department loaned an excellent exhibit, including X-Ray and ultra violet light apparatus. A comprehensive electric cafe and kitchen were in operation, serving a light menu to the guests. A complete railroad in miniature gave the people an opportunity to learn how block signals operate to protect the traveler. By means of a huge Tesla coil and a Pulsen arc, the possibility of sending large currents through the human body at high frequency was demonstrated. Waves of the human voice, as shown by the oscilograph, proved both interesting and instructive. Those not interested in these semi-technical parts of the program were fascinated by a series of electrical and magnetic freaks and fakes, which they will never forget. In addition there was exhibited the telautograph, which transmits writing or drawings by wire, electro-plating, electric printing, electric furnaces, electric block signals, lifting magnets, the pulmotor, and many other devices of electrical interest.

This show was an activity of the Electrical Engineering Society. That organization is to be highly complimented upon its choice of the efficient corps of officers who gave unreservedly of their time and labor for weeks before the show, in its preparation; and under whose direction the society carried it to so triumphant a completion.

History of the Daily Illini

The ordinary student, to whom nothing about a college is older than the two or three years he has spent within its walls, is little likely ever to reflect, as he unfolds his crisp, cleanly-printed Illini, that it is the embodiment of the most time-honored of Illinois' traditions. It seems perenially young, but it is now two years since it celebrated its fortieth birthday. Older than athletics, older than debating, older than fraternities, older than all but the literary societies and the cadet regiment; it has held its place throughout the history of the University as one of the most vital elements in undergraduate life.

In its dingy, irregular beginnings lay not merely the promise of what it has since become—one of the three best college papers in America—and not merely the germs of all the later publications of the school, from the ILLIO to the Siren, but the nurturing impulses from which were born and developed almost every one of our many healthy college activities of today. It has been the foster-mother to every student enterprise. It has always been the focal point in the school life, offering an arena for the training of student leaders, keeping alive sources of general college interest, affording a medium for the dissemination of college news, unifying the student body, and uniting it with the faculty and the spirit of the institution. Its history is that of a force which merits lengthening days and ripe development. Esto Perpetua.

HISTORY OF THE ILLINOIS MAGAZINE

The career of the Illinois Magazine, the literary magazine of the University of Illinois, has been rather erratic, as literary persons and things are rather likely to be. In 1900 the Varsity Fortnightly, "A College Periodical of Some Literature and a Little Art," published unsigned verse, stories, and editorial comment. In 1902 the Fortnightly gave way to the Illinois Magazine, which has continued to the present time with the exception of an inter-regnum when the Scribbler was published. During the six years of the old series, the Illinois Magazine was published by the English Club.

The editors and business managers for the past twelve years have been as follows:

THE ILLINOIS AGRICULTURIST

The Illinois Agriculturist was started as an annual publication of the College of Agriculture in 1897 and was managed by the Agricultural Club. Its purpose has been to advance the agricultural interests in general and to stimulate a desire for agricultural education. The first issue was in charge of A. D. Shamel, '99, Editor-in-Chief; F. D. Linn, '98, associate editor; and E. W. Mitchell, '99, business manager; and consisted of 78 pages. It became a ten page monthly in October, 1902, when edited and managed by A. W. Miner and J. W. Cattron.

The Agriculturist has continued as a monthly and has reached farther and farther out among the followers of agriculture. It is the most prosperous student publication at the University of Illinois, and has the largest circulation of any, having 1700 regular subscribers, many of whom are in the remote districts of South America, India, and the Philippine Islands.

HISTORY OF THE TECHNOGRAPH

The Technograph was established by the civil engineering students of the University of Illinois in 1885, when the only other student publication was the semi-weekly newspaper. It was published annually and contained discussions on current engineering subjects by instructors and students. Two years later it was enlarged to take in the mechanical engineers, and the following year the electrical engineers. It continued in this way until 1910 when it was forced out of the field as a competitor for strictly technical information by the rapid growth of engineering magazines. A complete reorganization followed and a new constitution was adopted, A. F. Westlund becoming editor and H. C. Krannert business manager. It was changed from a technical to a student publication and issued quarterly. The Mining Engineering Society and the Architectural Club were added to the original three societies at this time. In 1911 the Chemical Club replaced the Architectural Club. The magazine is on a firm financial basis and has the hearty support and co-operation of all the engineering students and faculty members.

HISTORY OF THE SIREN

The Siren has just finished her second year of swimming in the foam of endeavor. If Macaulay could devote four volumes to a period of fifty years, justification might be found for the few sentences here devoted to the history of this humorous vixen.

Her principal progenitors were Julius L. Goebel, Calvin White, C. K. White, H. E. Egan, H. W. Weis, R. F. Field and W. F. Fielder. These few met and became, with malice of forethought, the ancestors and christeners of the giggling wench, called Siren. She made her first appearance in November, 1911, and continued to make herself objectionable for the remainder of that school year, appearing seven times. Mr. Goebel, who officially fed her editorial sweet-meats, and Mr. Ward, her manager, brought her through the year sleek and in good condition. At the end of the year 1912-13 she will have decorated the newstands sixteen times; the last nine with Mr. H. W. Weis and Mr. W. F. Fielder as her editor and manager. Her general health and well-being are improving rapidly, gradually she is assuming the last signs of prosperity—a growth from twenty-eight pages to thirty-six pages—the lady is getting fat.

The Ben Franklin Club

HISTORY OF BEN FRANKLIN CLUB

The Ben Franklin Club was organized in the spring of 1913 for the purpose of promoting cooperation among the editors and business managers of the various publications of the University, and for the discussion of editorial and management problems. A dinner is held each month at which some prominent journalist speaks, and at which special topics are discussed. The publications represented are the Illini, Agriculturist, Technograph, Siren, Illio, Alumni Quarterly, and Illinois Magazine.

The Future of the Illio: An Editorial

JOHNS

The future of the ILLIO is a subject which well merits the thoughtful attention and consideration of the student body in general. Has the ILLIO, under the past system of management, realized its fullest possibilities? We would frankly answer, No! The question then remains, wherein has it failed and how can this failure be remedied?

ROPIEQUET

Under the system now in force, the ILLIO is nothing more or less than a private business enterprise of two individuals elected by the Junior class of the University. The editor and the business manager are responsible to no one; neither to the class whom they represent, nor to the University whose name they use. Thus in the hands of unscrupulous men the book can be made nothing more than a lucrative source of profit.

It is not sufficient to sit idly by and condemn such men as "grafters." They have contributed an amount of ceaseless and tiresome labor which the inexperienced cannot begin to comprehend. Then, too, the entire financial responsibility of the book rests upon their shoulders. It is no more than just that they receive adequate compensation for the work and the risk which they have incurred.

It seems evident, then, that under the existing system, the men in control of the ILLIO must either take from the book and reserve for themselves what they are sure will be sufficient compensation, or on the other hand run the risk of being involved in a financial failure. The business cannot be figured close enough in advance to be sure of avoiding both extremes. What then, would be an adequate system? In brief, from our experience, we would suggest the following:

In the first place, by some method a corporation should be established according to law, under whose auspices the ILLIO could be published. The board of trustees of this corporation should comprise four students elected by the junior class and two faculty men elected by the University Senate. The University should audit the accounts of this corporation and be responsible for its general financial policy.

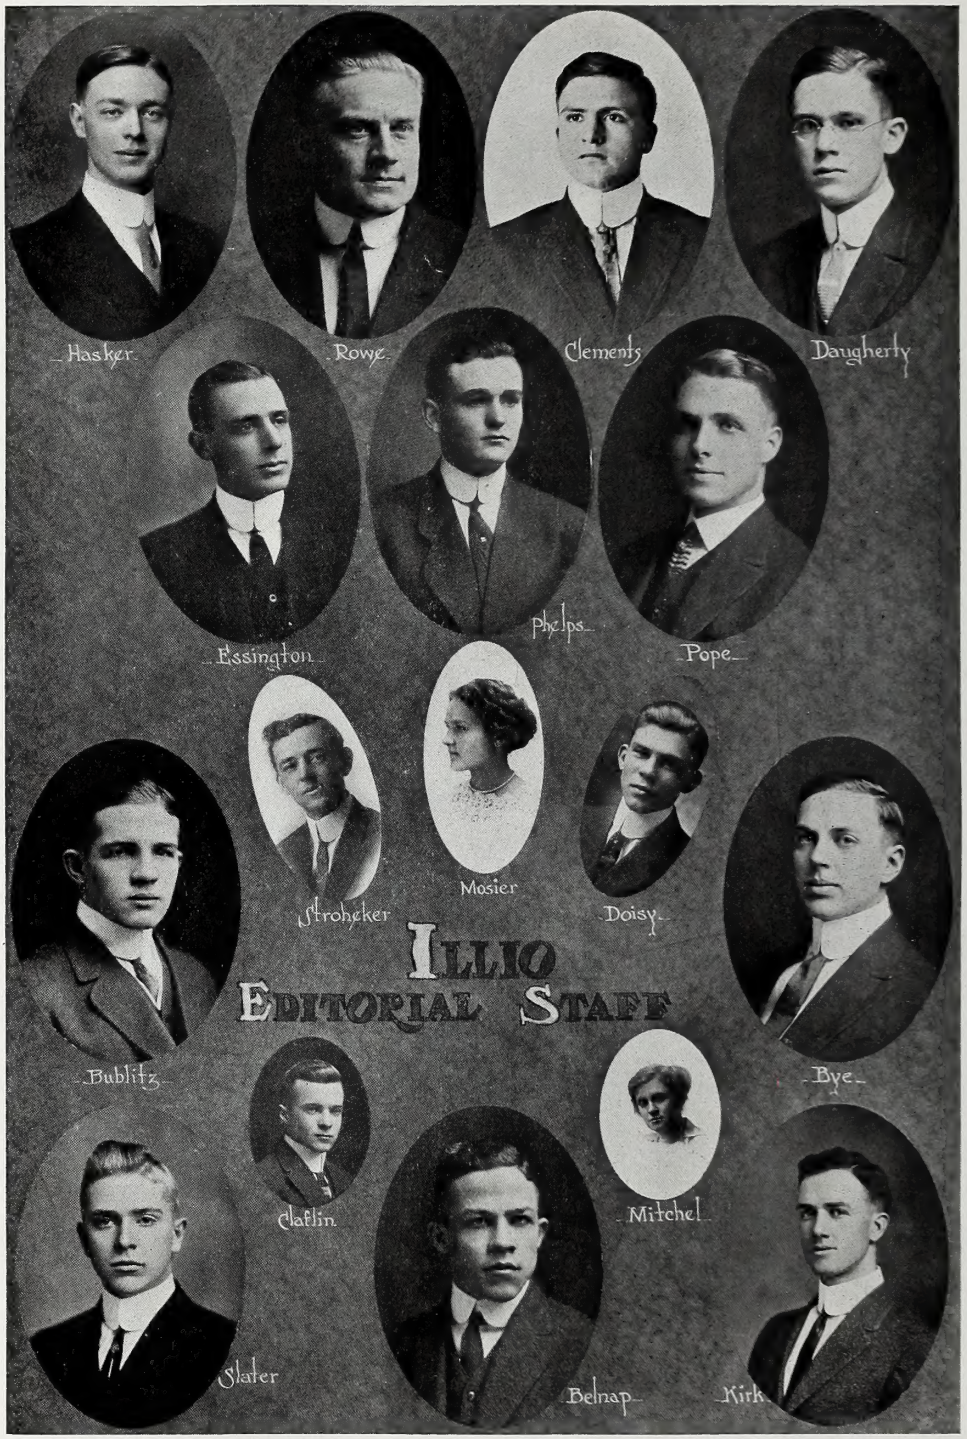

The editor and business manager should be elected by the class as has previously been the custom. Any other system is undemocratic and unsatisfactory. Appointment or indirect election gives undue advantage to members of influential organizations and to adroit politicians. The editor and business manager should be given a salary of four hundred and fifty dollars with an additional percentage based upon the profits of the book. The same amount should be divided between the six or seven men placed in charge of the various principal divisions of the editorial, art, and business staffs, in such proportions as the nature of the work would suggest. The editor and business manager should be given absolute power in the appointment and the removal of members of their respective staffs, and should be made responsible for the work of the same.

The board should not interfere with or hamper the editor or the business manager except in matters of general financial policy. They should, however, be empowered to remove either in cases of extreme necessity and upon explicitly publishing their reasons therefor.

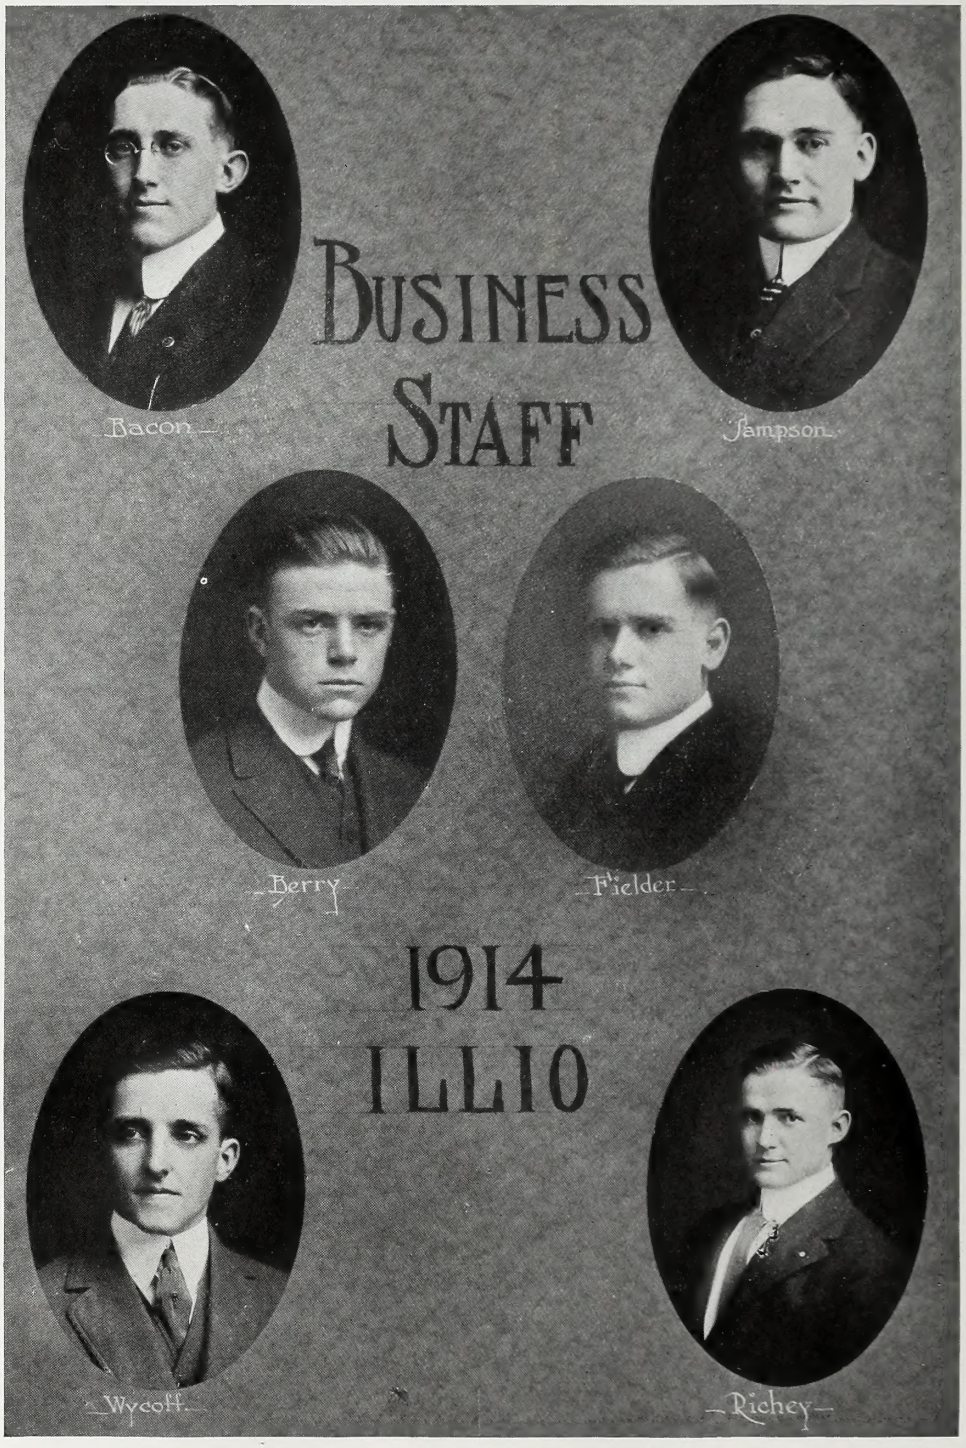

This system we propose, and we believe would be successful. Whether or not such a plan is adopted, one thing is essential: that is, that the editor and business manager be relieved of the financial responsibility for the book, and of the opportunity to rob the book for excessive profits.

ORATORY & DEBATE

The Year in Oratory and Debate

With the opening of the academic year of 1912-13, a new era was begun in forensic work at Illinois. The statement went forth with the first call for debaters, that the coach, written debate and oration would no longer have a place in University contests. The fundamental purpose of the new system was to cultivate student responsibility. When, under this new system, a man appears as the representative of the University in oratory or debate, he possesses the confidence, self-reliance, and pride which the presentation of one's own work carries with it. The student is presenting the results of his own labors, rather than those of the coach under whom he has studied. The concensus of opinion is that the student coaching system is better for the student because it cultivates self reliance; better for the University because it increases the intellectual standard even if the number of victories has been reduced. Members of the faculty believe the new system has been successful even though Illinois lost both sets of debates.

The four University debating teams met the representatives of Minnesota, Nebraska, Ohio, and Indiana. Each contest was fought with vigor and zeal, the result in every case being in doubt until the decision of the judges was rendered. The fact that in both spring debates the decision was "split," indicates the closeness of the contests. This same fact seems to prophesy success for the new coaching system as soon as time is given for development The teams which represented Illinois in the spring debates were considered among the strongest ever sent out by the University.

Following the precedent of the student coaching system, a debating and oratorical council has been organized. This council, composed of six student members, three faculty and three alumni, will take over the work of their department and make arrangements for all local contests. The work of this council will be carried on through committees with responsible chairmen, all under the supervision of and directly responsible to the president of the council. Ohio, and most other large universities have adopted this system of control. In all these institutions the council has accomplished the purpose for which it was founded, the promotion of student interest in forensic work.

The literary societies have had a prosperous year. The Ionian society, for the second time in three years, won the inter-society banner, which is awarded to the society which amasses the most points thru representatives in University contests.

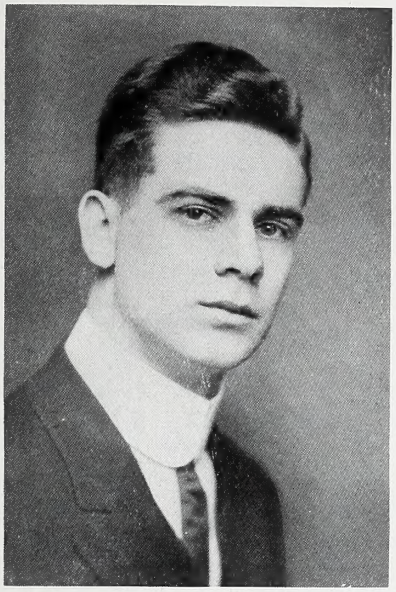

Thru the victory of Miss Mae Kelly in the declamation contest, the Illiola society gained permanent possession of the inter-society cup, which is awarded to the society winning three consecutive contests.

Mr. J. H. Hinshaw, a member of the spring debating team, will be our representative in the contest of the Northern Oratorical League to be held at Oberlin College. It is predicted that Mr. Hinshaw with his scholarly oration, backed by a forceful, convincing delivery, will acquit himself most creditably in this contest.

Mr. Frank C. Slater, a member of the fall debating team, will represent the University in the state peace contest to be held at Aledo, Ill., on April eleventh.

The oratory and debating work has been under the charge of V. A. Ketcham and L. R. Sarett, both new members of the faculty. The interest, enthusiasm, and large enrollment in the public speaking classes are unmistakable evidence of the capacity of these men.

With the installation of the new coaching system, with the formation of the Oratorical and Debating League, with the increasing interest and activity in the literary societies, the future looks extremely bright and encouraging for forensic work at Illinois.

HE COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Following its usual custom, Mask and Bauble, on November 16, presented a Homecoming play. A very encouraging feature of this production was the large number that tried out for the cast—a larger number, in fact, than had ever appeared before. It was made apparent that the dramatic interest at Illinois was rapidly growing. So valuable was the material discovered at these preliminaries that it was only after the most careful consideration that a cast was finally decided upon. This task, as well as the coaching of the play was very admirably performed by Mr. L. G. Painter.

The Servant in the House

One of the most difficult and yet most successful dramatic achievements at Illinois was Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House," given June tenth and eleventh, 1912, at the Auditorium. The characters in this play required exceedingly subtle delineation, and, especially on the part of Manson the "Servant," marked delicacy of treatment. Owing to the ability of the cast, and to the efficiency of Mr. T. H. Guild's coaching, the presentation of this play marked a real step in Illinois' dramatic development.

The Social Year

We're fond of dancing here at Illinois. The Ag dance started the social ball whirling at the University this year. It was a great success in its novelties. The decorations were all of corn-shocks and pumpkin jack-o-lanterns and boughs of beautifully-tinted autumn leaves and wild smilax; and the orchestra sat on a hay-rack in the center of the Armory. Even the programs were so thoroughly rustic that they gave to everyone a kind of a "Hiram" feeling. The feature dance was especially good, and had been kept for a complete surprise. It was called the "chanticleer dance," and it was announced by the entrance of two dozen roosters, who crowed so lustily when their dark coops were opened to the brilliant lights that it was almost necessry to rub one's eyes to make sure the place was a dance-floor at a seasonable hour of night and not a barnyard at dawn.

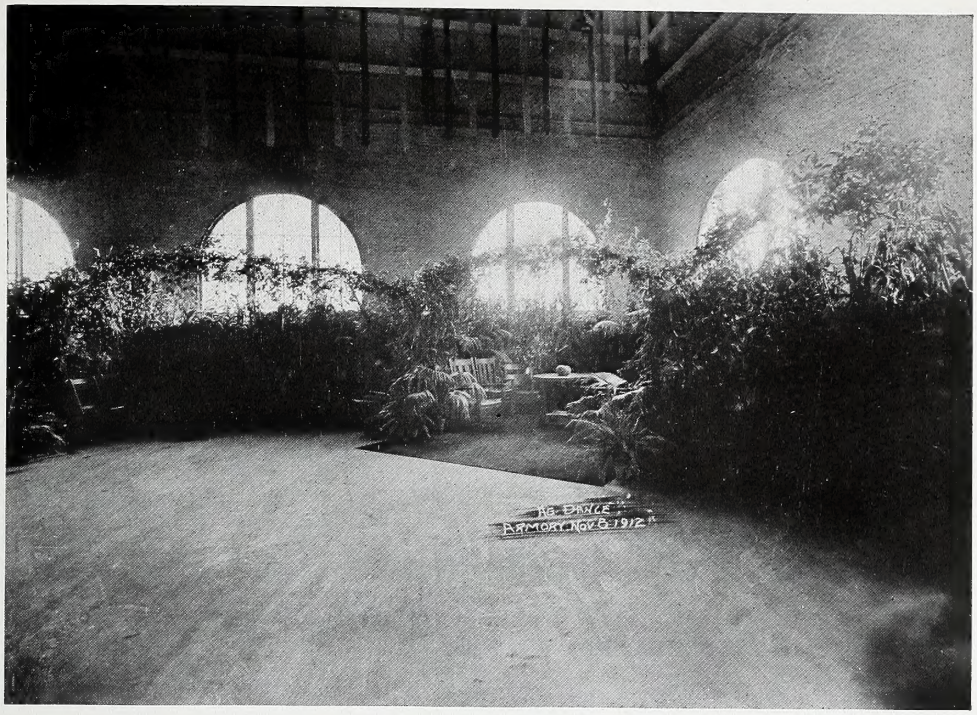

The Junior Prom, the first formal of the year, used a variety of colors in its decorating scheme to obtain a rainbow effect with the lights. These were successful in producing a bewildering rainbow scene. They were used too, in the "Blue Danube waltz," when all but those with the blue shades were extinguished. At other times different colors were used in a similar way, making a delightful variation in the colors of the lights.

The Sophomore Cotillion is a celebration for those who are successful in their first semester exams, and also for those flunkers who wish to celebrate. At any rate, it is at the care-free time between semesters when the "old is off" and the "new is not yet on." This year it was a winter dance, the decorations being of white. There was a white false ceiling and an effect of icicles in white at the sides. It was rumored that the atmosphere in the Armory also carried out the idea of the winter scene.

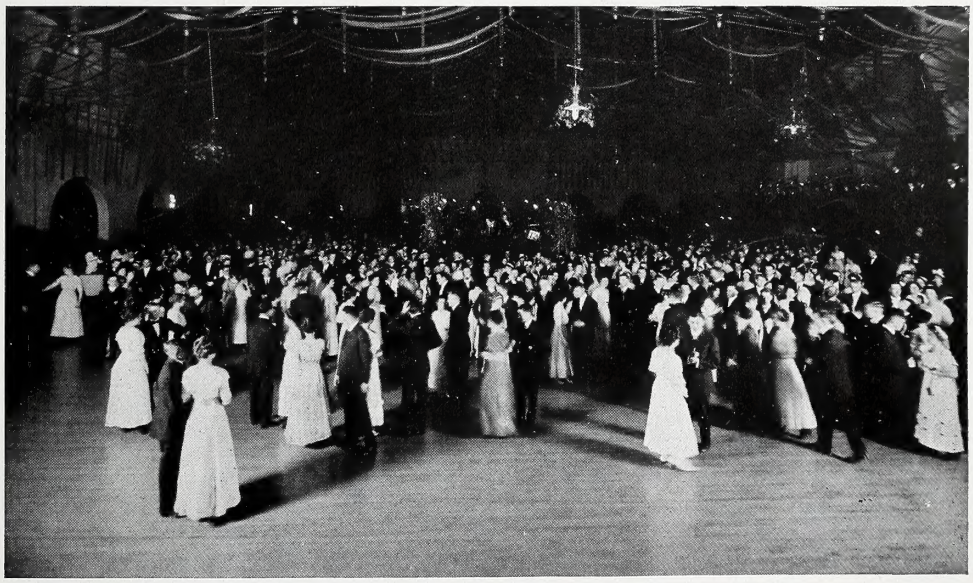

The Military Ball was one of the most attractive dances. The decorations were of gold and white and many lights covered three large balls, placed beneath glittering tinsel chandeliers. Real tents, decorated in red white and blue, took the place of the ordinary booths. The military note predominated throughout the evening with the many uniforms and the impressive military features begun in the grand march. After the salutes fired off by the artillery, the "bugle call" started the march. Later the "mess" call summoned the dancers to supper, and "taps" were sounded when the time came for breaking up about two o'clock.

At the Engineering dance a new system of decorating was employed. From the orchestra platform in the center of the room streamers of red and white were festooned up to the balls containing the main lights, then down to the sides making a nearly complete ceiling. Small lights were placed at intervals around the outsides, so that the effect of the entire room was that of a ring around the orchestra, under which were the dancers. The special feature in the programs was the place at the front to insert a picture of the dance afterwards.

The Senior Ball ends things and is a fitting close to the succession of this kind of entertainments. The main adornments—the most important—at this occasion, are the Seniors.

MILITARY

MAJ. B. C. MORSE

Military is one of the courses prescribed for all male undergraduates at the University of Illinois. Every student must have five credits in military before he can graduate.

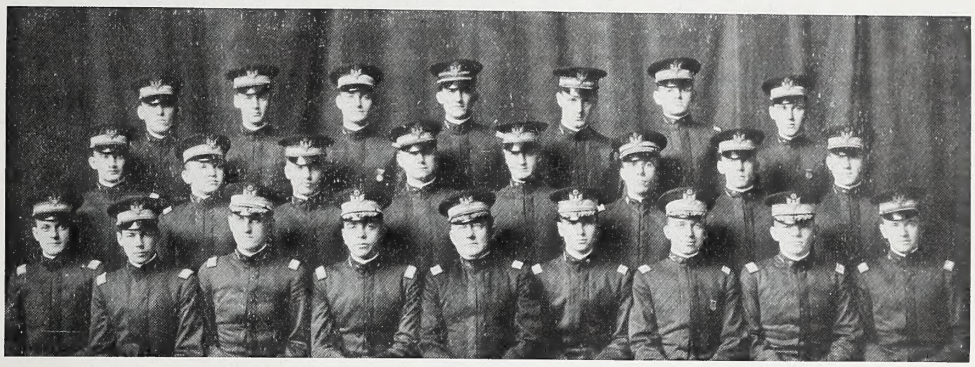

In return for the land grants given by Congress to the States, on which to build state universities, it is stipulated that every student attending such a university must be given a certain amount of military instruction. A United States army officer is detailed to each to take charge of this drill. Under the efficient leadership of Major B. C. Morse, the standard of the military department is rapidly rising. The increase in the size of the regiment has made new quarters necessary, and an appropriation of $100,000 was made for a new armory, to be situated at the lower end of Fifth St. in Champaign, surrounded by a drill ground of forty-six acres.

The annual inspection was held May 3, 1912, with Captain Harrison Hall of the United States Army as the inspecting officer. He submitted a very favorable report to the War Department saying that he believed this to be the best drilled college regiment in the country. He recommended that an assistant be appointed to the commandant, as the regiment, which now numbers more than 1500 men, is too large for one man to handle.

MILITARY DAY

Spell Down Drill

A competitive drill is held each spring about the middle of May, at which the battalions, companies, and individual freshmen and sophomores compete with their peers for honors in their respective positions. At the last one of these in May, 1912, the judges were Captain F. J. Moore, First Lieutenant Roderick Dew, and Second Lieutenant B. K. Yount.

The competitives for Freshmen and Sophomores were held in the morning in the form of spell down drills. The man who stood up longest without making a mistake was the winner. The battalion competitive was also held in the morning. The Hazelton Gold Medal, for freshmen, was won by H. K. Sheldon, and the University Gold Medal, for sophomores, was won by H. O. Danz.

In the afternoon the companies were marched to the south campus and there in the blazing sun of an intolerably hot day the company competitive was run off. The heat was almost unbearable and as soon as each company had finished its trial ranks were broken and a wild rush was made for the water faucets and the ice cream cone wagons on the side lines. The ranks were then re-formed and the company returned to the armory, where, after giving three rousing cheers for the captain, the men were dismissed.

The New Coaching System

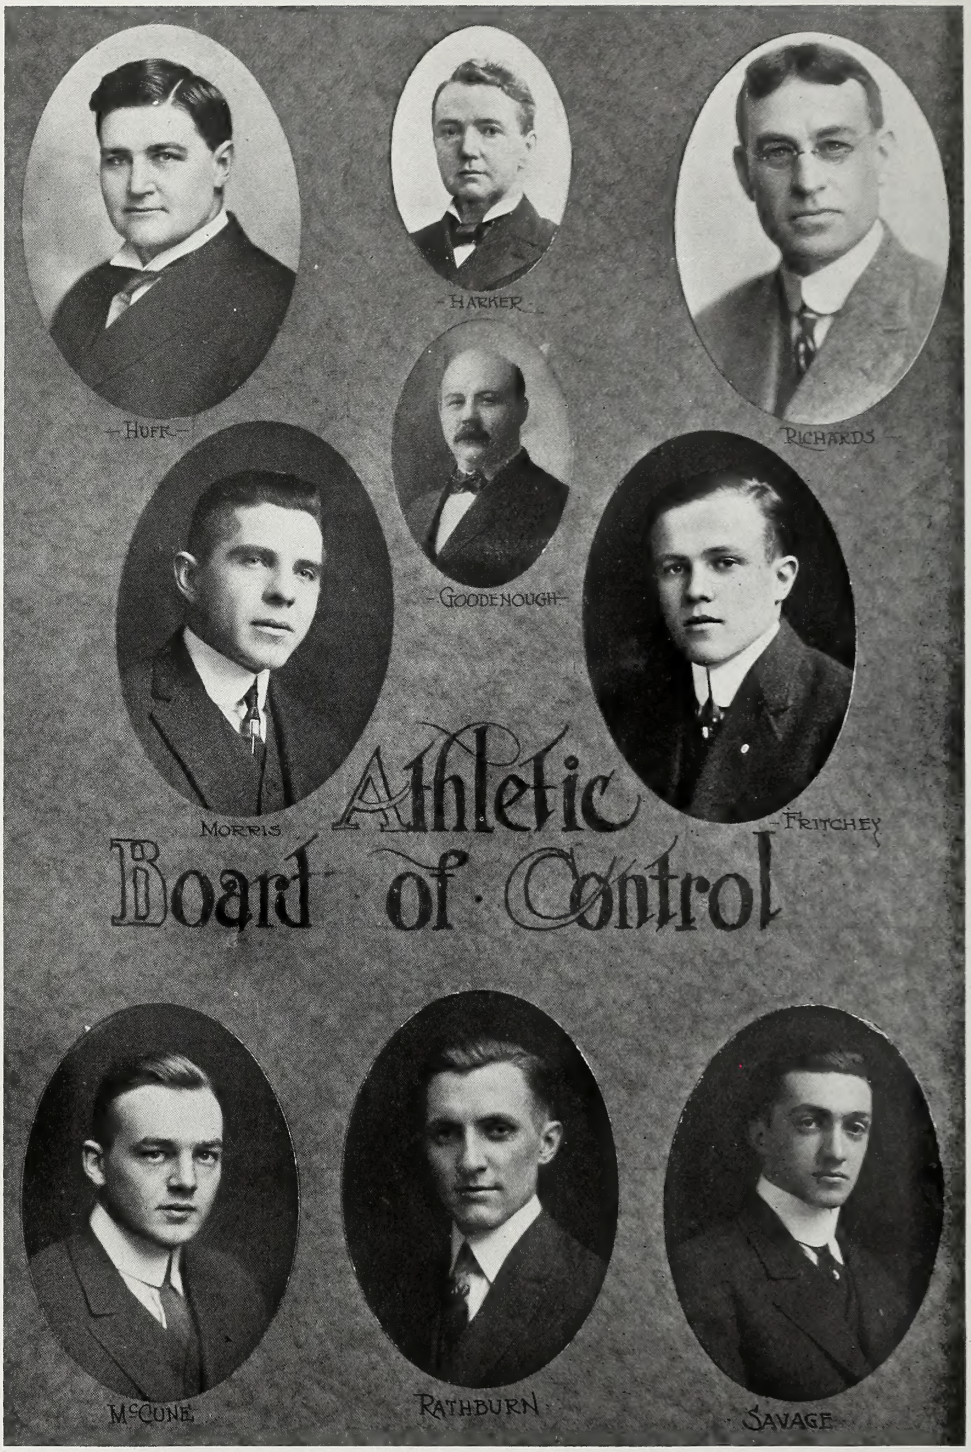

Illinois has at last abolished the graduate coaching system. "G" Huff is now the only man on the coaching staff who ever wore the Orange and Blue.

Illinois held on to the graduate coaching system as long as possible, but when it was no longer possible to secure graduate coaches of ability, she perforce went outside the alumni to secure coaches. The first break in the system when Ralph Jones, coach of the championship Purdue five, was secured as basketball coach. He also had charge of the freshman Varsity football squad.

Then after the football season of 1912, when Hall and Lindgren resigned as football coaches, the graduate system was definitely abolished. The athletic board decided that it was impossible to secure a football coach of requisite ability from the graduates of Illinois.

The new football coach is Robert Zuppke, who for the past three years has coached Oak Park High team. Zuppke, familiarly known as "Smiling Bob," was an old Wisconsin man where he played Varsity Scrub. After leaving Wisconsin he coached Muskegon High School for two years and after that went to Oak Park. Here he made an enviable record of three championship teams in three successive years. Although only a high school coach his work has attracted so much attention that three conference colleges made efforts to secure him. Through the efforts of George C. Carr, of Oak Park, an alumnus of the university, Illinois was successful, and Zuppke signed a three year contract.

Zuppke is a man with a forceful personality and with inexhaustible energy. He is a hard worker and turns out championship teams through hard work. He will be in absolute control of Illinois football teams for the next three years, and no doubt under his direction Illinois will again have a championship football team.

BASE BALL
ILLINOIS

Baseball Review

When the call for 1912 baseball men was issued, there was a noble response. Good men came out for every position. Even second base, which last year it seemed impossible to fill, was amply cared for by a couple of likely candidates. Coach "G" Huff predicted one of the finest ball teams ever turned out at our University, and that is certainly saying a great deal, for we always have had a good one. But our joys were not to last long. The week previous to the Easter training trip Professor Goodenough, our conference representative, called all the old men into his office, and had them sign the conference rules of eligibility. Out of the twelve men present only seven were allowed to fill out the blanks. This meant that five of the old veterans were out of the game, but even this would not have been so bad had not it wiped out our entire pitching staff, which was composed of Captain VanGundy and Herb Kemman. Naperstek, our little backstop of last year, was also a victim of the rules, but as 'Judge' Fletcher was ready to take up his position behind the bat, Nap's loss was not felt so keenly except by his personal friends.

With only a few days of outdoor practice the team started on its southern trip for a series of two games with the University of Tennessee. The result was a double victory for us. On the way back the team stopped off at Bloomington, Indiana, just long enough to give the "Hoosiers" a rather one-sided eating of 8-4. With these three successive victories our fears of a weak team began to subside. Things were not as dreadful as most of us had imagined. "G" had developed a first class pitcher from last year's first sacker, "Snorky" Watts.

The trip to Iowa, which resulted in a tie, was due largely to the extremely muddy condition of the grounds. Our boys did not have much trouble in hitting the ball, but they were unable to steal bases, which as every fan knows, is essential to run getting. However, the return game the following week proved our superiority, the score being 4-3 in our favor.

The invasion of the razor"-backs" was the next bit of excitement in the baseball world. We played them a series of two games, and split even just to show them our hospitality. The first game was rather one-sided, and bitter for the Orange and Blue, the final score being 11-6 in favor of Arkansas. But the second game was different. Watts held the visitors to two runs while our boys batted out four. This was much better than winning the first game and losing the second one—it is like that old proverb about the last laugh.

Interscholastic week was a disappointment to the Illini baseball fans. Friday was a perfet day for the game, but somehow our boys could not get to the Maroon pitcher for any satisfaction. Watts, after the first inning, pitched gilt-edged ball, but then it was too late. Try as we would, we could not even up the lead the Maroons obtained in the first, and Stagg carried home his first game in many seasons to the Maroon camp. Saturday brought forth a very poor grade of ball in the game with Northwestern. Nothing of excitement happened. Our boys won easily, having sewed up the game in the first round or two.

The final game with Chicago was played on Marshall Field, Chicago had the lead until the ninth inning. Then occurred one of those sensational finishes which we so often read of, and so seldom see. In their half of the ninth the Illini pounded the ball like demons, and easily won the laurels.

The last game of the season was with Wisconsin on Illinois field, and in this game was centered great interest, for if we won we would have been undisputed conference champions. It was rather a one-sided game at the first because the Badgers opened up with five runs off Watts in the first inning and we had to take him out. But the boys settled down behind "Bob" Thomas and only allowed their opponents two more runs in eight innings. The Badgers seemed to have a horse-shoe around their necks, for they out-played themselves in every respect, making what seemed almost impossible catches, and hitting timely. A strange thing happened in the ninth inning. The score stood 7 to 0 against us when "Shorty" Thomas came to bat. He poled out the first long hit of the day, a three-bagger. Then Harry Webber's turn came. He connected for a home-run, giving two runs to the varsity. These men were the only real veterans on the team, and it was their last time to bat as well, which makes it rather a peculiar coincidence, as they were the only ones who could deliver the goods in the pinch.

The next touch of diamond excitement that came to the Illini camp was a victorious 3-4 game with Indiana. The splendid quality of the game was unexpected because of the previous poor game at Bloomington. Things moved fastly and nervously until the sixth session without a single tally for either side. Then "Butts" Phelps drove the pill to the track and started the run indicator with a homer. But the Hoosiers were gritty and came back in the seventh with a total of three runs. We could not allow things to stand that way for long, so we added three more runs to our own score in our half of the seventh. The eighth and ninth innings passed away without any more thrills, and the game was over.

The week after the tussle with Indiana, Chicago made her first invasion of our camp. Stagg's men had, from all reports, up to that time been playing a good game. They gave us a pretty close call. Up to the ninth inning it looked very much as if they would carry away the honors, but in that famous, fast inning, the Illini livened up and batted in two runs, which allowed them to walk off the field with still a clean slate.

"G" Huff

The next game of real excitement and baseball was played at Lafayette against Purdue. Every minute of that game was well worth the price of admission. At one time Purdue had two men on base and none out. The batter drove a hot one at "Sod" Prindiville that looked like a single, but the big boy had something to say about it, for he made a whirlwind stab, caught the ball, and landed on first a second later, thus completing a double play unassisted. It was Illinois' salvation for the next hitter poled a double, scoring the lone man on second for Purdue's only tally. From then on, "Snorky" Watts pitched airtight ball, giving the Boilermakers only two hits, and in addition he helped his teammates in the eighth and ninth periods to bring in the three winning runs.

WALTER HARRY WEBER

"Web," as he is better known by every Illini rooter, held down for the last time his old position of shortstop. He was one of the two veterans on the team, and did wonders in steadying it thru the critical innings. Time and again his strong whip has cut off a runner at first, and checked the invader's rally. His batting ability was a splendid asset to the team; seldom did he fail to start the necessary rally, which played a large part in the season of 1912. His whirlwind finish will long be remembered by his teammates; for he got an undisputed homerun his last time at bat.

RAYMOND ROGERS THOMAS

"Shorty" was the only other veteran on the team, and he proved to be as valuable in the outfield as "Web" was in the infield. He was never known to drop a fly ball that touched his glove, and that is saying a great deal because he went after everything, regardless of how hopeless it seemed. At the bat he was the best waiter on the team. This fact, coupled with his ability to steal bases, resulted in many of our runs. Furthermore he could bounce the ball for extra bases just as well as the next fellow. His quick little steps and bare head will long be remembered by the rooters.

CLAUDE HARRISON WATTS

When the season opened everyone thought that we were up against it for pitchers, except Coach Huff. He knew that "Snorky" Watts had done some pitching before he came to Illinois and so he started training him for the rubber. Watts went fine until the last couple of games and his efforts are greatly appreciated by all Illini men. He has still another year at the University and under his guidance as captain we expect great things of the 1913 team. "Snorky" knows the game as thoroughly as any man at Illinois, and if he can only get some likely man to share the burden of pitching he will make a name for himself and his team that will long be remembered.

GEORGE DRIVER LAING

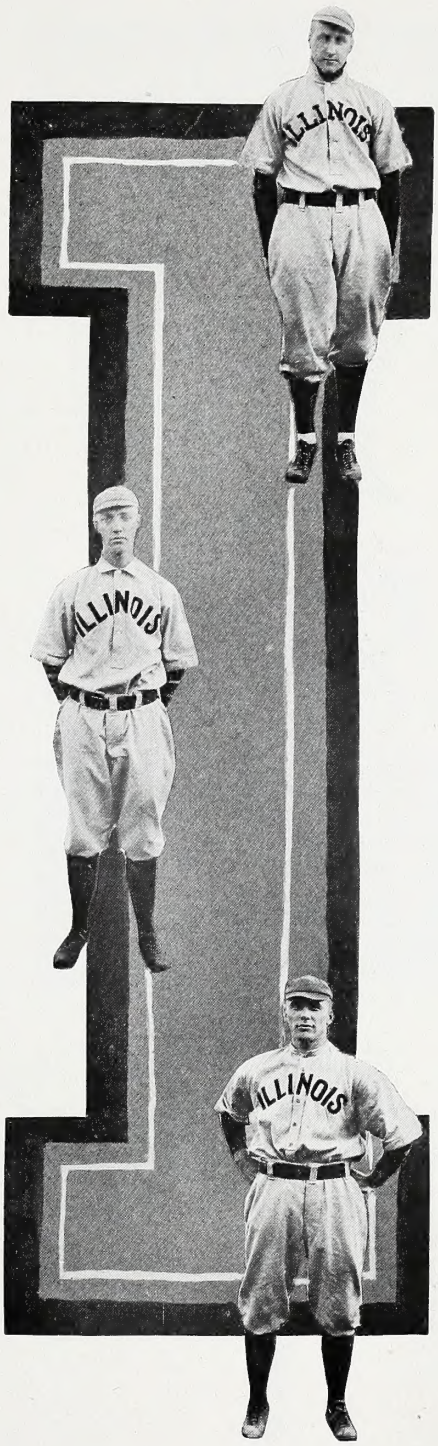

Driver Laing will long be remembered by all true Illini rooters. He was not a brilliant ball player, but he had that good old quality that marks many of our men. For two years he plugged along as a bench warmer with never a word of praise, but he did not give up, and in his senior year he made good as an outfielder. Driver, with that "never say die" spirit, deserves more praise from us than do those who make good at the start.

CURTIS ROY LIGHT

"Nig" was one of the boys thrown out of Conference competition because of some small technicality in the rules. But fortunately for us, he was reinstated just when the team needed him most, and he played in the last five games. He is a good infielder and possesses a clever under hand whip to first that has stopped many a hopeful runner. At the bat "Nig" is erratic, sometimes hitting the pill for more bases than anyone else on the team, and at other times he has great trouble in finding the ball at all. With still another year to play we expect him to overcome this one fault and be more valuable than ever to the team.

CHARLES HARRISON FLETCHER

When it was newsed around that "Nap" had been protested and could not play, Illini stock fell. Everyone wondered who "G" would work into that position, but that man never lost any sleep over it. 'Judge' Fletcher stepped into the shoes and filled them well. His whip the first part of the season spelled sure death to the base-runner, but later on he contracted a cold in his arm which deprived him of his keen accuracy. His hitting at the close of the season was strong, and if he started that way this year it is hard to say how he will finish.

FRANCIS JOSEPH PRINDIVILLE

In 1911 "Snorky" Watts played first base. When the 1912 season opened Watts had to do the pitching; so the initial sack was vacant. For two or three weeks "G" kept trying out men on that base with little success until finally he gave "Sod" Prindiville a whirl. Although a pitcher by birth he proved to be "some" first sacker. His spectacular stab in the Purdue game cut off their only chance for rallying, and saved the day for Illinois. His hitting, while not a tower of strength, was consistent, and that is worth much to any team. His success as a first baseman was due to his rapid thinking and execution at critical periods of the game.

JOHN BRETON

Jimmy Breton, as he is known in the diamond, was drafted from the 1911 freshman team, and he proved to be a valuable man both on the field and at the bat. His long hits were often very timely, which meant more than usual to the 1912 team, because they always had to have a good sized score to win. As for fielding he lived on it. The faster they were driven at him the better he liked it, and the easier he seemed to handle it. Illini rooters look for big things from Jimmy next season.

ENOS MARION ROWE

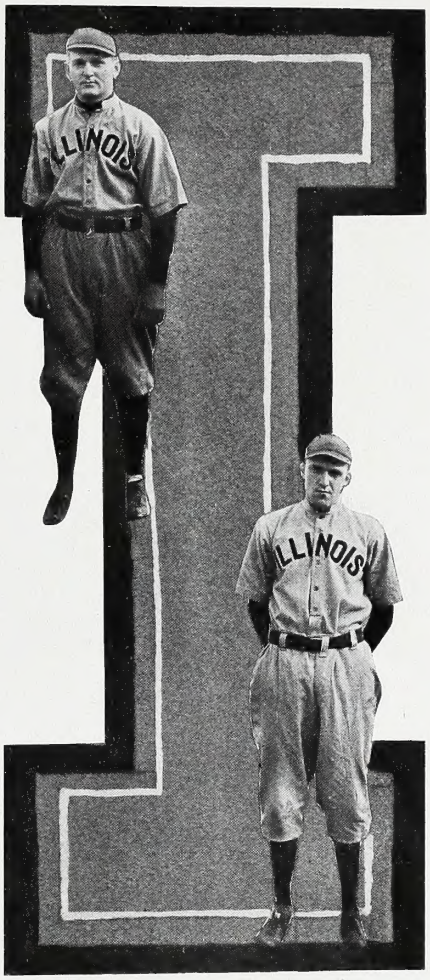

Enos Rowe, known by a select few on the squad as the "German Count" was another recruit from the 1911 freshman team. He came to Coach Huff, as a catcher, but he finished the season as an out-fielder; his hitting ability making this change possible. He played the game with that same spirit of fight that marked his baseball success last fall. If everything goes well next football season, we hope to see him again helping to defend the diamond for Illinois.

JOHN CARNE PHELPS

'Butts' Phelps was another man drafted from the 1911 freshman team. He was supposed to be the speed merchant of the squad. Many a time has the opposing infielder handled one of his slow easy grounders with all the confidence in the world only to find his throw to be undisputably late. In the outfield he and 'Shorty' Thomas made a mighty high stone wall. Any man who got a home run in those two fields deserved even more, for the drive had to be a long one. 'Butts' has two more years to play.

ROBERT ELLSWORTH THOMAS

One of the remarkable features of the season of 1912 was the development of "String" Thomas as a pitcher. In the spring he was good material for keeping the batters in shape, but as time rolled along he grew better. One fine day in May he went in in the fourth inning against Chicago and saved the day, even though they had a five run lead. The next time he got a chance was against Wisconsin, and he would have pulled that out of the fire, if the team had only been able to overtake the lead handed him when he went in. During the 1913 season we expect big things of "Bob."

Review of the Season

Football at the University of Illinois was a big problem at the beginning of the year 1912. With only three "I" men back as a nucleus from which to work, Coaches Hall, Lindgren, and White were to begin their seemingly impossible task.

On the seventeenth day of September, Captain Woolston issued the usual pre-official call, and forty-five men eager to mix in the greatest of all college sports, responded. Promising material showed up in the form of Hudelson, Hoffman, Hill, Chapman, Booze, Schobinger, Wagner, Senneff, Silkman, Wilson, Shapland, Simpson, and others. 'Twas soon seen that the line problem was more serious than is ordinarily the case, because of the light men playing for the positions.

On the twentieth, Coach Hall made the official call, and took immediate charge of the work. The men were rapidly whipped into shape, and on the fifth of October they lined up for the first kickoff against Illinois Wesleyan. For sixty minutes the Illini, with straight, old-fashioned football, did the Marathon to the goal-posts. Up and down the field they romped until they had piled up a sum-total of eighty-seven points; Wesleyan in the meantime having found a drop-kick. Score 87 to 3.

The week following, Washington University, of St. Louis, came over and met a 13 to 0 defeat. The Illini, so far, had shown no brilliancy, but they had started the fighting spirit which stuck to them thruout the season.

On the nineteenth, the first conference game of the year was played on Illinois field against "Jimmy" Sheldon's aggregation from Indiana. The "Hoosiers" showed fight at every stage of the game, but were forced to accept the little end of a 13 to 7 score. This game was the first conference match for several of the Illini players, and without exception they performed well. The old men steadied the game at every turn, and the team moved as if composed entirely of veterans.

The following two weeks were spent in preparation for the Northern invasion. Minnesota's shift plays were studied from every view-point, and things looked favorable at least. On the morning of the thirty-first, the Illini, thirty-five strong, amidst the rousing cheers of their fellow-students, set out for Minneapolis, reaching there Friday morning at seven o'clock. Accommodations had been secured at the West Hotel, and there the team proceeded at once. A snappy practice was in order in the large stock-judging pavilion that afternoon, and then all turned in to rest for the coming battle. At 2:30 the next day, the team marched out on to Northrop Field. The game was soon on and each team seemed to be working nicely. The Illini were outweighed considerably, and as luck seemingly was working overtime against them, the Gophers were returned 13 to 0 victors. The team here fought against odds, and in an up-hill battle, but they displayed the "fighting come-back of the Illini," and in the last half played the heavy gophers to a standstill.

On Saturday, November the ninth, the team met the boilermakers at Purdue. At this time the team was working at its best, and in all probability played the best game of the season. Purdue, also, was in her prime, as was proved later. The first half ended with the score 6 to 0. Purdue had made a touchdown, but had failed in the kick for goal. In the beginning of the second half the Illini scored a touchdown also, but were given no opportunity to attempt the kick for goal, because of the referee's decision on the punt-out. Shortly after this, Captain Wool-ston booted the oval directly between the goal-posts from the forty-five yard line, making the score 9 to 6 in the Illini's favor. Purdue, not to be outdone in any respect, retaliated in like manner, scoring a drop-kick with only twenty seconds left in which to play. Game was called with a tie score of 9 to 9.

There still remained the big game of the season, the battle with Chicago. On November sixteenth, before a crowd of ten thousand of the most loyal rooters ever assembled, and in spite of the dogged determination written in the faces and actions of the players the Illini succumbed to a 10 to 0 defeat. Little need be said of the game, but special mention must be made of the loyalty displayed by the bleachers when, "We're loyal to you Illinois," rang out clear and strong, as the team went back to the gymnasium.

One more game remained, that with the Purple at Evanston. Here, the Illini were unable to bear up under the skillful kicking of their opponents, with the aid of a strong, favorable wind, and were beaten 6 to 0. This game was the last one for Captain Woolston, Dillon, Hill, Hudelson, Watson, Hoffman, and Shapland. The line-plunging, interfering "Woolie," and the shift, ground-gaining Dillon are now pleasant memories. The loss of these seven seniors is inestimable, and will leave holes in the elevens to follow which will be hard to fill.

Next year will find Captain-elect Rowe, Wilson, Booze, Schobinger, Chapman, Silkman, Wagner, and Senneff, as "I" men, back in the harness, ready again to battle for their Alma Mater on the gridiron. May the same steadfast spirit of old "Illinois Loyalty" push on the team to victory in the coming season!

ARTHUR RAYMOND HALL

"Artie" Hall has held the position of head coach of the Varsity football team since the year 1904. He has made for himself a home in the heart of every Illinois man and in the heart of every follower of Illinois football. His work as a player was exceptional, as he was a four year "I" man, and, in his last year, Captain. His work as a coach has also been splendid. Many grand victories have been added to the history of Illinois football thru his untiring efforts and sacrifices; among them being several Chicago defeats and a 1000 per centum team. He will always live in the hearts of every lover of clean, manly, upright athletics.

JUSTA MORRIS LINDGREN

"Lindy" has been line coach at Illinois since 1904. Such men as Twist, Belting, and Butzer received their training under him, all of which speaks for itself. "Lindy's" record while in college is also an enviable one. In 1901 he was captain of that memorable team which outclassed the Maroons so completely. He has also won for himself the love of everyone with whom he has worked while in Illini athletics.

EARL ARCHIBALD WHITE

"Pep" White is another of our graduate coaches who will always be one of us. His fighting spirit, and "never give in" determination, has been the cause of much favorable comment in University circles. He was at first coach of the freshman Varsity teams, and has also been coach of the freshman Varsity at Wisconsin. Later he became assistant Varsity coach and did his work creditably. It is to him we give the credit of having started our big football men in the path that they should go. Much credit is also due him for his efforts in keeping up the scholastic standing of the freshmen; a large item in football activities.

WILLIAM HENRY WOOLSTON

"Captain Woolie" Woolston was, beyond doubt, one of the hardest and most consistent fighters who ever led an Illinois team on the gridiron. In every play, and at every turn "Woolie" was continually fighting the opposing tackles. At line plunging, and at either end of a forward pass he was a valuable man, being also a man of no mean ability as a punter and drop kicker. Could the Illini warriors have followed in the footsteps of their fullback leader, they might well have sung the last four stanzas to the football song as well as they did the first one.

CHESTER CHARLES DILLON

The Illini have finally been forced to bear the loss of one of the most elusive, dodging, ground gaining halfbacks in the annals of Illinois football history. Dillon was a man to be feared continually, because of his whirling tactics. All his one hundred fifty pounds were in the play, and determination was written in his every move. Because of his small stature he was probably handled rougher than any man on the team; but seldom has "time out for Dillon" come to the bleachers. Because of this, and because of his unlimited supply of nerve against big men, as well as small, he has often been referred to as "the Nervy Nat of the Illini."

CHAUNCY BROWN WATSON

"Watty" Watson, left guard of the team, is another senior who has played his last game for Illinois. Like others he acquitted himself well; not only did he furnish the necessary holes in offensive playing, but was very active on the defensive. Watson was a steady, consistent, heady player, fighting all the time, and besides this he was the main factor in distributing Illini "line-pep" during the entire season. His graduation leaves a vacancy not easily closed.

STANLEY HILL

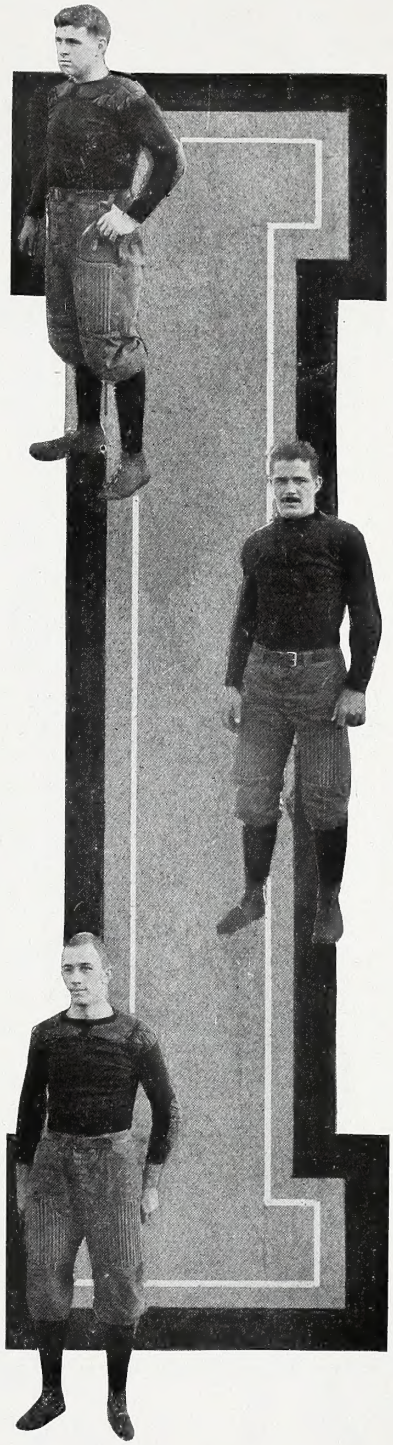

"Bubbles" Hill, the "big-Illinois-man," played his first year of University football this season. With his determination, with an ability to learn easily such as his and with the desire to do something for his Alma Mater, he could not be held down; and he filled the left tackle position during the entire season. Hill was a "rock" in the line which always caused trouble when an opponent tried to walk on it. To backfield men, the sight of him in the line was a pleasure; for somewhere in the other line was always a hole, big enough to find, and always to be used to good advantage.

ROBERT WILLIAM HOFFMAN

"Bob" Hoffman was the sole owner and possessor of the Illini left end during the season. With his two years' experience previous to this, he had gained a knowledge of the finer points of the game before coming under the tutelege of Varsity coaches. This fact made his offensive and defensive work much easier and more polished. The smashing of end runs was his delight; and officiating at the receiving end of a forward pass seemed to him a second nature. It is to be regretted that he has only one more year to give on the gridiron.

CLYDE HUDELSON

"Huddie" was the right wing guard. A new man in a new place never before acquitted himself in such a manner. On the offensive and defensive alike he was well balanced, and he was aggressive at all times. He might well be called the "speed-merchant" of the team, because of his speed in covering the ground ahead. He is a man with only one year of Varsity experience, but he did the work set before him, and because of this he early became a line fixture.

ENOS MARION ROWE

"Count" Rowe, Captain-elect of the 1913 football team, has played two years of Varsity football for the Illini. He was a good ground gainer, and received the forward pass well. In defensive work he was well balanced and tackled hard and sure. Under his leadership next year, the team will have determination for its basic attribute, and every game will be a fight to the finish.

"Coony," whose position was at right tackle, was a versatile player at all times. Tho not a heavy man he was always there to question any man's right to advance over his ground. He was a consistent player and one to be depended upon in critical places. Fortune was early unkind to him, and during most of the year he wore his "pacing harness" for protection to his shoulder. He is another senior we are to lose, and one whose loss will be keenly felt by the students as well as the players; for his presence and ready smile were always welcome.

THOMAS KENNETH WILSON

"Wils" Wilson played the right end position until near the close of the season, when misfortune overtook him, and left him with a bad knee. His experience in other branches of athletics was of great benefit to him in this sport, and almost invariably when speed and a long forward pass were under consideration, he was called upon. He was a new man at the game but handled himself well. The coming year will find him back on the gridiron ready to give battle again.

MACDONALD CHARLES BOOZE

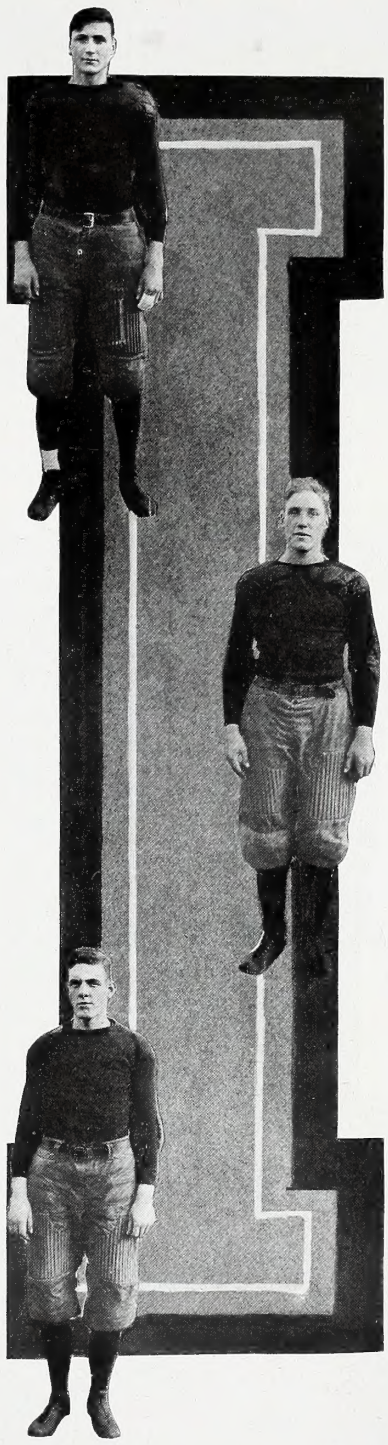

Booze has also won for himself, as a first year Varsity man, the football "I." "Mac" was a new hand at the game, but learned the necessary points readily, and in spite of a never-get-well shoulder, stuck gamely to his post. Although his injury was such that it should rightfully have kept him on the bench most of the time, he played in every game, and "time out for Booze" was rarely heard during the season. Next year he will prove of great value, as his one year at tackle has polished him greatly.

EUGENE SCHOBINGER

"Schob" Schobinger is the pass word for either of two positions, end or fullback, although he made his first showing at the former position. He is a speedy end and also a driving runner, who never fails to make trouble for anyone who crosses his path. Not until late in the season did he realize his true place, and real powers but in the two years which are to come great things are to be expected of him in a backfield position. His one year of Varsity experience will serve well to add finish and confidence to his work.

RALPH CHAPMAN

Chapman was a find for the center position. He acquitted himself with ease, in long, as well as in short passes. In handling the ball, he was accurate; in signals, he was learned; in sizing up the opponent's offense, he was reliable; in a pinch of any kind he could be relied upon, and would always respond. Though not a spectacular player, he played thruout the game. In his two more years he will prove even more reliable than this year, and much more may be expected of him.

JOHN MEADE SILKMAN

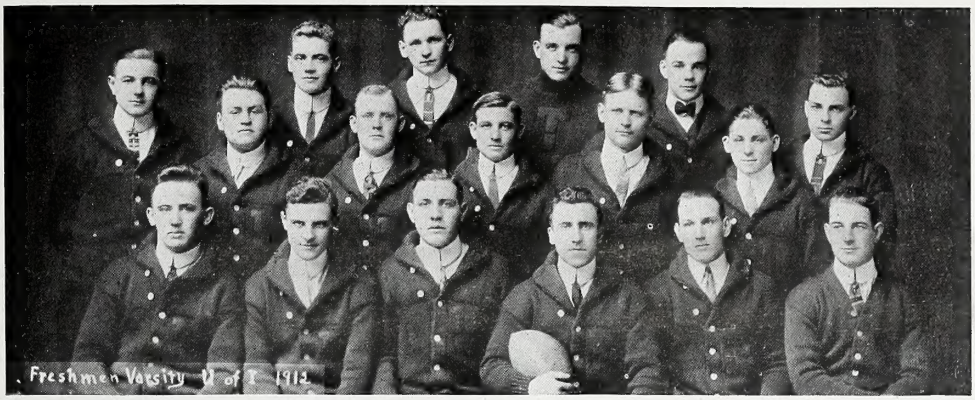

"Silky" Silkman stepped into the quarterback position so much talked of at Illinois, and acquitted himself well. As a field general he used good judgment, as a forward passer he was accomplished, as an open field runner he made good, and his work at the initial end of a punt speaks well of itself. With his one year of Varsity experience ahead of him to aid him in his coming work on the field he should prove a dangerous enemy at all points of the game.

GEORGE FREEMAN SENNEFF

"Gigs" is another of our-first-year men who showed up well on the gridiron. To the would-be tackler he was an enigma; picking holes in the opponent's line where, seemingly, there were none. Being small of stature and shifty on his feet, he repeatedly evaded grasping arms. He will be called upon more in his succeeding years, and the teams will profit greatly by his playing. Rough handling of which he always has had plenty, makes him more determined than ever.

ALEXANDER WAGNER

Wagner was another one of the squad to suffer from bruises during the season. He carried a lame shoulder during most of the season, but nevertheless he was a "sticker" and fought in spite of it. "Wag" was a valuable player at fullback, he handled the forward pass well, was a good drop kicker, and backed up the line like a veteran. In the two coming seasons he will improve steadily and be a still greater player than he was last season.

Kirkpatrick Hardinger Brandon Ruhl Lansche Haan Fuhrbeck

RALPH ROBERT JONES

Ralph has come to us in the capacity of a utility coach from the university of Purdue. His strong forte is basketball, but he is a coach of considerable ability in all the different branches of athletics. He has coached football at Wabash College, and at Purdue; making worthy records at both places. His work with the freshmen of this year has spoken for itself, and will speak even more plainly when it is put in Varsity plays the coming year. He seems to possess in a large amount, the needed characteristics of a football coach, namely, "pepper," and we are all glad he has come to stay with us.

WILLIAM McGILL

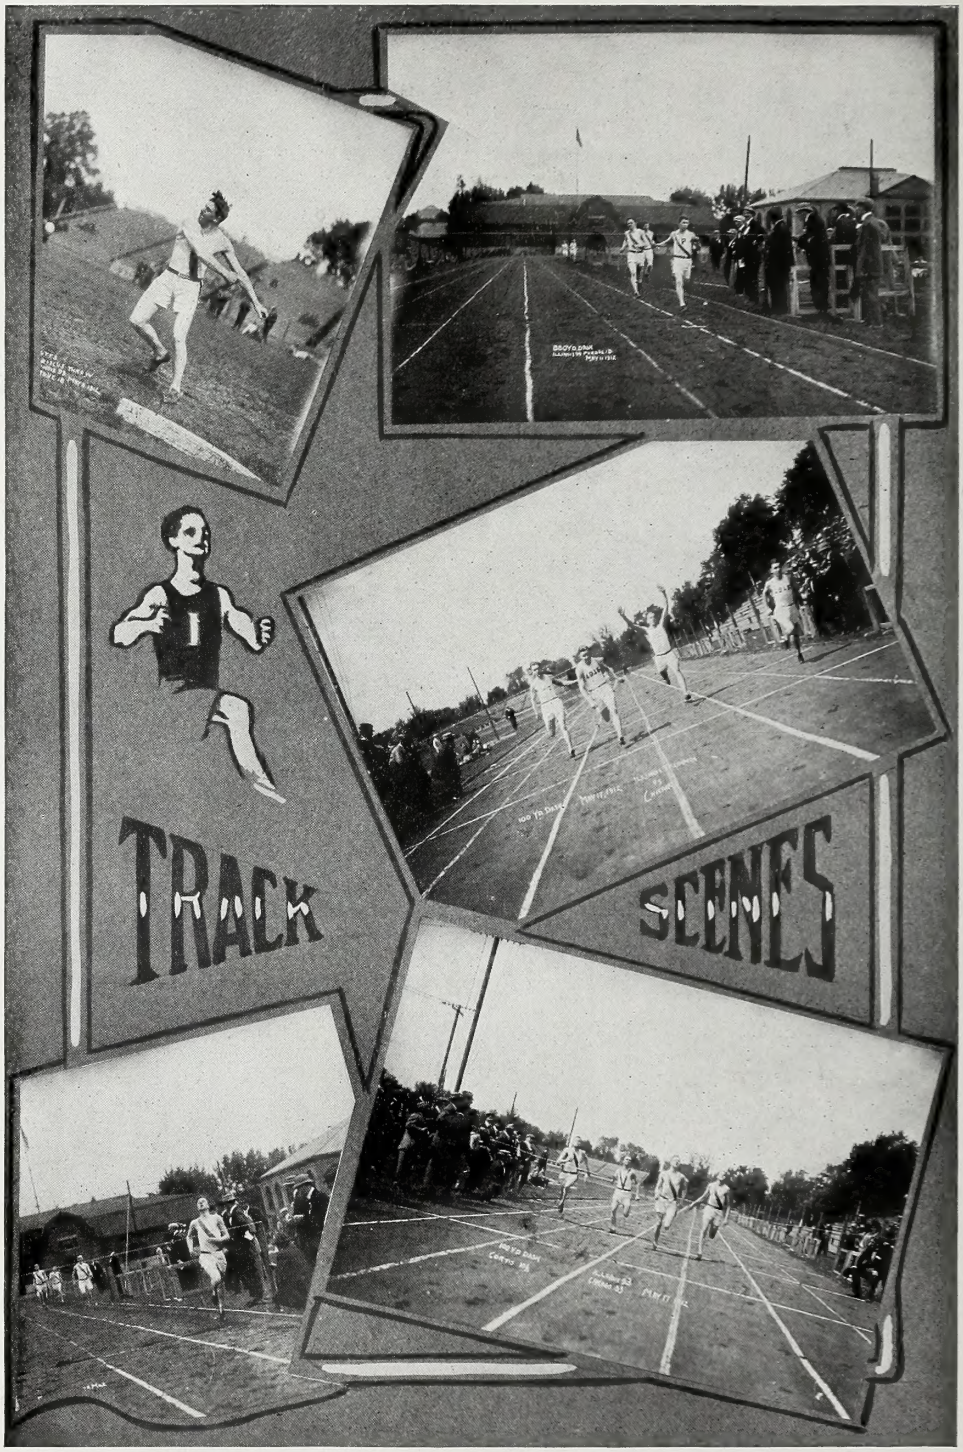

"Wee Willie" has come to us in the capacity of Varsity trainer, not only in football but in all branches of athletics. He is a marvel at his work, and has won for himself the respect and best wishes of all. He has been a pusher from the word go; looking after the athletes in a manner unheard of before his appearance; shoes, pads, bruises and everything in the football world are a specialty with him. May he long remain with us, learn to look upon us as his best friends, and upon Illinois as his home.

TRACK SCENES

1912-1913 Track Review

By defeating Missouri, Wisconsin, Purdue, and Chicago, the Illini made good their claim to the title of Intercollegiate Dual Champions of the West.

The 1913 Outdoor Track season started on April 20th with a victory over the Conference Champions, Missouri. In this meet Case and Sanders defeated two of the best men in the Conference, Nicholson and Bermond respectively. The score, 77 to 49, was rather one-sided.

Illinois sent a mile relay team, Murphy in the pole vault, and Case in the hurdles, to the Penn Games on April 28. The Orange and Blue reputation was sustained by our taking second in each event.

Wisconsin was defeated on their home grounds on May 4th by 80½ to 45½. Illinois secured ten firsts out of a possible fourteen. The next Saturday we repeated by defeating Purdue in a meet in which they only secured two firsts. In this meet Case, Cortis, Murphy, and Cope, broke Illinois records.

We finished the dual season by winning from Chicago 93 to 33. Case tied the world's record in the high hurdles in 15 1-5.

Illinois placed according to dope in the Conference, taking third, and finishing ahead of all Big Eight colleges.

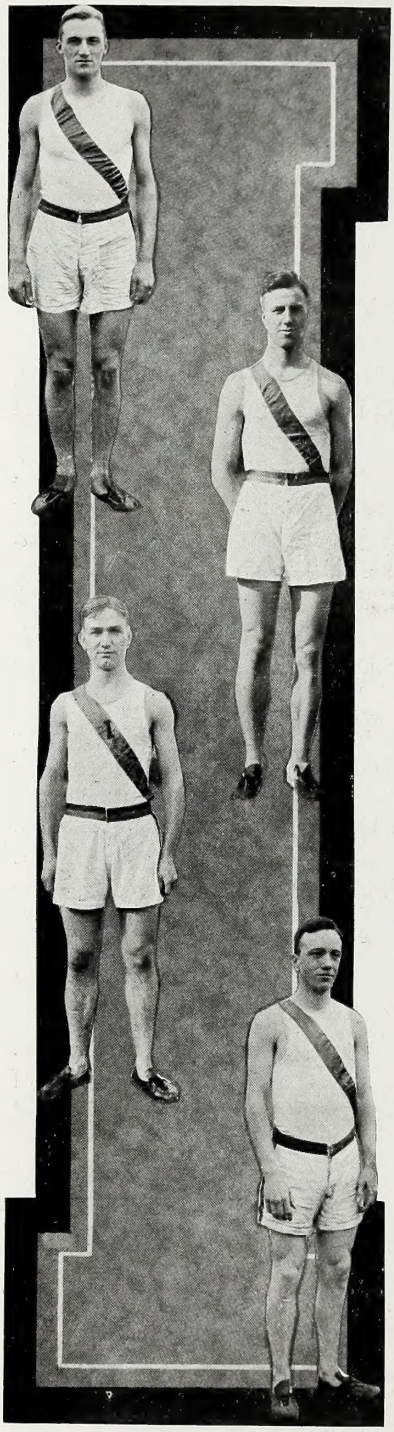

The 1913 Indoor Season was started with a rush on February 15th. On that evening Illinois romped away from Chicago to the tune of 58 to 27. Most of Chicago's points were secured in the field events.

A week later we were taken into camp by the Chicago Athletic Association. Their team was composed of several Olympic stars so the result was not unexpected.

Purdue was snowed under, 70 to 16, on March 8th. Purdue only secured one first.

Coach Gill took a mile, relay team, a two-mile relay team, and Case in the hurdles to the Missouri Athletic Club meet on March 15th. Here again we showed our class by taking first in all three events.

The Illini finished the Indoor Season by being beaten in the Indoor Conference. After leading Wisconsin all the way we were finally beaten out by one-quarter of a point, the final score being 33¼ to 33. The Orange and Blue won the relay and hung up a new mark of 3:34.

Senior Track Men

JOHN RUGGLES CASE

In Captain "Jack" Case the Varsity Track has one of the greatest athletes that ever wore the Orange and Blue. He is a hurdler of international reputation, and represented the United States at Olympic Games. He has traveled :15 1-5 in the 120-yard high hurdles which ties the world's record. Indoors Case has gone :5 2-5 in the 40-yard high hurdles which gives him a tie for the Illinois record. Under his leadership the Illini should repeat as Conference Dual Champions.

FREDERIC BOYDEN CORTIS

"Freddie" Cortis is another star that the Illini will lose this year. In winning his three "I's" he has made a greater number of points than any other Illinois track man. He was a member of the mile relay team that holds the world's freshman intercollegiate record of 3:26 2-5. Cortis was also on the supplementary list for the 1912 Olympic games. At the present time he holds the Illinois outdoor record for the 440 in :49 3-5.

WALTER ALLEN COPE

Cope, winner of three "I's," has been one of Gill's sure point winners in every meet, either dual or Conference. He runs either the half or the mile with ease, and is a member of the two-mile relay team. His star event has been the mile where he holds two records, the outdoor record at 4:32 2-5 and the indoor record at 4:37 2-5.

JAMES ALBERT HUNTER

"Jimmy" is one of Illinois' famous quarter milers, and can also step the half-mile in good time. He is a member of both the one-mile and two-mile relay teams. Hunter was also on the mile relay team that holds the freshman intercollegiate record. He has won his "I" three times and in doing so has materially added to Illinois' points in every meet.

Senior Track Men

EDWARD WESLEY BULLARD

"One of the gamest men that ever wore the Orange and Blue" is the phrase attached to "Ed" Bullard by his team mates. His never say die spirit has been evidenced in many meets, and he had peculiar satisfaction in beating some of the famous Big Eight distance men by scanty margins. Especially notable was his victories over Bishop of Chicago and Cleveland of Wisconsin in which races he nosed his opponents to the tape after they had obtained big leads. Illinois may have a better two-miler, but it will never have a gamer.

ARTHUR SEYMOUR NEVINS

As the broad jump is an outdoor sport as far as Illinois is concerned, "Art" had to step some in order to gather the necessary ten points for an "I." In his first year he was successful in accumulating only five, but last year he had points to spare. Besides he placed fourth in the 1912 conference. This year, altho he is playing in the national pastime, "Art" is expected to improve enough to be one of the best broad jumpers in the West.

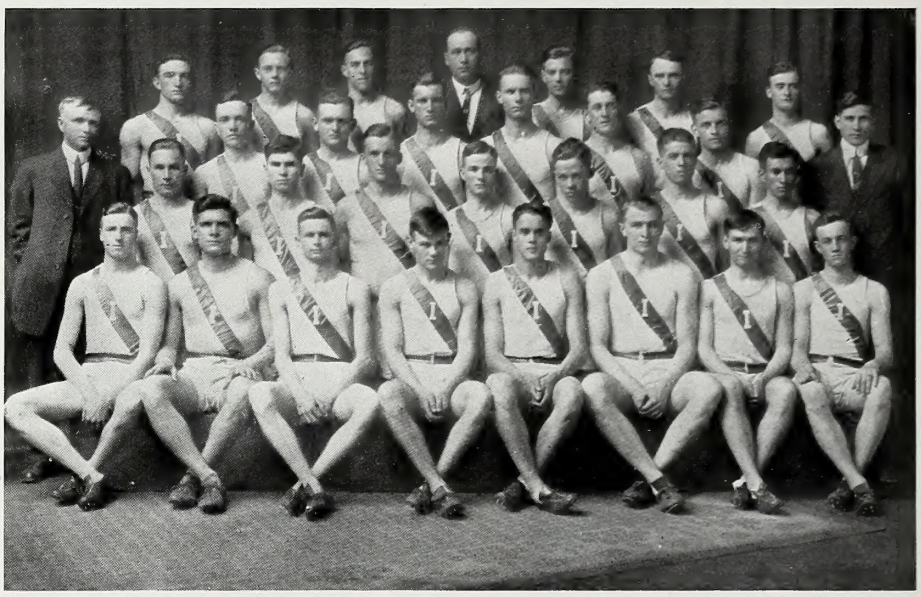

HARWELL CLOUD THOMPSON

"Tommy has found time from his studies, his military activities, etc., to win his letter in track in a most creditable manner. "Tommy" was never a star, but always a hard worker, and it was surprising how he would keep bettering his record from time to time. From a man who could not do five minutes in the mile to winner over the best that Chicago had to offer is some jump, but "Tommy" was equal to the occasion.

LLOYD COSTAR

One would hardly judge from "Tommy's" small stature that the high sticks were his favorite event, but he has proved a valuable team-mate to "Jack." He was a consistent point winner for the Illini in the low hurdles too. "Tommy" met with an unfortunate accident early this year, twisting his knee, which put him out of the competition for the indoor season. He is trying hard to be in shape to do a little running this spring, as he would like to score some more points before his college career has vanished into the past.

THE SEASON

To our new Varsity Basketball Coach, Ralph R. Jones, belongs the credit for the team, that starting with very indefinite prospects proved itself to be a team in the original sense of the word. Although not a championship winner and having a ranking of only fifth in the conference they never lost a game by a big margin and always showed the best of Illini fighting spirit. What was done this year is the preliminary training for a top-notch team next season.

HOMER W. DAHRINGER

For the third year "Darry" has been on the basketball floor with the regulars, this year as captain. His ability was seen in the way he played Coach Jones' game at center after changing from the forward position. Always on the job and continually breaking with a dribble for a shot and a basket, he brought Illinois many a score and incidentally made himself a "marked" man for other teams. Better praise would be hard to find.

JAMES G. WHITE

"Jimmy," another veteran of three years, is well known by the "English" he puts on the ball. Many a startling shot of his has twisted in, to the delight of the rooters and to the "I told you so" unconcern of James. At the guarding game he has held his own and with this year's system has worked fine as the offensive guard.

ROBERT W. HOFFMAN

At the defensive guard position was needed a big fierce man, and Hoffman was there to fit in—a perfect match. Many an opponent has taken the ball near his goal only to have "Bob" take it away from him and send it back where it belonged. Defence is his middle name and his forwards learned it in smashing.

HELMUTH J. KIRCHER

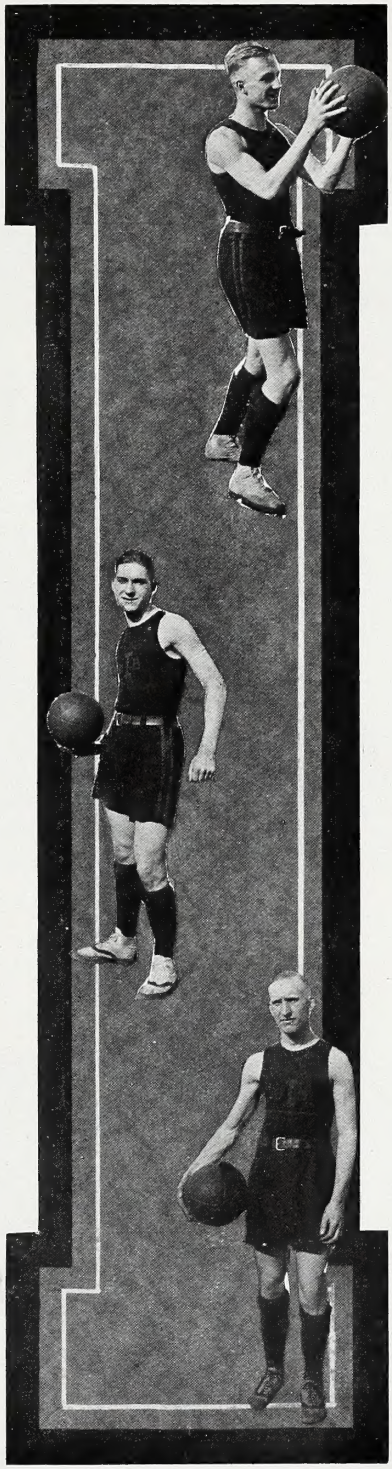

A good team worker and a fast man with the ball was discovered in "Kirch." His first season in fast company did not find him lacking, and with this year's season as experience he ought to be a true veteran next year.

E. ALLAN WILLIFORD

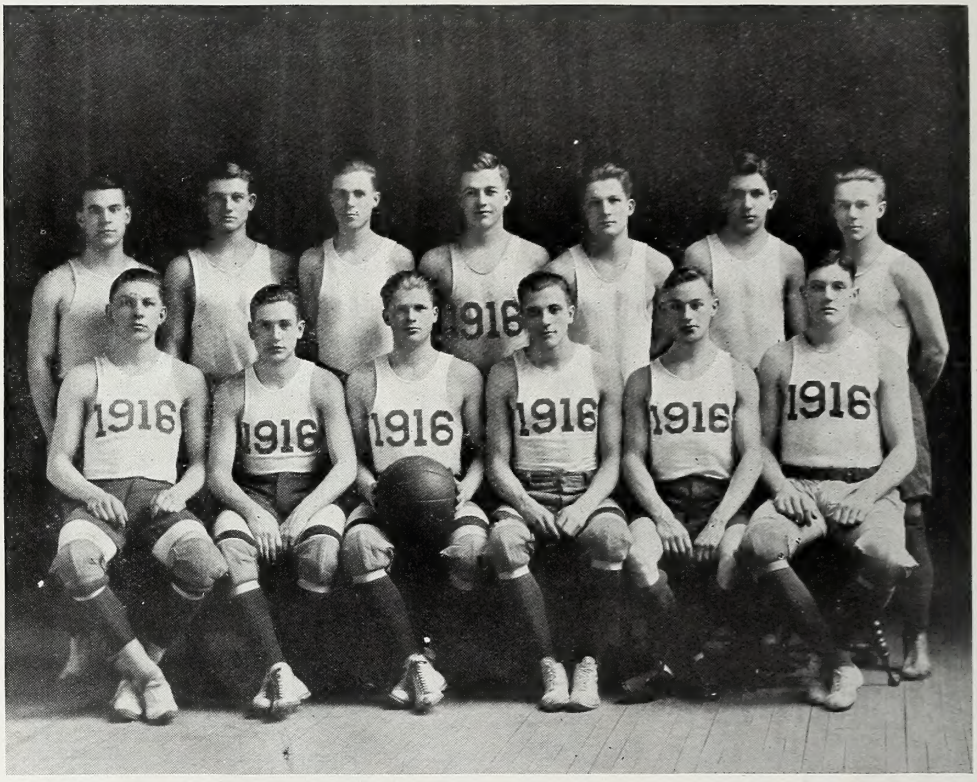

Seldom does a man break into conference ball the first year out and at that a regular for the entire season, but such is "Willie's record. As a point scorer he was fairly consistent and shows signs of being a star next season.

SWEN DUNER

Swen made his first appearance the last part of the season and immediately made a hit. Taking the offensive guard, he not only would stop the ball in the middle of the floor but would get away with several baskets. "If the 'Swede' would only talk," says Jones, "you couldn't beat him."

Even with water polo made a separate sport and the style of the game changed to suit the other Conference teams who had lost to the Illini by such large scores in 1911, the 1912 swimming and water-polo teams were able to win the Conference and Western Collegiate Championships by top-heavy scores. Missouri Athletic Club, Champions of America, beat them by a small margin in their own tank at St. Louis. Princeton had hard work to defeat the Orange and Blue for the Collegiate Championship of America. Illini who follow the aquatic sports are not satisfied with anything short of the Conference Championship, so the teams brought home the trophies from the Conference meet at Patten Gymnasium, March 29, 1912.

W. R. Vosburgh, captain of the swimming team, worked like a veteran in every meet, and he was the main point getter for the Illini, being versatile enough to place in the plunge for distance and the back stroke along with his heavy speed and distance swims. G. S. Beaumont was the new sophomore find who easily won the breast stroke race at the Conference. B. F. Taber, captain elect of the swimming team, won the back stroke easily.

M. I. Mix, captain of the water-polo team, did splendid work all season, and with the aid of such men as captain-elect Brockmeyer, C. B. Watson, H. P. Thompson, and Percy Gumaer, he could not do otherwise than win the championship. H. F. Doerr and O. R. Clements are two "I" men who have a year's experience to help them for the season of 1913.

The Freshman Varsity water-polo and swimming teams were strong opponents for the Varsity to have in practice. J. P. Lichter won the American Championship in the plunge for distance at St. Louis for the third successive year.

Fencing is becoming one of the most popular sports at Illinois. We think of it as French, but the boys at Illinois show by their records that Americans can take up the sport and hold their own. The great muscular activity and control seems to account for its popularity. It is wonderful how much movement may be made on the twenty feet by three feet strip which constitutes the arena for two men in a bout. Stepping off this field counts a point off for the offender. A point is squarely touching one's opponent in a field marked by the waist line, the sides of the body, and the collar bones. A touch on the arm, head or legs is a foul. A bout consists of two two-minute sessions, with the contestants exchanging ends between halves. The one having the most points at the end of this time wins. In case of a tie, two periods of one minute are played, and the decision made by it.

A team consist of three men, and in a dual meet each man meets every man on the opposing team, thus making nine bouts, the majority of them giving the decision of the meet to the winner.

Captain Sayre of the 1912 team seems to have been the mainstay of the team last year and he is making good again this year. He also coaches and manages the team, which, in themselves, speak well for his ability. Whenever there is a meet in which we are to send our representative, that one is chosen in a "round robin" contest among the men. Captain Sayre was our representative in all such contests last year. This shows that the captaincy was well placed for this year and we expect great things for him in the contests that are left for this year.

Coach-Captain Beebe of last year also deserves a great deal of praise, for it was due to his efforts that fencing was made such a popular sport at Illinois. He is missed, but he seems to have taught well, for the Illini are at it this year in their old form and better.

Pengilly has been on the team both years and he has always held his end of the meets well up in the scale. His experience speaks well for the future in Illini fencing.

Albrecht is a new man on the team but he has started in with a record that shows he is not a new man at the sport. He won all three of his bouts in his first conference meet.

Schurecht is the new sophomore find who bids good for the future.

Griffin and Fogg are working on the broadsword end of the game.

The team of 1912 claimed the Western Intercollegiate dual championship, and the team of 1913 is working hard and seeming to be able to repeat for the season for 1913. In the Individual Conference Championship, Sayre won second place, missing premier honors by a margin of one point.

Conference Gymnastics has been organized for ten years, but the season of 1912 was Illinois' third in competition. Under the effective tutelage of Coach Hana, the team was able to take second place in the Conference the first year and first place for the last two years. Such a record shows how well they are holding up the name of Illinois.

The season of 1912 was one big victory. The team took every place in every event in the dual meet in Bartlett Gymnasium where they won the Conference meet the year before. The boys showed their best form, however, on their home floor in the Conference Meet when they came near repeating the dual meet record.

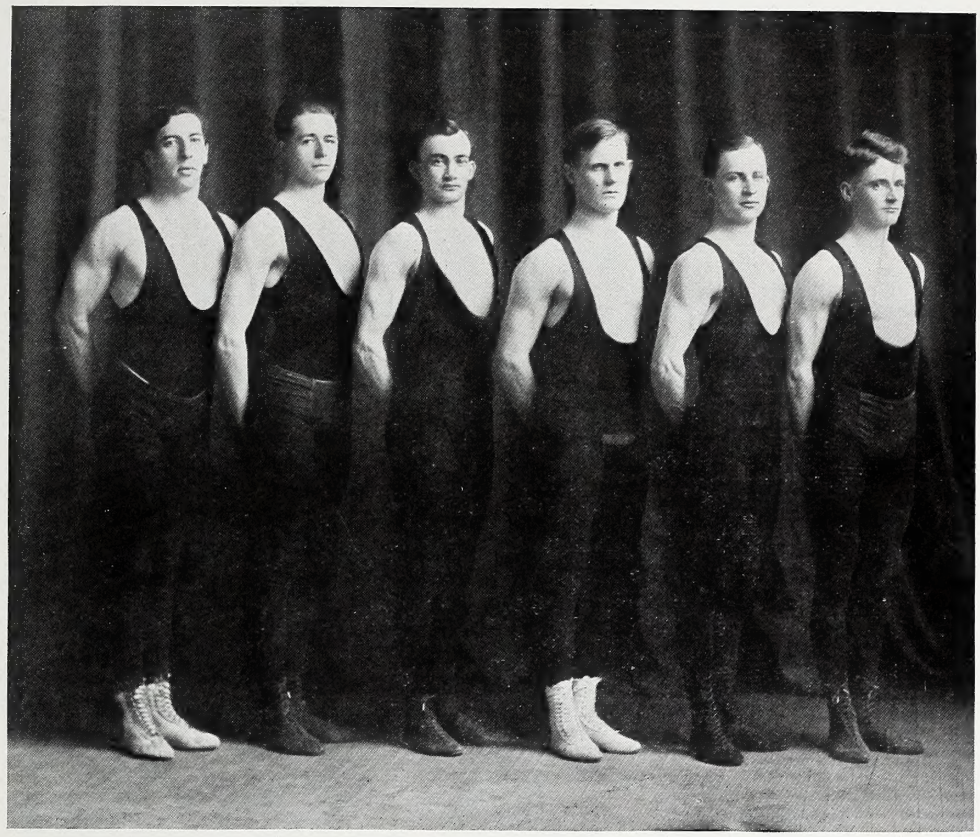

Captain Styles was awarded an I. for the third consecutive year on account of taking the all-around championship of the Conference as many times. Hollman and Geist were also awarded I's for their good work in 1912. Gymnastics is not a regular I. sport but these men have forced themselves into the consideration of the Board of Athletic Control by their excellence in performance. The board is now considering granting I's to winners of first places in the Conference meet. the boys surely deserve this recognition.

Tennis

The spring Class Tournament resulted in a tie between the junior and sophomore teams. Bad weather delayed the play, and the advent of final examinations prevented the play-off of the tie.

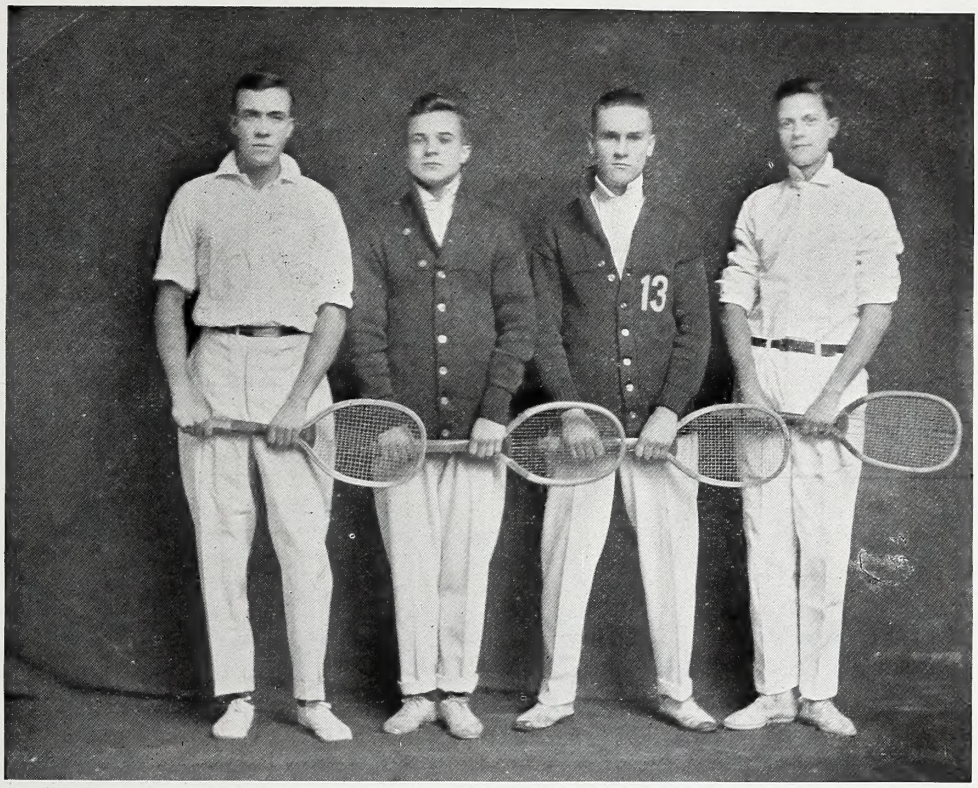

Illinois was represented at the conference meet in June by Ingersoll, Atkinson, Loehr and Karkow. The tournament was held on the Chicago University courts. Armstrong of Minnesota, again proved the deciding factor, Minnesota winning both the singles and doubles

CLAFLIN

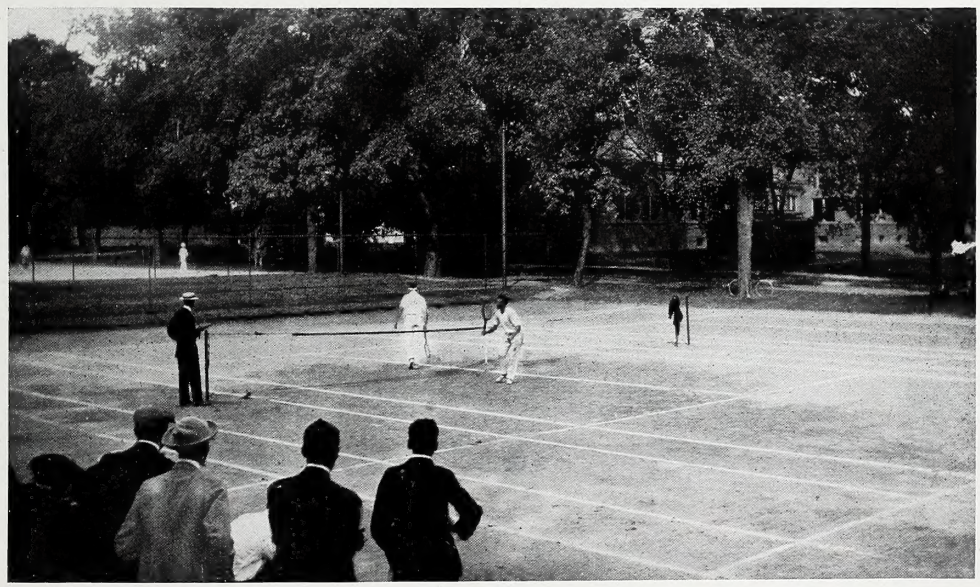

The 1912 tournament for the University championship opened September 25th with forty entries in the singles and fourteen in the doubles. An unusual number of promising freshmen increased the competition, and made the tournament one of the most interesting ever held on the University courts. The semi-finals were reached after a week of play, with Bebb, Buhai, Aldrich and Claflin still in the running. Bebb defeated Buhai in a long and interesting match, and Aldrich lost to Claflin. In the finals Claflin retained the championship by defeating Bebb in a well-played match, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0.

The doubles championship was won by Atkinson and Claflin, who defeated Karkow and Bebb in the finals, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 4-6, 6-2.

Under the management of R. H. Brown, the Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys have been proving a more interesting place from year to year. He is to be commended for the excellent spirit he has developed for the sport during his stay here.

The tournament in the early fall and winter to determine the single and double championships developed some keen competition. R. S. Mason, '15, and C. C. Chase, '15, won first place in the doubles with a score of 1008 for three games. Mason also had the high score of the tournament in a score of 212. Melac and Postel took second place in the doubles. D. T. Gamble, '14 was the winner in the singles with a score of 520 for three games. A. W. Davis took second with a score of 507.

In the eight team tournament the team captained by F. W. Postel won first place. His team mates were Broadbent, C. C. Chase, Gurley and J. K. Barber. The other teams finished in the order of the captains' names: A. S. Nevins, A. W. Davis, D. T. Gamble, W. Leriche, W. W. Miller, R. H. Brown, H. Bloebaum, Mulac, '16 won the five pound box of candy offered to the man with the highest average for the 21 games. His average was 157 13-21. R. H. Brown won the bowling shoes offered by E. M. Moll for the highest score made by a regular competitor.

As usual the local fraternities had a tournament in which Iris took first place by winning every game. Omicron Pi took second and Chi Beta, Delta Omega and Acanthus followed closely.

In the Inter-Class Tournament, the Juniors were far above their nearest rivals. Gamble rolled the high game of the series—233. His team mates were Fisher, Healey, Peeples and Richardson. The record of the tournament follows:

	Games Won	Games Lost	Percentage

Seniors	11	10	.522
Faculty	13	17	.433

Sophomores	8	19	.296

Chittenden of the faculty won the U. of I. championship with a score of 1471 for nine games. Other high scores were: Gamble, 1446; Mulac, 1427; Mason, 1426; Bloebaum, 1421.

Brown and Miller also won high game in the doubles with 431 and Brown placed 11th in the singles.

ILLINI BOWLERS

WRESTLING

The season of 1912 was the first for the Illini under a regular coach, and it was fairly successful. By the improvement over the year before, it makes our prospects in wrestling look good for the future. Coach Elston took the raw material at the beginning of the second semester and turned out a team that defeated Chicago, held Indiana close in a dual meet, and placed third in the Conference. Minnesota and Nebraska, two teams that the Illini did not meet, took first and second. This shows that our men were surely improving as the season advanced. With all of the 1912 team back in school, the outlook for the season of 1913 is very bright.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON OF 1912

The individual championship of the University was won by J. M. Kehlor, who defeated D. S. Shellabarger in the finals. In October the golf team went to Skokie Country Club at Glencoe, Illinois, to play the University of Wisconsin. Illinois won the team match by a score of 2 to 0. The following men made the trip: J. M. Kehlor, '14, R. C. Willians, '13, E. C. Prouty, '14, C. S. Walduck, '13, and B. F. Haugh, '15.

Arrangements are now under way for a western intercollegiate tournament to be held in the vicinity of Chicago in the spring. Several conference colleges have already signified their intention of entering teams.

VARSITY GOLF TEAM

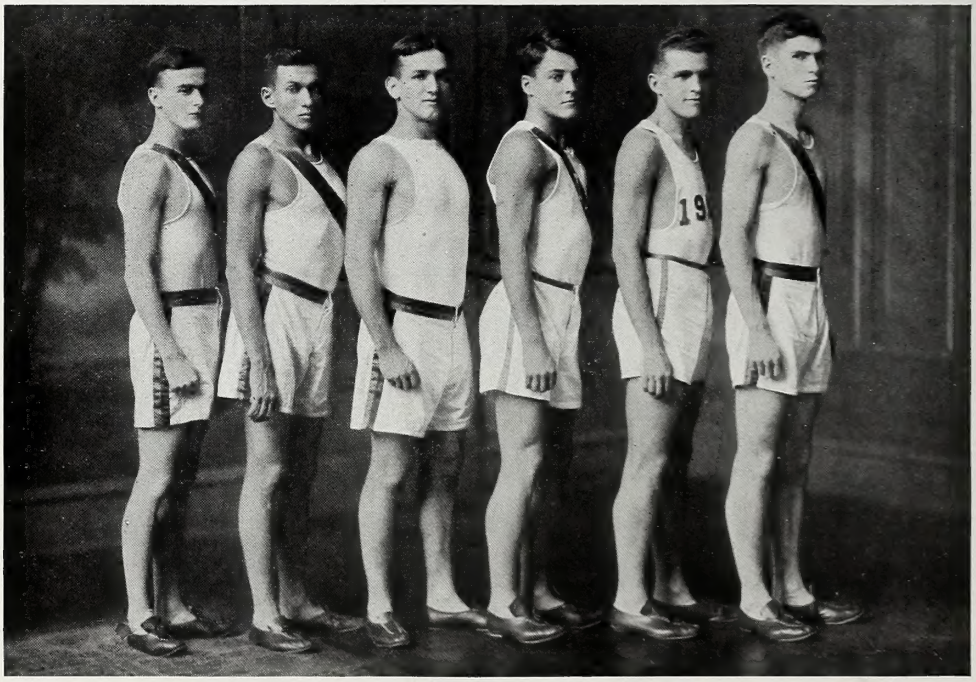

Illinois entered on a new field of intercollegiate sport this year by sending a team to the Cross Country Conference Meet held at Northwestern on November 23. The team, consisting of Welsh, Cope (Captain), Bolander, Thompson, Odell, and Sanders, placed seventh in the meet. Welsh, although handicapped with a broken rib, finishing ninth in the race. He is the first Illini to win an "I" in the new sport.

The long grind started in a flurry of snow. The runners were handicapped all the way by a stiff, chilly, lake wind, which kept all but the most enthusiastic spectators indoors. White of Wisconsin was the winner, and his team took the meet. Eleventh and last place was left for Chicago.

The cross country distance is five miles. The runner who finishes first scores one point, second two points, and so on. Each team starts with six men, and the aggregate score of the first five to cross the line constitutes the team score. Low score, of course, wins.

Harry Gill expressed himself after the race as well satisfied under the conditions, with the showing of the team. Next year all of the men except Cope and Thompson will probably be available, and with the addition of the good material now in the freshman squad, they should make a formidable conference team.

Class Athletics

In the year just passed, a new system of conducting class athletics was instituted, and the result was watched with interest. Previous to this year the management of class athletics was left in the hands of the classes themselves, and as a result there was little unity. The system adopted this year put the control of all class competition in athletic events into the hands of a board of managers. This board was made up of one member elected from each class, and a president chosen by the Athletic Association. It had charge of arranging the schedule of games to be played, and chose the various officials needed. The awarding of numerals and sweaters to the men on the teams was also taken charge of. In the past this has been done by the classes themselves, and as a result, the granting of a numeral or sweater was more a question of politics than of athletic distinction. Under the present system the board of managers decide on the men that are entitled to the numerals, and then the class, if it wishes, can award numerals or sweaters to these men and to no others.

There has also been a change in the athletic competition itself. In the first place, track work has been added to the list of class athletic work. Formerly the only competition in this line was the handicap meets, but last year several meets were arranged between classes. Another change was made in basketball, in that teams were made up from the colleges in the different classes, and a series of games was played and an all star team picked. This team was the one that represented the class in competition. Outdoor teams were also formed in this sport and a series arranged between them.

As a whole, this new system of class athletics has proved a success, as it has enlivened interest; and enabled more men to take part. It is only to be hoped that the success will continue in years to come as it has in the year just passed.

Class Football

The past year was a successful one as regards class football. Interest in this sport was aroused early in the year, and this interest continued until the last game was finished. Heretofore the teams in this sport have been paired off, and the winners of the preliminary games played each other for the championship. This year each team played one game with every other team, and the championship was decided on a percentage basis.

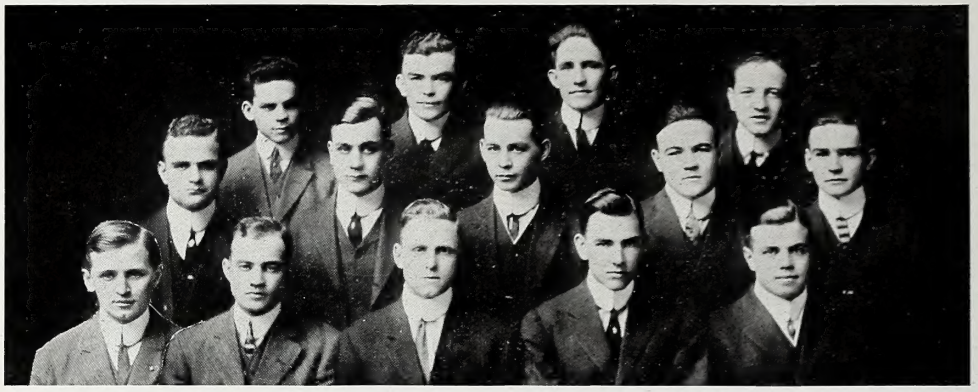

Under this arrangement the schedule was started, and interest was shown in the result. Although the days were cold, and the wind blew across the field, at each of the games a crowd of loyal class members could always be found, making up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. Whether the team won or lost, they cheered them on. The interest thus shown helped to a great measure to make the games well played.

The end of the series found the Freshman team without a defeat, and consequently they were awarded the championship. The Junior team earned second place by defeating all but the Freshman. The Sophomores finished third, and the Seniors, fighting against a season of bad luck, were forced to be content with the last place.

Class Basketball

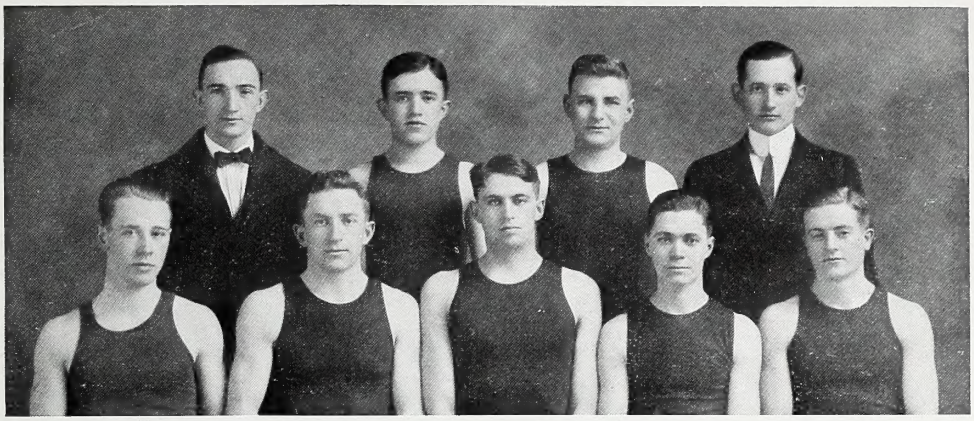

This year's season in class basketball was inique in that there were two series of games played, one in the fall and one in the spring. The games played in the fall were an inovation in class basketball, as they were outdoor games. There was one team from each class, and each team had one game with each of the other teams. The Juniors were awarded the championship, going through the season without suffering a defeat.

The regular indoor competition was held at the usual time. This year there were several teams from each class, who played a preliminary series to decide the championship of the class. There were certain judges watching these games, and an allstar class team was picked from the teams in the class. This allstar team was the one that represented the class against the other classes. A series was then played between these picked teams, and the one finishing with the highest percentage was awarded the championship. In this series also the Juniors were victorious, again going through the series without a defeat.

The Influence of the Class of 1913 on Civilization

A Lecture on the History of Education

Other great influences in the past, such as the Renaissance and the Industrial Revolution, have been factors in the civilization of man, but a far more significant influence was that of the Artistic Movement, inaugurated and spread over the whole world by the Class of 1913 of the University of Illinois. In this connection I refer you to Motley's Dutch Republic, the International Encyclopedia and the 1913 Illio.

The Artistic Movement was conceived simultaneously in the brains of every member of the class of 1913. At the very same time that Charley Morgan felt an irrepressible influence towards artistic art, Calvin White determined to show the world artistic poetry and W. S. Middleton decided to show the way to conduct an artistic political campaign. Dutch Weiss came forth with the original determination to make an artistic combination of chemistry and drama; Eugene Leslie posed for countless pictures illustrating artistic saber carrying, and Art Ogle, with commendable energy, illustrated the power of the press, as for instance in the honor system campaign, in an original artistic way.

Nor was the movement confined to the men of 1913. No indeed! In millinery creations, in wonderful cookery, in social organizations, and in various student activities, the Artistic Movement as promoted by the Girls of the Class of 1913 became very evident. The influence of their work and thought has revolutionized twenty-first century literature, art, drama, gardening, and bread making. In this connection read Thatcher Guild's Essay on Style, and the Epistle of Apostle Harry G. Paul.

Athletics, under the leadership of this group of people took on an artistic aspect. Models in terra cotta were made, showing the artistic attitudes of Y. M. C. A. President Hunter in an exciting race, of Naperstek behind the bat, and of Woolston in the back field carrying the ball. Business became a matter of art. Hop Harwood garnered shekels in a manner never before imagined, and he had numerous disciples. Organizations, too, yielded a bit to art, and under the deft touch of Teddy Fritchey flourished wonderfully. Engineering became as artistic as poetry, and Animal Husbandry as painting. In this connection read Carmichael's "Artistic Conception of a Hog."

What, is that the ten minute bell, and I have not yet spoken of Artistic Eating, Drinking, Horse-shoeing or Class-Cutting. I had meant to cite instances of the influences of such celebrities as Fort, Phil Ward, and H. W. Underhill. But we will discuss the question further at another lecture. For next time you may read the first fourteen volumes of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Class is Excused.

E. P. Hermann.

Junior Class History

Thrice crowned is the Junior!—not cowed and victimized as the Freshman; not blatant and temerarious as the Sophomore; not haughty and supercilious as the Senior, but a happy alloy of all, a conscious complex of all virtues which constitute that golden mean, the democratic, altruistic, representative undergraduate Illini—the Junior. He stands on the threshold of attainment, behind him, the self-satisfaction of success, with him, most glorious of all, that happiness, that enchantment, the mystic anticipation of an unrealized realization.

It is, then, with a calm reserve, untainted with egotism, that we may look back upon our victories or past years. Conquerors we have been. In two bloody push-ball campaigns we vanquished, first, our vaunted superiors, the class of 1913, and second, our presumptive inferiors, the class of 1915. No sooner had we reaped the laurels of these victories than we gained the football championship in 1911 from all the classes. Our prowess in basketball gave us the championship in our Junior year. In other sports our record is none the less remarkable and we have contributed nobly to the teams of our Alma Mater.

But athletics has not been the only source in which the class of 1914 has excelled. From our multi-talented legions have been picked many of those silvery tongued disciples of Demosthenes who have represented Illinois in the field of debate; we are widely known in the realm of literature; in dramatics, in truth, in every art known to the University curriculum. Socially, we have left such monuments of our genius as the Sophomore Cotillion and the inimitable Junior Prom.

With modesty we have borne our many laurels; with pride we retrospect upon the fruits of our labor, with hearts and minds whetted with ambition and ardour, we await impatiently the dawn of another year, another opportunity to work, to excell, to raise the flaunting standard of 1914 high over all, and proclaim a fourth crown by our attainments.

Sophomore Class History

Once upon a time a freshman class entered the University. This class seemed just as young, just as unlearned, just as green as all the freshman classes before it had seemed. Apparently it was made up of the regular proportion of grinds and flunkers, of society celebrities and social nonentities, of brilliant scholars and commonplace plodders. The class, casually observed, could hardly be distinguished from the one which had entered the year before, or the year before that. But way down somewhere this class was different—it was the class of 1915! The members of the class were not really as green as they looked, and they were certainly more intelligent than anyone supposed. Lurking about in unseen and as yet unfathomed depths were fountains of brilliancy which were to astonish the world when they should gush forth.

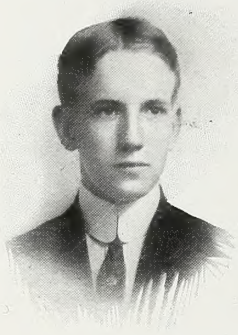

From the very first, the class of '15 began to make people realize its importance. Day after day its members strove and toiled, sometimes in view of the public, sometimes in the shadow, always attempting to bring the class to its proper place in the regard of mankind. In scholarship, in athletics, in society, they appeared in splendor. Failing once they were undiscouraged but pushed on with intrepid, invincible hearts. Gradually a faint glimmer of the true importance of the class of 1915 began to illumine the land. Someday, perhaps, its renown will possess the earth, and all will bow to the mighty class. Until that day, let the Sophomores continue their struggles, and hope for the final recognition of their surpassing glory.

Freshmen Class History

As Cyro Jenks sez, sez he, "You kin alleis tell the freshmen when you see 'em There's somethin' kinda pathetic about some of them, that sorta' makes you want to send 'em home to their ma's. But they aint like that when they've been here a spell. No sirree! Then you can't tell 'em from them conceited sophomores. Then there's some that thinks they's as smart as old Solomon himself. Them the kind the sophs like to tease. It kanda seems like freshmen is what you would call a necessary evil."

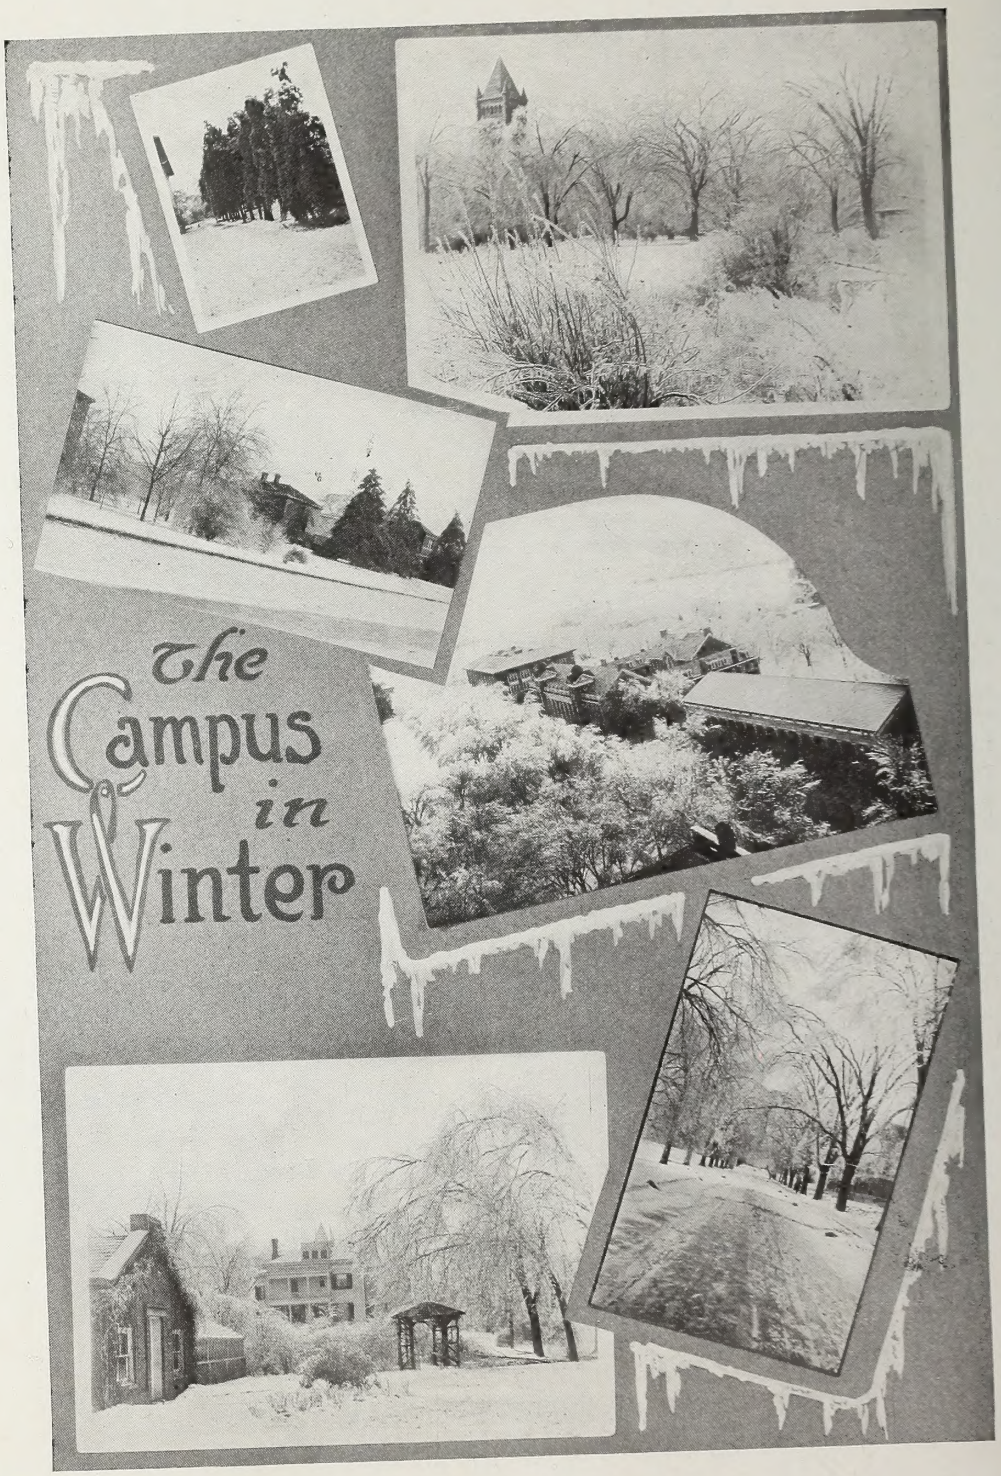

We can take Cyro Jenks as an authority, since he graduated from the college of Agriculture in 1874 and all his children and grandchildren have attended this University. We believe with him that the poor, timid, trusting freshmen look upon the Seniors, whom they admire from afar, upon the Juniors, whom they regard as distant friends, and upon the Sophomores, in whom they recognize their natural born enemies, with wonder and awe. The babes at first feel as much at ease in their new environment as a kitten does in water. Not until they have made the acquaintance of the Boneyard's silvery stream through the kindness of the sophomores, who always seem to be Johnny-on-the-spot, do they feel at home. At the pushball they have a chance to show for the first time of what stuff they are made, and midst the encouraging yells of the juniors and their fellow fershmen, they fight for all they are worth. Suddenly a wave of generosity seems to sweep over the fighters for '16, and without a murmur of complaint they allow the sophomores to win the victory. Even their enemies condescend to make a few good remarks about the freshman football team, for they won the class championship. How the babes celebrated that victory, for it proved they were worthy to be a class in this great institution! In the cold winter they took their share in the athletic affairs, basketball, track, and swimming.

We have seen that the freshmen are generous. Also they are as trustworthy as March weather. As for diligence in their studies, no other class can excel them in that; some of them actually had gray hairs from worrying so much about their examinations. But now after that horror is over, they are as happy as if they really knew something; and are looking forward to next year when they will be able to pay tribute to the freshmen, even as the sophomores have paid tribute to them.

Cyro Jenks sez, sez he, "Spring sure is a-comin', haint it? If you dont beliee me, just look at them there little green caps. My, but them freshmen learn fast."

Miss Isborn reports her loss to be in the vicinity of $1500. "Twelve pairs of new long white gloves, my dear, twenty-four pairs of silk stockings, two Parisian gowns worth, oh, about a thousand apiece, my dear; a scarf which is an heirloom in the family; Queen Victoria wore it before I got it. And, my dear! worst of all, a package of love letters, tied with blue ribbon—cost $1.25 a yard, my dear!"

Anyone who can give information as to the whereabouts of the trunk call Automatic 1451 and receive reward.

BOYS JEER AT FAIR COEDS

Students at University of Illinois in Uproar at Sorority Pledge Day.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 25.—Amid scenes of excitement University of Illinois sororities conducted their annual "pledge day" while "sorority row" was packed with hundreds of masculine spectators who jeered as the sorority freshman co-eds walked to their chosen Greek letter societies.

"Rusty" Salmon, a student comedian masquerading as a co-ed was wheeled down the street in a wheel barrow decorated with a sign "Thanks, I accept." So eager became the press of men that the front doors of the sorority houses were locked. Among the pledges were:

Pi Beta Pi—Mildred Forney, Prophetstown.

Kappa Alpha Theta—Martha McLean, Lavinia Stinson, Edna Gladys Fishleigh, McComb; Altha Watson, Topeka, Kan.

Delta Gamma—Peach, Andrews, Macon; Dorothy Chew, Pueblo, Colo.

Alpha Chi Omega—Eva Wellpp, Decatur.

Alpha Xi Delta—Maude Thilke, Omaha, Neb.

These men plan to attend the banquet given this evening in honor of Herr and Frau Kreuger of Halle university.

"HE" CHORUS GIRLS MUST COVER ANKLES

DEAN FAWCETT OBJECTS TO TANGO AND MODERN DANCES IN STUDENT OPERA

The student chorus girls of "The Prodigal Prince," the Illinois Student Union opera, will not be given an opportunity to show their dimpled calves this year, as it has been decreed that they shall wear long dresses that will cover their symmetrical ankles. This will no doubt be a great blow to the boys as they expected to be regular chorus girls.

Dean Mary Fawcett, who was appointed on the committee to investigate the play, by Dean Clark, has objected to having any of the modern dances in the show. This puts the managers at a disadvantage inasmuch as they had planned to stage the Tango and other forms of the terpsichorean art. The promoters of the play feel that an injustice is being done them as the modern dances are permitted at all of the club and fraternity affairs.

Nevertheless they have promised to live up to the rules laid down by the committee.

Another rehearsal of "The Prodigal Prince" will be held after the Easter vacation.

ARC LIGHTS TO BANISH COEDS' LOVERS' LANE

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 9.—Daniels street, which up to this time has been dim and shadowy after dark, henceforth will wind its more or less love-lit way in the radium glare of sixty powerful electric arc lights.

Like many another institution which grove by its dark and devious ways, Daniels street has been under investigation. It was accused of harboring "spooners" and convicted in a hurry when a woman dean of the university decided to see for herself.

The dean concealed herself behind a big elm tree shortly after dusk and remained at her post until after midnight. She kept count on spoony pairs with a pocket multiplying machine, and says the kisses and hugs were so numerous she couldn't keep track of them.

The offenders all were students and coeds. The dean knew this by the brands of college tobacco the men smoked and by the sturdy athletic suits of the girls.

She rushed to the woman's building at the university and wrote all she saw. The next day she called a meeting of all the members of the faculty, and, amid various gestures indicating extreme wrath, she reported the "horrid" affair.

The city of Champaign already had appropriated $15,000 for better lighting facilities, and while the row was hot the women faculty members petitioned for better lights along "Lovers' lane."

P. S.—There are still two streets left that are eligible as "Lovers' lanes."

WOODS AS MANAGER

Pekin Boy in Charge of the Big Electrical Show at U. of I.

Dan Woods, a son of City Treasurer Charles Woods, has been appointed to the important position of manager of the electrical shows which will be given at the University of Illinois on February 5, 6 and 7. This show will be one of the biggest affairs of its kind in the country and has been given prominent mention in the electrical journals of this country, and even in Germany by one magazine. Mr. Woods is in entire charge of the preparations for the show and this honor is a recognition of the young man's ability in electrical affairs.

PARENTS FEARFUL OF ELOPEMENTS

CHAPERONAGE AT ILLINI BALL IN CHICAGO WILL PLACE CURB ON CUPID.

On account of the elopement of Miss Clara M. Prosser of 1537 East Sixty-sixth street from the University of Illinois with H. H. Harwood, a senior at the same institution, parents of Chicago girls home from the university for Easter vacation are demanding that the Illini club provide strict chaperonage for its Easter festival next Monday evening at the Hotel LaSalle. The telephone of J. P. Beck, '07, chairman of the arrangement committee, has been kept busy with pleas of anxious parents whose daughters are going to the ball and who fear the elopement germ which the undergraduates have brought home.

W. L. Abbott of Chicago, president of the board of trustees of the university, on news of the elopement of Miss Prosser and Mr. Harwood, responded to the demands of parents and took up the matter of chaperons. "The innovation is all right," Mr. Abbott declared enthusiastically. "I approve of it heartily."

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott's own daughter is attending the university.

The committee on arrangement has also planned a solid program of the new dances with the tango featured. Many protests have been heard. Mrs. Charles Henrotin, who, as one of the trustees, heads the list of patronesses, disapproves of this plan. Two dancers from a downtown theatre have been engaged to demonstrate the advanced Terpsichorean diversions in the face of opposition from the conservative elders. It is furnished that the president of the university, Edmund J. James, who will be present at the "prom," may use the privilege to censor the dancing.

MACOMB BOYS WORK HARD

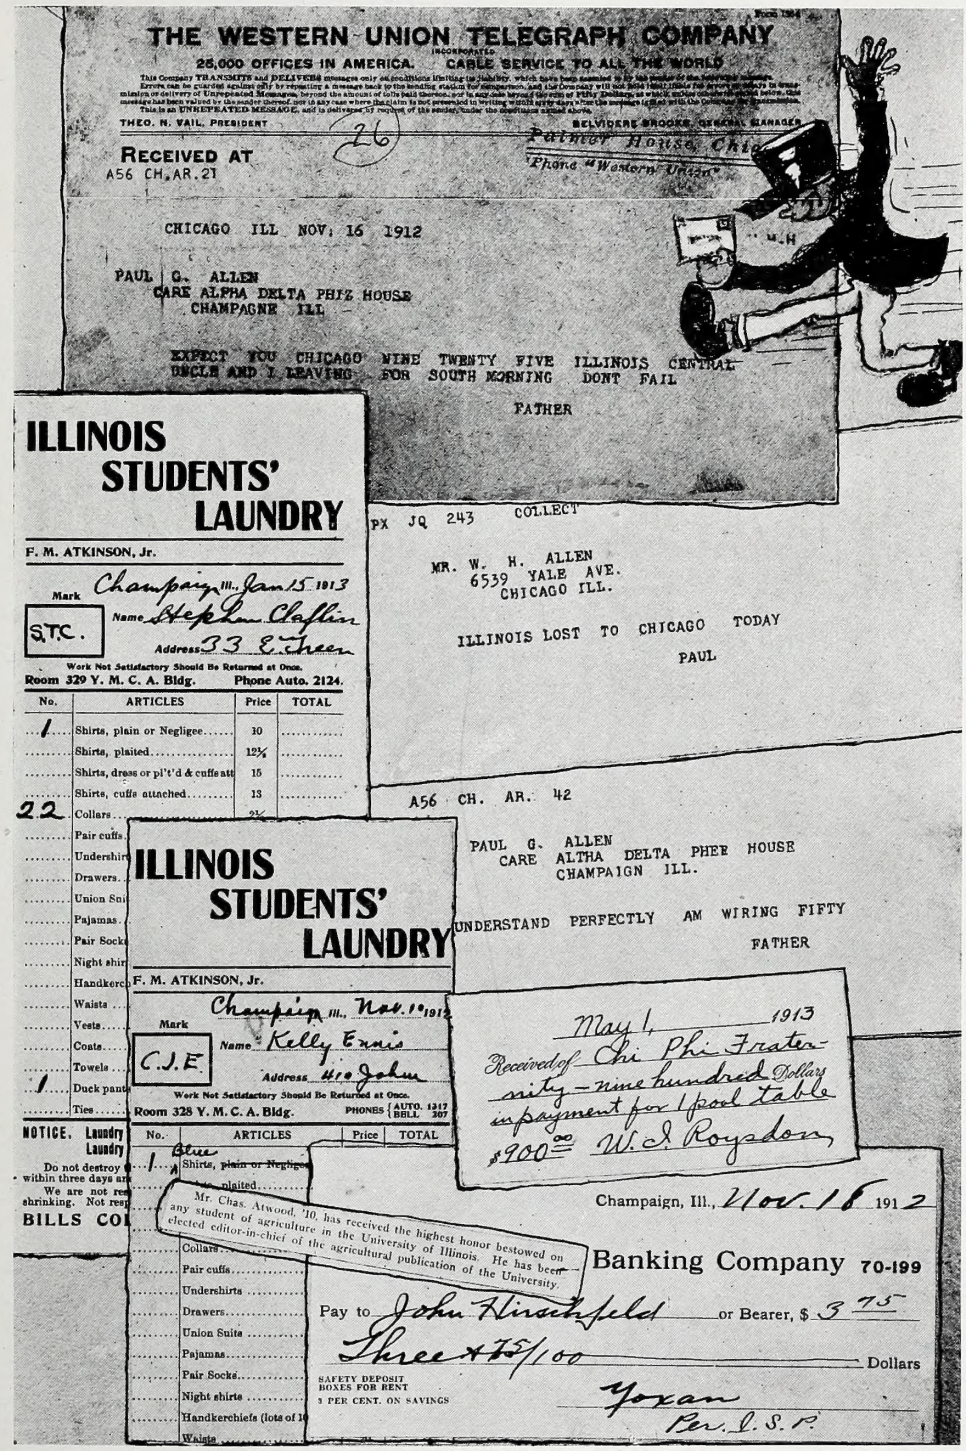

TO MAKE ELECTRICAL SHOW AT UNIVERSITY A SUCCESS.

Charles Horrell Holds Important Position as Business Manager—Will Be Held in February.

Charles Horrell, Louis McCaughey and Clinton Erwin, three well known young men of this city, who are attending the University of Illinois, will play important parts in an electrical show which will be held in February at the State University. Mr. Horrell was given the important position of business manager of the exhibit, and is well qualified to uphold the duties of this important office. Louis McCaughey will have charge of the fire preventatives and is well versed in that department.

All of the McDonough county boys who are taking electrical engineering at the university, are working hard on the show. One of the most important, if not the most important, is that of business manager. This position is held by Charles R. Horrell. He has been working for some time in getting exhibits and during this vacation has been in correspondence with many of the leading manufacturers in the country. Louis McCaughey has charge of the fire preventatives. With a voltage varying from 2 to 200,000 volts, and the constant danger of a probable short circuit in the operation of some exhibit, the fire marshal must be on a constant watch. Mr. McCaughey's experience with his father in the Macomb fire department should prove of valuable assistance, and should a fire break out he will be able to cope with it in the proper manner. Clinton Erwin will also assist in some part of the work.

The purpose of the show is to ad-

Dearest:—

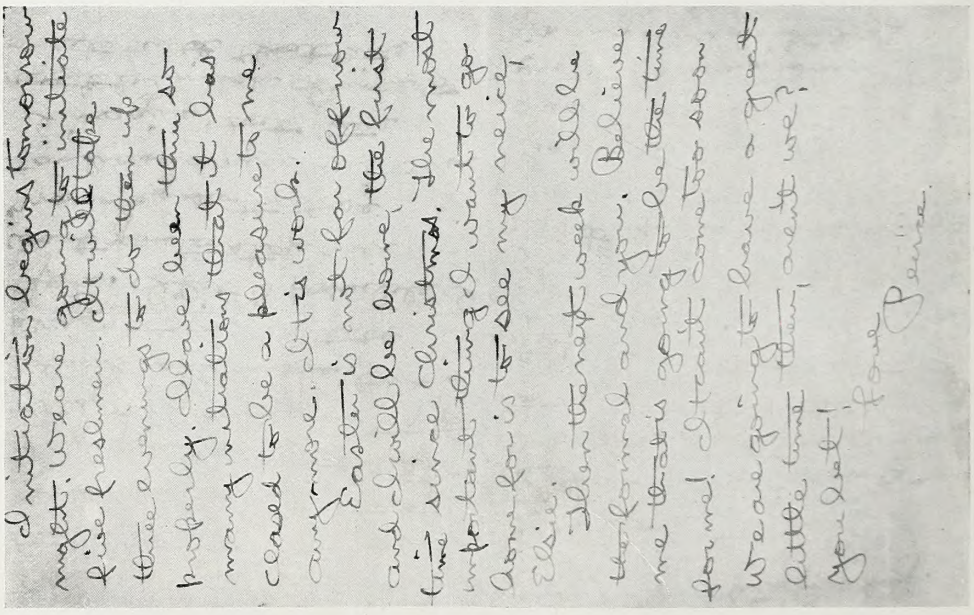

Received your note of Monday and was glad to hear that Father (may I) was getting better. I only hope his condition will improve right along.

Freeman, whose name I have mentioned before, is going to bring a girl over from Indianapolis for the formal. She is coming over on Friday, leaving there on that train about 11:30. If you come over on that day you can meet her there and come over together which will make it more pleasant for both of you. If it is possible I want you to stay over Monday so that we can have a nice visit for I imagine that there won't be much chance to visit until that time

Skylark Burns was sitting in his study, his lamps glued to a microscope, searching with keen eye the bottom-most heights of the Siren for a joke. Suddenly the door was pushed open and a heavily-veiled and much excited individual rushed in, frantically waving a letter in his left hand. "You are one of the Illio roast board," announced S. Burns, quietly. The visitor gasped, threw aside his veil, and handed the letter over. "Freeman, Freeman," said the sleuth. "Quick Finch, the directory." Here we have it—Freeman, 209 E. Green—That's the Phi Sig house. Now, Finch, to the Illio and look thru Phi Sig for a man named Pierce. Quite simple—Henry Pierce Vandercook."

Oct 17th 1912

Dear Miss Green -

Owing to the extraordinary conditions which have caused us indirectly to meet am writing this letter attempting if possible to reconcile a meeting between us. I am withholding my name in this matter only for fear this letter may not be answered. For in such an event the mortification I would suffer would overwhelm me and I would undoubtedly be unable to face for any length of time upon this earth.

Since the terrible scorging your landlady handed us yesterday I and I also speak for my brothers are almost afraid to show ourselves at any of the windows. But we would surely like to meet you in a purely conventional way and I am simply offering this correspondence to see if possible if this may not be brought about.

If you care to answer this letter I would be very grateful and it is my highest desire that you should chose to do so.

Hence! Hoping to hear from you by return mail, I am,

Yours in hope.

Just as Skylark had taken another shot in the wrist a letter was thrust under the door. "Begins to look like a dead letter office, eh Finch. Written from 1005 S. Wright. That's the Phi Delta Phi house. Rear window—Why Wirt Herrick has a rear window. Easy Finch, get your army revolver, I'm going out to find the last minutes of T. N. E. Telephone your wife that we wont be back for a week."

FROM MARCH POPULAR MAGAZINE

From a Student in the University of Illinois

"I am sure that there is no class of people who appreciate the "Popular" more than do students. After a hard day's work in the classroom, and at studying, there is nothing quite so pleasant as sitting down and reading one or more stories in your magazine. I have been reading your magazine but little over a year, but I am as enthusiastic over it as I am when we beat Chicago at football.

HAVE you spent the time of one dance at Reimund's this evening? Let's see, the next one's a waltz—that will give us plenty of time to get some of the really good stuff they know how to make over there. Then we can drop around afterward too. ✂ ✂ ✂ ✂

1.—Dancing must not start before musicians arrive.
2—Programs should be as inconspicuous as possible to avoid promiscuous exchange of dances.
3—No girl shall dance with more than one man at a time.
4—During dreamy waltzes, both participants must keep their eyes open.
5—No shoving allowed.
6—Among the dances approved are, "'Virginia Reel," "Cake Walk," "Single Jig," and Sailor's Hornpipe."
7—It is etiquette to dance with the chaperones, and policy to dance with all the profs in sight.
8—The center of the floor is where all the fancy dancing should be tried out.

Big and Little Dipper

9—No gentleman may Boston on his lady's toes.
10—Tall girls take care not to turn their heads at more than 45°.
11—Gentlemen must not chew ladies' hair.
12—Ladies should always wear a somewhat cheerful expression.
13—Dancing must cease when lights go out.
14—Dr. Folsom should always be included among the referees.

REVISED VERSION

(By the Kappas)

Everybody's doing it, doing it, doing it,
Everybody's doing it, doing it, doing it,
See those Pi Phis doing the bear,
See those Thetas dipping over there,
Oh, what fame! What a shame! Oh dear!
Alpha Chis are doing it! Doing what? Turkey Trot!
Chi Omegas hug you tight, with all their might, think it's right.
Oh! What see we there? Sanitary dancing—handle with care.
It's the girls with the golden key,

GENE'S LETTER HOME

Dear Papa and Mamma:

I would have written before, but I have been so tired on account of a dance we gave. It was on Saturday as that is cheaper and we could get to bed earlier. We had it in the roller-skating rink. "Bill" Bennett was the orchestra, so it didn't cost very much. The co-eds bothered us all week for invitations, but we made it a point to ask only those girls who had taken us to at least six dances. "Hub" Dooley doesn't care much for dancing and girls, so he brought his French books along and studied. The refreshment committee forgot to order the eats. Johnny Parks didn't remember to have the floors waxed. Mr. Johnson tore six girls' trains, but everybody enjoyed it so much on account of our national reputation.

Your affectionate son,

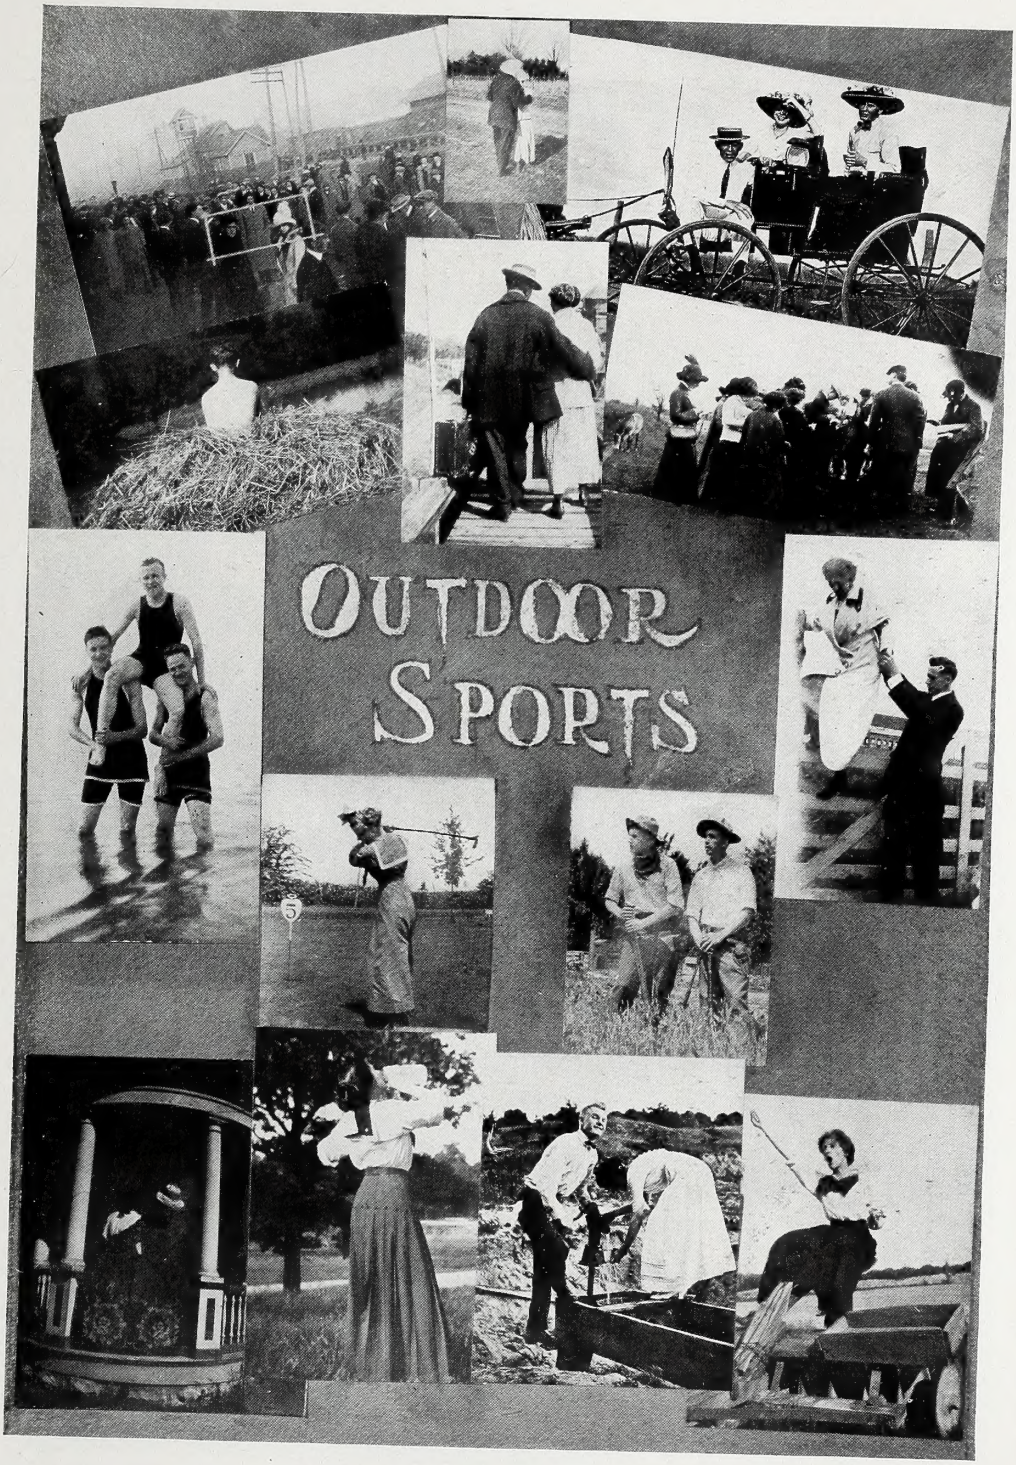

Eugene Shobinger.

P. S.—Please send 37c to cover the expense of the dance.—E. S.

MINUTES OF THE LAST MEETING

Regular semi-annual meeting called to order by President Rowe. The election of a president for the ensuing semester being in order, Brother Hudelson nominated Brother Dahringer for the office. His nominating speech touched on his candidate's athletic ability and made reference to the number of fraternity bids which had been given him. This latter fact made such a deep impression on the less fortunate members that the secretary was instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for Brother Dahringer. In his inaugural address the new president spoke on the dearth of material for organization and advised the members not to use their talents too much as there were several men who were good fellows socially but who had been crowded out of college honors by the strength of the men already holding them. Meeting adjourned as the entire chapter were going over to see Herb Bye.

Rushing Arguments

DELTA TAU DELTA

Here turn to the ILLIO. You see we're first. Why even the University thinks we're the best. Meet Nig Healy—He almost got his "I" last year.

SIGMA CHI

Don't you think that you would like to live in a real nice house like we got? We're the boys that start all the spring celebrations. If you have time tonight we'll go over to the Phi Delta Phi house and introduce you to the best part of our chapter.

KAPPA SIGMA

Just look at the number of chapters we got—78—everybody wants to be a Kappa Sig. We got two captains, Dahringer and Rowe, after all the fraternities in school wanted them. Don't you believe a word Tommy Arkle tells you.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

We admit this isn't a good house but wait till you see the one we're planning. Why our fraternity runs a general fund for loaning money for new houses. Just look us up in Baird and see the number of houses we have. Besides you can't find a trio to beat Goelitz, Belnap and Woods.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Bullard—"You hold his legs Nig and I'll get his arms; Kelly, you choke him so he can't yell—there we got the pin on him."

BETA THETA PI

We practically control the University publications through Hop Harwood, Pete Daugherty and Dutch Weis. Did you ever read George Fitch's essays? He's a Beta too.

SIGMA NU

Formals, why we have more of them than Bongart does informals, and our Hotel de Ville has the finest equipment for your needs of any hostelry in the two cities. As to automobiles we expect to have two in working order by spring and the boys will be only too glad to take you out for a ride.

ALPH DELTA PHI

You say you have some journalistic ability, eh—well this is just the bunch for you. Art Ogle can get you any job you want on the "Illini." We have the Pi Phis over every Sunday for dinner and if you would like the company of some real classy girls that are in for everything from A to Z we can sure get you in good there.

DELTA UPSILON

Say, just take a look at the pictures of our famous athletes around the house—and d'yuh see those two fellows standing over there with "I" caps on?—well, they're our hurdlers, Case and Costar. We're a playful, homely bunch, and we all like a little roughhouse once in a while. An' you know you can throw your empty bottles an' stuff right out of the window into the Boneyard. By the way, you're an Ag, aren't you?

THETA DELTA CHI

Back East they used to call Theta Delt the Thirty Dirties, but they haven't anything on us now, eh? We've got the whole "Prodigal Prince" cast, with Kneisley and Frailey and Norman Hackett. This is a poor looking house we're in at present, but if you'll be one of us we'll be mighty glad to have you contribute toward a new one. See that other freshman over there? Well, he's got an auto, and we'll certainly get him. We used to have one of the best politicians in school, Pug Parker, but he's left us to take up an important position.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

We're Dekes, and anybody that has that name can get along anywhere even if he isn't any good at all. Theodore Roosevelt is a member of our frat, and don't believe anything that the Alpha Delts say to the contrary.

SIGMA PI

The Illio has it that we were founded at Vincennes but we were really chartered by King George II. in 1752. You see that fact alone gives us a backing that can't be beat. Perhaps you've heard of Billy Bryan—he's one of our most active brothers and we expect that through his influence a chapter will soon be installed at Princeton.

ZETA PSI

Our patron saint is Lincoln and if you would like to see all the things we've got of his we'll show you. We have two of his skulls, one the time of his birth and the other when he died. Next to him comes Curly Johns—he's manager of the Illio you know and he says he'll get that pamphlet out by the 10th of May. That ought to show you what a big man he is. Steve Claflin is our representative in tennis, and he also has a strong pull in all the sorority houses that he doesn't visit much.

PSI UPSILON

Boy, look at our big men, Bill Taft and Pete Wright, the student philosopher. And there's Laddy M'Keown, our politician. Where do you buy your books? Co-op? Why we can get you a ten percent reduction there through Charlie Graham.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Come on in the other room with us and we'll show you the plans for our new house. And did you notice the cup we won in the Post-exam Jubilee? Step over here and meet Doc Folsom and Mother Seymour; join Phi Sig and you'll always have a home with them. Why, we've a strong rep. in the East.

PHI DELTA THETA

We're the first fraternity to have a house down here. Take a look at our seniors. You can't find bigger men on the campus. Come into the next room and take a look at our captains.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Remember the nervous little fellow with spectacles who spoke to the freshmen down at the Y. M. C. A.?—He's an A. T. O., and incidentally dean of men. Among our good students are Fat Hunter and Dutch Maury.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

We have the reputation of being the best behaved bunch in the University. You never hear of any Phi Gams being put on probation. Joe Pitts over there will introduce you to any sorority girl you want to meet. If you would like a little fun now and then, Zu Randolph and Jim Nichols will take you out.

CHI PSI

Never judge a chapter by its age but by its national rep; look at us and how long we had to work to beat Ilus out of Chi Psi. Why we've a $100,000 house at Cornell. We almost controlled the football team last year when the Beltings and Prince were here. Don't you know Nichols of the Glee Club?

CHI PHI

Here, look at this roast in the Illio, "He who joineth himself with an athletic team, linketh himself with Ibis." Ibis was our local,you know. There's Smejkal and Naprstek, surely you've heard of them. Then there's Silkman, Senneff and "Jake" Gonsior, the sprinter. And sh—this is a little tip, we've got a good chance to get in Pan-Hell soon.

Minutes of the Last Meeting

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

Special meeting called to consider the proposed sleighride party. Brother Berry read a list of the sororities which had not yet given formals and advised the brothers to consider that fact when they made dates. Brother Shobinger reported that Johnny O'Byrne would carry fifteen couple for $5.05 and any above that number to be ten cents a piece extra. On motion, Brothers Grout, Park and Sporlein were not allowed to make dates for the affair in order to come within the fifteen limit. Meeting disbanded because most of the brothers were crowded to the west windows.

SIGMA NU

Meeting called to order. Brother Honer instructed to call in Ecoze and Kircher from the street, where they were playing ball. Brothers Melchen and Miller wheeled in in invalid chairs. Contribution of $1000 by Brother Reum toward the building fund, accepted and vote of thanks extended to said brother. Brother Applegate moves that the formals be cut out and better meals be served. Bill of $46.75 for floral decorations at last dance presented. To meet said bill, Brother Miers moves that the chapter pledge another man or raise the initiation fee. Meeting adjourned so that Brother "Red" Cole might visit his wife.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Brother "Fat" Hunter commissioned by President Maury to call in the brothers who were attending the services at the McKinley Memorial Church, as there was only one-third of a quorum present. Meeting called to order thirty minutes later. Brother French comes down with hair neatly plastered down. Brother Wansbrough appointed to get "Heinie" Bloebaum to classes. Brother "Ziggy" Thomas swallowed his chew and asked to be excused. Suggested rules of conduct for Alpha Tau Omega by Dean Clark read. Moved by Sister Hemphill that they be accepted. Motion lost for want of a second. Meeting adjourned as Brother Pfeiffer had to escort his kid brother to the library.

PHI DELTA THETA

President Conrad called the meeting to order but a quorum was lacking. Sergeant-at-Arms Chet Davis instructed to call up Clara Cronk, the Theta House, and to call Shrimp Holbrook away from the mirror. Brother Mac Downing reports that at Knox College the dance programs contained nothing but Bostons and recommends that a like plan be adopted for the next informal. Committee appointed to pick out a new suit and smooth toed shoes for Borther Hart. Brother Art Morris arrived and begged to be excused as he had some work to do at the Law Library, and had to drop in at the general library before the evening was over. Appropriation voted Brother Claycomb to dye his mackinaw a more conservative hue. Sergeant-at-Arms announces that there are telephone calls from West Champaign for several of the brothers and meeting adjourned.

BETA THETA PI

Meeting called to order half an hour late as Brother Weis had fallen down the elevator shaft while walking along the west hall. Brother Ken Brown reported missing and a frantic search resulted in finding said brother wandering aimlessly around the third floor having become confused by the many doors and halls. Other freshmen report similar troubles. Pete Daugherty has a long distance telephone call and on his return tells the brothers that his mother was afraid he was married having heard of Brother Harwood's misfortunate adventure. Dance committee reported balance of seventy-five cents from last dance. Motion made that the above amount be added to the fund for paying contractor's bill on house.

DELTA TAU DELTA

Meeting called to order by Bert Nelson. Overture by Rusty Bainum. Nig Healy excused on account of pressing engagement with lady friend. Froggy Pfeffer missing, but a freshman soon found his scent and carried him back home. Roll call taken of those who had received bids to the Theta formal. Stokes Web and Zeke Currier instructed to turn over their press agent money to the permanent house fund. Meeting adjourned so that the chapter could go down to Page's and pull for Hank Ramey in the interfraternity billiard tournament.

SIGMA CHI

Meeting called to order with Bill Levis absent, he being over in West Champaign. Sergeant-at-Arms instructed to call up the Phi Delta Phi house and summon the rest of the chapter. Committee appointed to clean up the rest rooms for lady guests and hide some of the fraternity songs. Sub-committee appointed to get a new frame for Wirt Herrick's old picture. Hick Heath excused so he could get a letter off on the first train for Chicago. Meeting adjourned to allow Hank Ryther to go down town and mourn for his departed companion, Hugo Hahn.

KAPPA SIGMA

Meeting called to order by the vice-president during the absence of Leroy Pape. Brother Chase nominated himself for next president of the chapter. Brother Kessler reported absent, probably over in West Champaign. Brother Boone cut up a little for the diversion of the brethren. Brother Spalding announces that the Pi Phi meeting is over, as the lights are out, and asks to be excused. Brother Dahringer excused to go play Jimmy White a game of billiards. Brother Buck Ramsey and Brother Bob Ramsey start an argument about women and meeting broke up in disorder.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

Meeting called to order by George Woods. Brother White raised him five, from force of habit. Sergeant-at-arms Belnap instructed to call upon Warfield and Griftner and tell them to come to meeting. Upon returning from this duty Belnap moved that additional floral decorations and olives for the house be procured in the usual way. Track team nominated for the job, being the best runners. Sister Louise Gregory objected on the ground that if we got caught he would lose a lot of lovin's. Meeting adjourned immediately when sombody rattled the poker chips.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

Opening hymn led by Brother Noerenberg. Brothers Randolph and Nichols slightly out of tune, probably from exposure to severe weather along the interurban. Brothers Kirkwood and McBroom ask to be excused in order to go down and have a game of billiards, as McBroom was training for the great interfraternity billiard tournament. Brother Welty saw Jean Ripley coming up the street and announced that it was time for him to go up to Landscape Gardening and work. Meeting adjourned in order to decide which was the best man in the chapter, the choice lying between Dave Shellabarger and Baldy Simpson.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Meeting quietly opened amid the great and peaceful silence of our barnlike though homelike house. No business of importance brought up, as there was none, and for a while nothing was heard but the rustling of the cobwebs. Finally Brother Light arose and began to deride Mawanda and University politics in general. Brother Ward asked the help of the brethren in obtaining just one more committee chairmanship. Sounds of spirituous hilarity outside caused a general adjournment by common consent.

"Wagenknight, you remember Grace Church don't you?"

Drop me in Danville, or chuck me in Cadiz,
Dump me in Kansas or plant me in Rome—
I shall keep on making love to the ladies
Where there's a skirt is my notion of home.
—Blondy Noerenberg, ΦΓΔ.

She isn't in pain, and it's not her tight clothes
That give her this painful expression;
She's attempting to look like a real Gibson pose;
That's all—it's not indigestion.

"Dutch" Weis, His Page

Pete—"Now that your engagement is broken are you going to make Julia send back your letters?"

Dutch—"You bet I am; I worked hard thinking out those letters. They're worth using again."

There was a young Beta named Weis,
Who certainly thot he was nice.
"I break hearts galore
And then look for more"
Said this conceited young person named Weis.

Don't Let the Girlies Get You.

A modern hot air machine.

To give my head room you had better unroof the house.

"Well, twice I've tried to kill myself."

Dutch Weis, a clever young Beta,
Fell in love with a much older Theta.
But now his fair queen
Is little Irene,
Who quite rules this fickle young Beta.

Louise Amborn lost a trunk valued at $1500.

Pi Phi—"Why don't she ever wear some of her fine clothes?"

O where, O where has my little trunk gone,
O where, O where can it be?
With its dresses cut low, and their trains cut long,
O where, O where can it be?

The soul of this girl is her clothes.

Only ten score of gowns
To don the season through,
You cannot wear out half the lot,
Though you should dance the turkey-trot,
And the grizzly bear waltz, too.

Louise—"Higher! Yes, I need a hat."

As a student she was not a startler,
But as for men—
She wasn't slow then,
This saucy young damsel named Harper.

President of the Talcum Club.

Her face is her fortune—looks as if she had inherited a powder mill.

Small boy on street car—"How do you suppose that girl keeps those biscuits fastened on over her ears?"

I crave that chic d' Frenchy touch

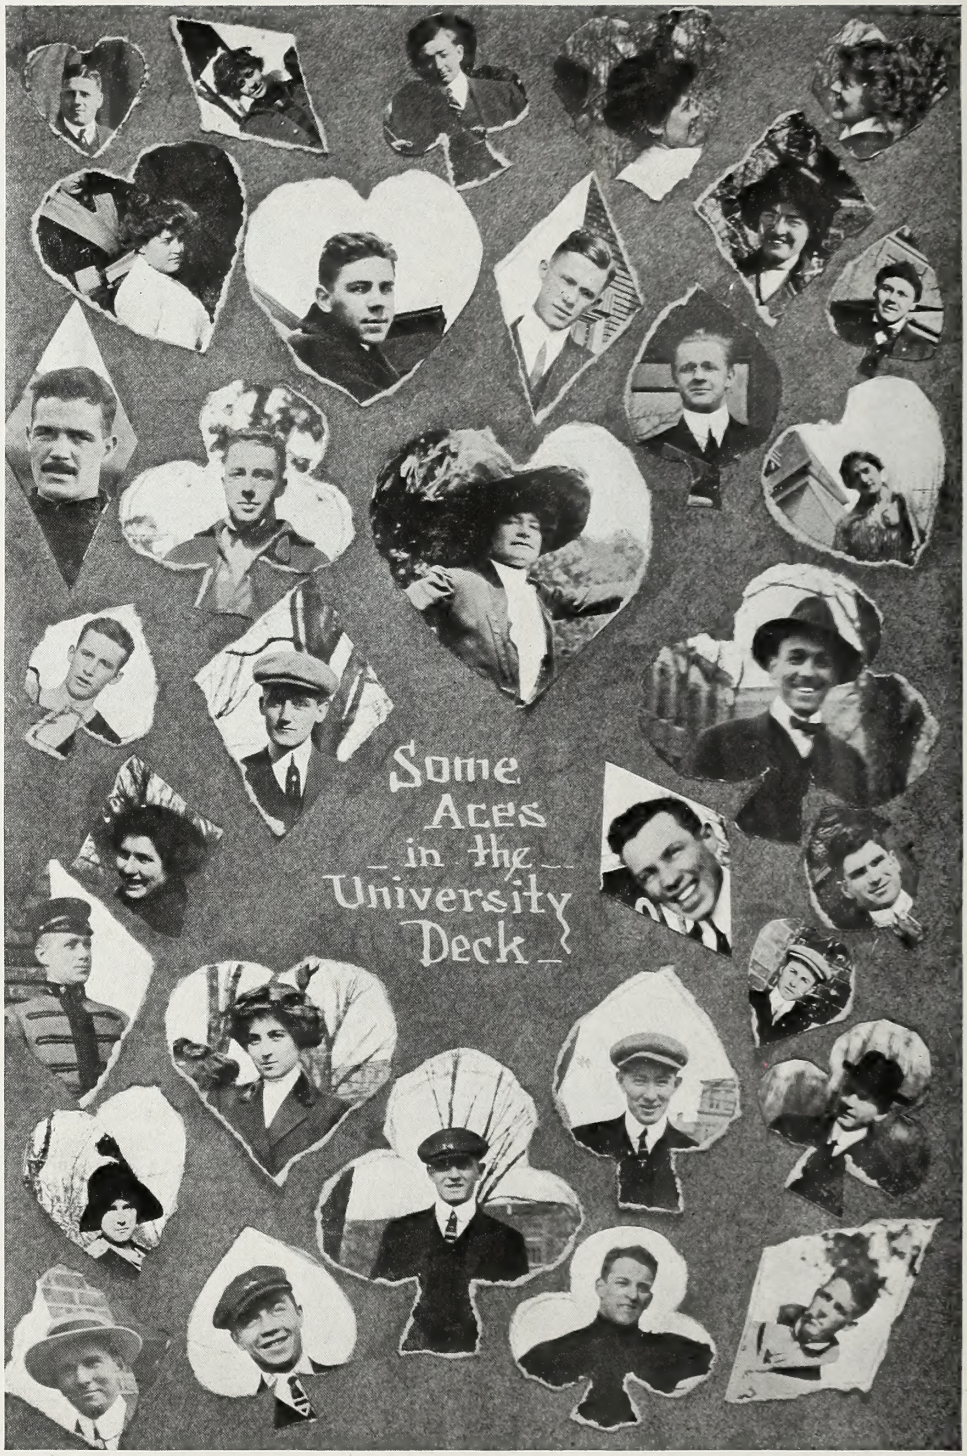

Of girls from Gibson's pen."

"Russel Lanier and I are two souls with but a single thought."
"I don't care how my hair looks, so long a it matches."

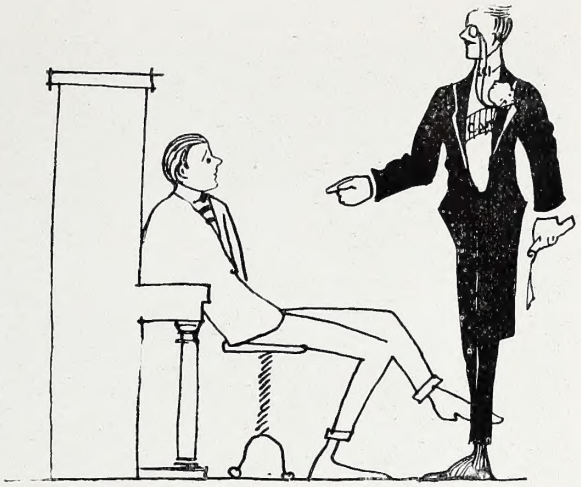

MOVING PICTURES—THE TWINS

This space is reserved as a token of our slight esteem for our associate and helper, "Pat" Wolfgang Sporlein. The successful manner in which he aided in the grouping of the pictorial pages of our section and his general help during our busiest and most exacting moments cannot be expressed in prose or rhyme. May future roast editors have the benefit of his keen judgment and ability, and his unfailing promptitude at meetings regardless of the day place, hour, or invitation.

Editor's Note:—Below is printed a short dissertation on the actual means by which an "Illio" job is secured, with special application to the editing and management of this year book. The dissertation is short cause we wanted to get our picture in.

THE ILLIO—A VEST-POCKET ESSAY BY GEORGE ITCH

The Illio is an excuse for the highway robbery of two selected individuals. It masks under the name of a publication of the Junior class, but the class usually refuses to own up to it. It is the only ruse which has successfully hoodwinked the University community for over fifteen years. Some day it is to be hoped, the poor deluded students will rise up in wrath and hurl this putrid book to the depths where it justly belongs.

The Illio is a graft detested by everybody but the editor and the business manager. The method of gaining control of it, according to the present editor, Mr. Ropiequet, is extremely simple; so simple, in fact, that it seems marvelous that there is not more competition. It usually originates with a group of ten or twelve designing parasites, who agree solemnly and secretly to run the University for the rest of their periods of confinement there. This is the only really difficult step in the whole proceeding. After this has been decided upon, all that remains to be done is to draw lots and divide the spoils.

There has been some talk of reforming the Illio, but this must proceed no further. A reformed Illio would be no Illio at all. Anyone who has grit and brains enough to object to the crooked policy will be skillful enough to get in on the graft.

How small our former friends make us feel now that the Sillio is out.

"Chicago AA"
Portland Cement is made?

It is a story of great interest to the man who uses cement. It tells how the raw materials are taken from the quarries, how they are weighed, proportioned, crushed and conveyed to the mills; it describes the "Chicago AA" process of drying, grinding and then burning the raw mixture to a "clinker" and explains, in an interesting way, the method of cooling the "clinker" and grinding and re-grinding it, thus producing "Chicago AA" Portland Cement, "the best that can be made."

Read this story: It will enable you to better appreciate the superiority of the "Double A" brand—it will guide you in the selection of a cement for your work in the future.

TYPEWRITE YOUR NOTES

How many times a college graduate is heard to exclaim, "If I only had copies of my notes under Prof. ———."

Why hasn't he? Because he has no typewriter with which to put them into proper shape. After two or three years, he cannot remember the work his notes mentioned and in disgust he throws them away.

Non-collegians often ask, "What good does a college course do?" On the defensive, the graduate has to admit that he has forgotten almost all he learned in college, but takes refuge in asserting generalities about culture, mental training, etc.

Now suppose the student writes notes on a typewriter and retains carbon copies of them for future reference. In the first place, by going at his college course in a workmanlike manner, he gains the confidence of his professors. He submits his essays and theses in neat, typewritten manuscript. He receives higher marks than the man who hands in illegible, hand-written matter.

The L. C. Smith & Bros. typewriter is the favorite with college students, because it is easy to operate and durable. It has ball bearings at all points where friction tends to develop.

No matter what you future work in life may be, the knowledge of how to run a typewriter will prove of great benefit.

NOW IS THE TIME TO START RIGHT!

A Distinctive Chair
The Ideal Columbia

IS one which will increase the charm of your office by reflecting your own character in its selection, and exert a positive influence upon your patients by the good impression it creates in your favor, by its subtle suggestion of beauty, strength, reliability and endurance.

And it is the only dental chair made which will enable an operator to accommodate every class of physically perfect or deformed patients.

This is very important, for a great many patients are exceptionally sensitive about their physical peculiarities, and in gaining their confidence by catering to their wants and needs, you will require a chair which will aid you in the very best way. Such a chair is The Ideal Columbia.

A New Electric Engine
Columbia Model "C"

TO the dentist who wants an electric engine of the folding bracket type, this new Columbia Model "C" will appeal with an irresistible fascination.

For it combines a more highly perfected bracket than any other on the market, with the motor supported in a swivel and balance by the main belted arm and short arm, so that the motor itself is always away from the patient, while the arm and handpiece is most convenient for the operator.

Because of its greater range, smoother action and almost universal adaptability, it is believed this new type will supersede all other makes of this kind on the market.

Investigate it and you will be convinced of this beyond doubt, when you have seen the details of its construction.

In addition to the highest types of Columbia Chairs and Electric Engines, you can get the furniture and other appliances of first-class manufacturers to complete your equipment, on the most liberal installment terms, through your regular dental depot.

No. 70 Edge Drop Corn Planter

The P. & O. No. 70 Planter is a two row edge drop machine, which is proving exceedingly popular because of some of the new and exclusive features of its construction.

Among these are extra large hoppers, which can be tilted to allow the plates to be changed without removing the seed. A sight feed which permits the operator to see the seed as it drops from the hopper to the upper valve; a cushion spring on the connection of front and rear frame, which insures uniform depth of planting and relieves the necks of the horses from all shock and jar. Special arrangement for depositing seeds in cells edgewise. Choice of three styles of furrow openers. Double Disc marker, one of the most popular features ever put on a planter.

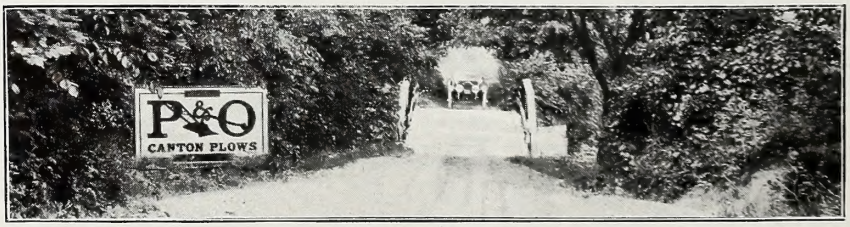

The planter can be used for either hill or drill planting, the change from one to the other being very simple, and requiring but a few moments time.

We want you to know all about this planter. It will pay you to write for complete description, which we will gladly furnish.

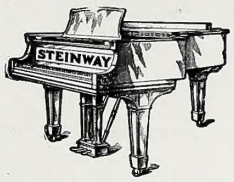

Remember that P. & O. Co. backs every machine they put out with an ABSOLUTE GUARANTEE.
